HEROIN: The Black Plague So Few Know About

This is the first article in a six-part series on the serious, rapidly growing menace of heroin addiction in Greater Victoria.

Times reporter Robert Olver submerged himself in the murky subculture of drugs, pushing and addiction for two months to produce the series.

By ROBERT OLVER
Times Staff

Drug abuse in Victoria is a plague which is as deadly a threat to the community as would be an epidemic of a new, unknown and virulent strain of typhus.

It is a plague about which few people — even those who might be expected to be well informed on the subject — know anything for certain, and about which absolutely no one knows everything.

And whatever truth there is, is obscured by misconceptions, misinformation, prejudice and apathy.

That is the consensus which emerges following two months of investigation by the Times.

During those months this reporter talked and became friendly with dozens of addicts. He gained the sometimes uneasy trust of drug pushers and was eventually allowed to be present when customers came to buy.

He watched while money changed hands and drugs were sold, often with undercover narcotics agents only a few feet away.

And then there were dozens of conversations with those agents, the "narcs," the people who are hated, feared and despised in the twilight world of illegal drugs. There were still more conversations with judges, politicians, doctors, priests, teachers and social workers.

Here is what some of those people say about the spread of drug abuse.

Dr. Conrad Schwartz, chairman of the B.C. Medical Association's committee on drugs: "There is clear evidence that the use of narcotics is spreading at a rapid rate."

Dave Turner, probation officer attached to Victoria's Family Court: "The number of cases I deal with are increasing sharply and younger and younger people are getting involved."

Dr. Larry Axmaker, psychologist in the special education branch of Greater Victoria School Board: "Children are becoming acquainted with drugs when they are very young."

Mrs. Margo Hall, guidance counsellor at Mount Douglas senior secondary school: "The drug culture is part of the lives of our young people."

D. M. Bartlett, narcotics auditor's officer of the federal food and drug department: "We've got a bad problem and most of us don't even know about it."

Key City Falls to Reds

SAIGON — South Vietnam's first provincial capital fell to the North Vietnamese today after five days of savage assaults in the northern sector by troops of four divisions, giving Hanoi its biggest victory of its 38-day offensive.

South Vietnamese troops abandoned Quang Tri and into Communist hands went territory stretching from the demilitarized zone 27 miles to the south.

The South Vietnamese military commanders abandoned the 10,000 government troops in that provincial capital today and flew to the safety of Hue.

This May Day triumph followed the seizure of full control of the population and important rice crops along the central coast, the cutting of Highway One in crucial points north of Da Nang, site of the U.S. air base, and renewed Communist pressure on Kontum, another provincial capital in the central highlands.

Senior U.S. officers in Hue said Brig. Gen. Vu Van Giai, commander of the 3rd Division in Quang Tri, lost communications with other units there and "began throwing temper tantrums because he didn't have control over his own people." The Americans said they left because the command structure disintegrated.

With the fall of Quang Tri, capital of the province of the same name, a threat became more imminent to the old imperial capital of Hue, now only 24 miles south of the northernmost defensive line of the South Vietnamese on Highway One.

ADVISERS EVACUATED

Field reports said the South Vietnamese troops were trying to escape the fallen capital as best they could. All American advisers were safe-evacuated by helicopter shortly before it was decided to abandon plans to defend the city. Most of the civilians had long since fled and only a few remained.

Quang Tri had a population of about 27,000.

U.S. and South Vietnamese officials had said the objective of the North Vietnamese offensive was to seize Quang Tri and Hue, capitals of the two northernmost provinces. Hue is 35 miles south of Quang Tri.

There have been frequent reports that the North Vietnamese would attempt to annex the two northernmost provinces of Quang Tri and Thua Thien as part of a plan to give them political bargaining power.

Other objectives of the North Vietnamese offensives are to defeat the South Vietnamese army and prove that President Nixon's Vietnamization program is a failure.

In Floresville, Texas, President Nixon said Sunday night that only American air and sea power is stopping a Communist takeover of South Vietnam. He vowed to bomb and shell North Vietnam as long as the enemy offensive continues.

"The North Vietnamese are taking a very great risk if they continue this invasion of the south," Nixon said. "I'll just leave it there and let them take their choice."

Nixon spoke in response to questions following an informal barbecue supper at the ranch home of Treasury Secretary John Connally.

COURAGE TOASTED

Guests at the party — 200 strong — spontaneously rose after Nixon's remarks and drank a toast with French champagne "to the courage of the president."

In Moscow, Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny declared militant solidarity today with those battling "U.S. aggression" in Indochina in a May Day speech three weeks before President Nixon's scheduled trip to Moscow.

Podgorny told a cheering May Day crowd on Red Square that the Soviet Union reaffirms its "militant solidarity with the courageous patriots of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia who lead the heroic struggle against U.S. aggression."

And in Washington, Secretary of State William Rogers says President Nixon was forced to increase military activities in Vietnam to protect the lives of 16,000 U.S. troops in the provinces under Communist seige for the past month.

"Just imagine what would happen if the president failed to take the action which he has taken? Suppose we lost 16,000 Americans? Suppose they were captured, killed or massacred? The president has an obligation to take action to protect these men," Rogers said Sunday.

Strike Spreads to Burnaby

VANCOUVER (CP) — Civic workers walked off their jobs today in Burnaby, making it the second Greater Vancouver municipality hit by a public service strike.

The 600 employees set up picket lines around City Hall, RCMP stations and the public works yard in Burnaby as they widened their efforts to win improved wage contracts.

The strike is expected to shut down garbage collection, water, sewage and street maintenance. Vancouver city services have been halted since Thursday, when 2,800 workers walked out.

Workers walked out in Vancouver following collapse in February of contract negotiations between the Canadian Union of Public Employees, the Municipal and Regional Employees Union and seven municipalities in the Greater Vancouver area.

The unions said today they are prepared to return to the bargaining table, with the duration of the agreement open to discussion and negotiation.

Their decision followed a meeting Saturday to formulate a reply to the municipalities' demand that they commit themselves in writing to negotiate a two-year agreement instead of the one-year contract they have been asking.

The unions rejected an offer which the Municipal Labor Relations Bureau, which bargains for the municipalities, said amounted to a 9.55-per-cent increase in wages and fringe benefits in a one-year contract.

The unions have demanded a 20-per-cent raise in one year.

In Burnaby, CUPE represents both inside and outside workers while in Vancouver the inside workers are part of the MREU.

Meanwhile, as the Vancouver strike went into its fifth day today, garbage continued to pile up and wind scattered paper and other rubbish along city streets. Residents found themselves locked out of park buildings and other recreational facilities.

In Toronto more than 140 fires broke out in temporary garbage dumps in the metropolitan area during the weekend as negotiations aimed at ending the strike of municipal outside workers continued to plod along.

The Toronto fire department said most of the fires were the result of "boys with matches" and "careless smoking."

The strike, which began three weeks ago today, involves 4,000 workers including garbagemen, street and road maintenance workers, parks employees, sewage and water treatment workers, ambulance drivers, ferry boat operators and zookeepers. They are members of Local 43, Canadian Union of Public Employees.

ELK RAILWAY APPEAL UPHELD BY COURT

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada today found that the Canadian transport commission erred in a major point of law rejecting an application which would have allowed the Kootenay and Elk railway to move into the rich coal market in southeastern British Columbia.

The commission is studying the court ruling to see whether the Kootenay and Elk application should be heard again.

The court split five to four on the single point of law in which the commission was found to be wrong. On other legal matters, the court ruled that the commission judged correctly.

In its decision, the commission said the Railway Act prohibits a common carrier, such as Burlington Northern, from interchanging traffic with a company that is not a common carrier such as the Kootenay and Elk.

The court said the section in the Railway Act mentioned by the commission is not intended to prohibit traffic but to allow two common carriers to interchange traffic.

GOLD PRICE SETS NEW RECORD

LONDON (AP) — Sustained industrial demand sent the price of gold above $50 an ounce today, a post-war record.

Bullion dealers fixed the free market price at $50.45, up from the previous high of $49.60 an ounce at the afternoon fixing Friday.

Peterson Eyes Boards

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson today asked for an immediate end to billboard advertising of tobacco products in the province to comply with last week's Supreme Court decision upholding the government's tobacco and liquor ad ban.

At a press conference, Peterson said he has telegrammed Seaboard Advertising Ltd. requesting that "you take immediate steps" to end billboard tobacco ads.

Peterson said Seaboard is the major company continuing the advertising of tobacco products despite the legislation which went into effect in September, 1971.

Peterson also said he is making a "public appeal to newspapers published within the province" to respect the ad ban.

In Montreal the Canadian Tobacco Manufacturers' Association said it plans to take the British Columbia Supreme Court ruling upholding the B.C. government's ban on tobacco and liquor advertising to a higher court.

Peterson also mentioned Time Magazine, saying "I urge them to have their western edition comply with the legislation."

He said he is "extremely pleased with the (B.C. Supreme Court) judgment which confirms the unanimous action of the B.C. legislature."

Davidson To UN

OTTAWA (CP) — CBC president George Davidson is to resign from the government-owned network to accept an appointment as United Nations under-secretary general in charge of budget, finance and administration, his office announced today.

No date for Davidson's resignation was announced.

Davidson, 63, was appointed CBC president in January, 1968, noting at the time existence of "a very real gap in my armory of knowledge about broadcasting."

A career civil servant, he was secretary of the treasury board during the four years previous to the CBC appointment. He succeeded J. Alphonse Ouimet.

After completing high school in New Westminster, Davidson studied at the University of British Columbia.

Bomb Kills Man At Ulster Plant

BELFAST (AP) — A chain of bomb blasts ripped through a big synthetic fibres plant today, killing one man and injuring 10 others.

The explosions left one man with both arms ripped off and another with serious head injuries as flames engulfed the factory at Carrickfergus, 10 miles from here.

Security forces said that 20 minutes before the first blast they received an anonymous telephone tip that explosives had been planted in a canteen at the factory, owned by the British chemical combine Courtaulds.

The attack was blamed on the underground Irish Republican Army.

Britain's chief administrator in Northern Ireland, William Whitelaw, held emergency talks in Belfast during the day on the rampage of Protestant mobs through the capital Sunday night.

PROTESTANT BACKLASH

Security forces fear the long-awaited Protestant backlash may have started against the IRA's guerrilla campaign and Whitelaw's concessions toward the province's Roman Catholic minority.

Shops and pubs were set ablaze in a three-hour fight Sunday between rioters and police in eastern Belfast's Newtownards Road district, a Protestant stronghold. Bloody riots in eastern Belfast Saturday night injured 12 police and 13 civilians.

A spokesman at Belfast police headquarters said: "It's a case of the gamekeepers turned poachers. The Protestants crowds are attacking us. The Protestant backlash seems under way."

Sunday night and early today, at least six shops and pubs were wrecked by flying rocks or set ablaze with flaming gasoline bombs. Police reported wide-spread looting.

POLICE STONED

Bottles and stones rained down on police from a mob of about 300 who staged lightning raids out of the darkness. Three policemen were injured and four rioters arrested.

In the Catholic enclave of Ardoyne, youths commandeered vehicles and turned them into blazing barricades to protect gunmen who fired at army patrols.

The British troops shot back but claimed no hits.

Liquor Prices Up

A major increase in liquor prices went into effect today, hitting imported wine drinkers the hardest.

A spokesman for the Liquor Control Board said the price changes, almost all on imported products, were caused by prime cost increases, freighting costs and revaluing of British currency.

The big increases in French wines and liqueurs are a direct result of the producers' own price increases, an apparent response to a worldwide rising demand, an official said.

A bottle of Chablis Cruse wine has gone up by $2.15 to $6. A bottle of Hennessy cognac rises by $1.10 to $9.95.

338 CHANGES

There were 338 price changes, only 18 being decreases. Most of them were on domestic products.

Some rye whiskies went down 10 cents.

Five B.C. wines went down,

Socreds Lead in Everything—Just Ask!

British Columbia's Social Credit government is a leader in everything from social welfare to conservation and pollution control — if you take at face value the broadcast statements of cabinet ministers.

The three opposition party leaders don't.

The provincial government's controversial advertising program, Ask Your Provincial Government, got its first airing on B.C. radio stations on the weekend. Opposition reaction was quick and critical.

"Propaganda," chorused the three, each choosing his own definitive adjectives to embellish the condemnation.

"Orchestrated propaganda," Conservative leader Derril Warren said. "Strictly 1952 politics."

"Merely Socred electioneering propaganda," Liberal leader Dr. Pat McGeer agreed.

COST $200,000

"I refuse to comment on cheap Social Credit propaganda, the cost of which is taking food off the tables of old age pensioners of this province," New Democratic Party leader Dave Barrett stated.

The program will cost the taxpayers of B.C. $200,000.

Here are some of the questions and answers which prompted the opposition reaction.

"A Penticton man says he doubts that the department of rehabilitation and social improvement really helps people in need. For the reply, in his office at Victoria the minister, the Hon. Phil Gaglardi."

"Yes, it sure does, and here's how. This month, 3,800 men and women who are blind or totally and permanently disabled received incomes under the Blind and Disabled Pensions and Allowances Act. Last month social assistance was paid to 16,000 deserted or widowed mothers with children. Today, through its foster homes and special services, the department is caring for almost 7,000 children. Children who have been abandoned, abused, orphaned or for a number of reasons cannot remain safely in their own homes. When we stop to add it all up do you know that almost 200,000 citizens of our province will receive some direct benefit or allowance this month from your department of rehabilitation and social improvement."

POLLUTION

Another question concerned pollution. What, a letter from Castlegar asked, was the public works department doing in the field of pollution control?

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant replied:

"First of all we have, we lead in the construction of all-electric public buildings and we are also changing over to gas in our heating plants and have done this in a number. At the present time we have no coal burning plants left in our institutions anywhere in the province and we have also installed efficient treatment plants at Haney and Alco to treat sewage and furthermore we have led for several years in the disposal of garbage by burning it and using the resulting heat to generate steam heat for the different buildings and other offices."

"Thank you, Mr. Minister," Ray Orchard, announcer on the recorded broadcasts and a public employee, the provincial secretary department's administration officer respon-

FBI Snooped on Love-Life—Columnist

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Columnist Jack Anderson charged at a U.S. congressional hearing today that FBI director J. Edgar Hoover prepared secret memos on the love lives of public figures for the "bedtime reading" of former president Lyndon B. Johnson.

Anderson said the FBI investigations of private citizens were examples of the kind of secrecy in government that should not be permitted.

Testifying before the house freedom of infomation subcommittee, Anderson concentrated his attack primarily on the "bungles and blunders" of foreign policy that he said administrations hide under the lid of secrecy. But he also described another example of what he claimed was an unwarranted government exercise in secrecy.

"At home, the executive branch conducts secret investigations of prominent Americans," Anderson said. "Their sex lives, drinking habits and personal affairs have come under FBI scrutiny, although the FBI has no jurisdiction for this kind of snooping. A love affair, no matter how sordid, is no business of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Yet FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover has demonstrated an intense interest in who is sleeping with whom in Washington.

"President Johnson was one White House occupant who had a fine appreciation for stories about the extracurricular love lives of public figures. Hoover happily prepared secret memos, loaded with intimate details about the personal affairs of the high and mighty, for the president's bedtime reading."

Anderson's appearance today coincided with publication of a column by him quoting excerpts from the purported FBI memos. He offered to make some of the documents available to the subcommittee.

Among those he claimed were subjects to such reports were actors Marlon Brando and Henry Belafonte, sports figures such as Joe Namath, Muhammad Ali, Lance Rentzel and Joe Louis, and black leaders including Ralph Abernathy and Roy Innis.

Young Must Be Prime Concern

Douglas Denholme, executive director of the British Columbia Narcotics Addiction Foundation: "There is a lot of work that has to be done."

Dr. Phillip Ney, Eric Martin Institute: "There are very few young people who don't know quite a lot about drugs."

Dr. Paul Termansen, department of adult psychiatry, Vancouver General Hospital: "The number of drug overdose cases accelerated so rapidly that we couldn't handle them in our emergency department. We had to develop other facilities."

Sgt. William Chisholm, Saanich Police Department: "By the time a child reaches secondary school, he has already made up his mind — usually without benefit of solid information — on the drug question."

Sgt. Dave Staples, head of the RCMP drug section working out of Victoria Sub-Division: "The number of cases has increased very rapidly. We can only take action on about half the information we receive.

Judge William Ostler: "I am very concerned."

Most Rev. Remi De Roo, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria, "We must help the young to know how to live."

For the most part, names in this series of articles will be fictitious but that is the only fiction in which we will indulge. The real names of narcotics agents cannot be used and, for obvious reasons, neither can those of pushers and users. The information was gathered on the promise of complete anonymity for the informers.

The names of politicians will be used whether they have given permission or not because they are people in the public view. Their attitudes as revealed in either private or public comments, have a great deal to do with whether the problems of drug abuse can be solved.

For instance, Education Minister Donald Brothers, who is also chairman of the cabinet's five-man committee on alcohol and drug abuse, made one such revealing comment late last year.

In a conversation which we will report more fully later in the series, Brothers said: "Parents don't want drug addicts in our schools."

As a wish, the sentiment could be shared by everyone. But Brothers was not expressing a wish. He made the statement in giving his reason for being against a proposal — made to the committee — that young former addicts and addicts under treatment be allowed to discuss the problem of drug abuse with elementary and high school students.

"Parents don't want drug addicts in our schools," said Brothers. An a police officer who has spent years working with youth who are hooked on drugs observed: "We already have drug addicts in our schools."

In the great majority of cases, he added, few people know, or want to believe, they are there.

But there they are, said the officer, "and they are either ignored or unrecognized by their teachers, their guidance counsellor, their principal and their parents.

The people who could be expectel to be first to see the problem are the last to help."

This officer and others who have either operated as narcs in the past or are working as narcs now agree on this further point regarding one of the basic causes of drug abuse.

"The presence of drugs, the conversations about them, the curiosity that develops about them, pervades the world of the young.

Whether they are addicts themselves or not, they know people who are — classmates, friends. They hear them discussed; all they've got to do to get them is ask.

If they are not wired to drugs themselves — if they don't know first hand what various kinds of highs feel like — they are sure to hear daily of the experience of friends and classmates who are users."

Another undercover officer who has been a narc for the past year said: "In that kind of atmosphere, if a young person is at all unstable or even if something is simply bugging him temporarily, he is very likely to try some type of drug.

"And if he keeps chipping away, it is not long before he prefers the high induced by whatever drug he is taking to the reality of his life. Then he gets tired of marijuana or hash and gets curious again.

He hears you can get a better high from speed so he tries that.

But speed is a bummer to come down off of, it is really bad coming down off speed.

So then he gets a chance to try a little heroin — just a joy pop — under the skin at first because shooting it into the vein, mainlining it, comes later."

The officer adds: "It doesn't always happen but it usually happens that if you try heroin once you eventually get wired (addicted) to it. I have never met a single person who was wired who was able to really quit. They can stop for three or four months, a year maybe, but they always go back on. They always have the craving."

Then he made a somewhat chilling observation, one that was repeated many times by people working with drug addicts and more impressively, by drug addicts themselves.

"By the time a child leaves elementary school it is too late to educate him about drugs. He has made his mind up one way or the other.

"And if you are going to tell the young people about drugs you have to tell them how it is.

Try to snow them just once, use a phoney approach and your whole credibility is shot even if everything else you say is right.

"Right now very little is being done about education on drug abuse.

The government is spending a lot of money on ads but the ads are phoney, silly and the young people know it. The money is wasted and that is plain criminal irresponsibility. There are better ways to spend the money but the government won't listen," the officer said.

(Tuesday: How a young person can support a habit financially.)

HEROIN USERS JUMP 764%

The number of known heroin users has increased by 764 per cent on Vancouver Island in the last two years, according to a report from the RCMP drug section to J. A. Knox of the attorney-general's department.

The report, excerpts of which have been distributed to mayors of some of the hardest-hit municipalities, shows that there are 1,244 known heroin users on the island now compared with only 144 only two years ago.

One year ago there were 314 so the increase last year to now, is 290 per cent.

In Victoria, usage has increased 167 per cent in the past year. The metro area has 400 known users now, compared with 150 a year ago; 68 two years ago. The increase is the fourth highest of any centre on the island.

The Times will give complete details of this report later this week in Robert Olver's series on drugs.

Partly as a result of this epidemic increase, Douglas Denholme, executive director of the British Columbia Narcotics Addiction Foundation announced last week that a new satellite unit for the treatment of addicts will open May 15 in Nanaimo.

Others are operating in Victoria and Prince George. They operate on a budget of from $3,100 to $4,000 per month and are staffed by a doctor, a supervisor and a secretary.

and a better freight deal on California wines will mean a small saving on that product.

Changes in scotch whisky prices are a result of a change in the value of the British pound, the LCB spokesman said.

De luxe scotches rise by 35 cents, ordinary scotch is up 25 cents and "cheap" scotch is up 20 cents. Now a bottle of cheap scotch costs $5.70.

Not all increases in French wines are large. Many of them rise by only five cents. But the greatly rising demand for French wines is not being ignored by producers, the LC Bspokesman said.

"The Americans will pay almost anything for French wines," he said.

Also in demand are French liqueurs. A bottle of Grand Marnier has risen by $1.30.

The French producers increased their prices Jan. 1 and the effect is now being felt here.

"As far as I'm concerned, as attorney-general, now that the action of the legislature has been upheld, there is no reason why there should be any delay in enforcement of the legislation."

The attorney-general said he was placing no deadline on compliance with the ad ban but indicated his office will carry out enforcement procedures if its warning is not heeded.

Up until now the government has been waiting for the court decision before taking enforcement measures.

Peterson said that he is not planning any legislation at this time to close in on liquor and tobacco advertising originating in publications outside the province.

"At the moment my intention is to concentrate on publications within the province."

sible for the production of the series, ends each program.

Other questions and answers aired this weekend included ones on the $50 annual grant to elderly homeowners, the lack of provincial incentives to establish secondary industry in B.C., and the clean-up of B.C. Hydro reservoirs prior to flooding.

Trade and Commerce Minister Waldo Skillings disposed of the implied suggestion B.C. needs incentives for secondary industry by saying, in part, ". . . I've come to the firm belief that incentives of hothouse industries are not in the long haul good for the province. We've seen for example what has happened in other provinces, we've seen what has happened in Manitoba, we've seen what has happened in Quebec. British Columbia is the fastest-growing province in all Canada and we've no incentives so I think the proof of the pudding is in the eating."

McGeer, after hearing the questions, said such a program would be unnecessary if the cabinet would reply to queries in the Legislature.

"I hope the public is going to rise up and discipline the government lest they take $1 million to prepare for the next election."

A weakening Pacific disturbance which extends from the southern Cariboo to central Vancouver Island will move slowly southeastward today and will reach Washington this evening. HAWAII EYES LIMIT ON AUTOS

HONOLULU (UPI) — Hawaii may become the first U.S. state to limit the number of cars allowed in the state at one time. Such a measure awaits the signature of Gov. John A. Burns.

The bill, approved by the legislature April 14th, sets up an interdepartmental transportation control commission which would have the task of setting a ceiling on the number of automobiles and other vehicles permitted in the state.

Burns, a Democrat, has not indicated whether he will sign the measure.

Income Guarantee

VANCOUVER (CP) — National Social Credit leader Real Caouette said Sunday his party would guarantee an annual income for all Canadians that would cost no more than the current national welfare expenditure.

"Our system would guarantee $1,200 a year for single persons of 18 years and over, $2,500 for each married couple and $250 for each of their children, and, at age 60, $200 a month for each person or $350 for each couple, whether or not the wife is 60 years old," he said. (See also Page 15.)

"If this guaranteed annual income was given to each and every Canadian, it would cost $16 billion, the same amount that is being spent on welfare in Canada."

Caouette told a meeting of Vancouver Centre Federal Social Crediters that the biggest problem in Canada is getting money into the hands of the people to take up the slack of overproduction.

100 Highway Employees Stage Wildcat Strike

One hundred highways department employees who failed to show up for work at Prince George today are expected to be back on the job Tuesday assistant deputy highways minister Robert Harvey said today.

Harvey said the department is watching developments with regard to the wildcat strike but added "no decision has been made on whether department officials will meet strikers' representatives."

The assistant deputy would not elaborate on what, if any steps the govement is prepared to take to head off the possibility of the walkouts spreading to other centres.

Highways Minister Wesley Black was reported by his office to be unavailable and Deputy Minister Tom Miard is on holidays. Labor Minister James Chabot was closetted in a meeting with Deputy Minister William Sands but there was no indication whether they were discussing the walkout.

NO PICKET LINES

Peter Marshall, executive vice-president of the British Columbia Government Employees' Union, said earlier that the walkout was apparently a spontaneous action. He added that the strike does not have the union's support and picket lines will not be set up.

Marshall said the strike appears to be a "tangible manifestation of the legitimate frustration of the workers "over the wage ceiling of 6.5 per cent which has been imposed by the provincial government.

ANTI-CANCER PILL COMING?

TORONTO (CP) — An internationally-known medical researcher says he is investigating the possibility of developing a cancer preventive pill for smokers. It would not be a cure.

Dr. Hans Selye, director of the University of Montreal's institute of experimental medicine and surgery, said in an interview Saturday a synthetic hormone streoid known as PCN has proved itself in tests on laboratory animals as providing protection against lethal doses of nicotine.

He said it also gives protection against some cancer-causing emissions from motor vehicle exhausts. He is investigating PCN's ability to destroy carcinogens in tobacco smoke that cause cancer, he said.

Dr. Selye participated in a symposium sponsored by the Association of Professional Engineers of Ontario.

He said PCN stimulates production of enzymes, substances which act as catalysts in the body's metabolic processes and break down deadly carcinogens into harmless carbon and water.

Taking a PCN pill twice a day might provide immunity from lung cancer, he said, adding that an amount of PCN provided 100-per-cent protection against fatal injections of mercury and digitilis.

Dr. Selye said tests of PCN on humans are being held up by the federal food and drug directorate. He added that as much as five years of testing are required to ensure that drugs do not cause cancer before they can be tested on humans.

A Struggle for Survival

The latest statistics on the use of heroin in Greater Victoria and the major population centres on Vancouver Island show tragic increases which call for drastic action. It is no answer to say that the Island is merely reflecting the trend of other parts of Canada, or, indeed, the whole continent. The halt in the spread of harmful drugs must come at the local level, and that puts the problem squarely up to local populations and their officials.

In an age in which there can be few persons who have not been informed of the terrible nature of the heroin habit it is difficult to understand the idiocy which permits an individual to experiment with use of the drug. When continued use descends into apparently incurable dependence, the problem becomes a public one, since it will be society in general which has to support the self-created victim. This will be either through keeping him or her in an institution, or through paying the price of the shoplifting and other forms of crime to which addicts are driven to support their habit.

Logically, in the face of the experts' advice that a cure for addiction is almost impossible, it would be feasible to sentence all addicts to live in a segregated community, perform enough work to keep the community self-supporting, and freely receive bountiful supplies of the drug which eventually will bring him or her the early death which apparently addicts seek. Such a solution would be humane and relatively inexpensive to operate, and would relieve the consumer of the multi-million dollar cost of addicts' thefts from retail stores each year.

While it may seem callous to write off these doomed people it would certainly be realistic. The tragedy has been set long before they come to society's attention by appearing in the courts. Punitive imprisonment is apparently useless, even when accompanied by so-called treatment. Sooner or later we are going to have to face the fact that drug addiction is essentially one of the most serious threats to human society today, equally as dangerous as threats to the atmosphere, to the clean water supply and the viability of our environment.

On this basis, society's defence against those who import and sell drugs should be simple and drastic. Failing a mandatory death sentence, which is out of favor these days, there should be a uniform 50-year sentence, without alternative or parole, for everyone convicted of "pushing" drugs on more than a one-time, non-repetitive basis. The law enforcement strength of the whole country should be mobilized to catch not only the lower-level criminals who sell drugs but, in particular, the top echelons which direct and profit from this world-wide trade. It has been said that no criminal activity can long flourish without the incompetence or the connivance of law-enforcement or law-making officials at one level or another.

Society is now suffering from a deadly, cancerous growth. Which one of them is going to win?

What Provision for Emergencies?

Despite the distractions of various developments in the course of the inquest, the inquiry ordered by Attorney-General Peterson into circumstances surrounding the death of a 19-year-old boy requiring emergency transportation to hospital poses an issue which should be resolved.

The boy's father sought the detailed inquiry in an apparent effort to determine the adequacy of emergency service for unorganized districts in this region. The time element between the appeal to police for help and the delivery of the youth at hospital has been raised and with it the right of residents of such areas to available public facilities.

Within the organized municipalities of this region special services, tax-supported by residents, are provided as an alternative to use of private ambulances. At issue in the present inquiry seems to be the question of how far such services should go — both in coverage of territory and in provision of specialized equipment.

This is a matter which has arisen from time to time in the response of fire-fighting equipment to fires beyond the normal borders of the region for which the fire department is responsible. The consensus in such cases usually is that fire departments should recognize responsibility only to those who finance them and that residence in relatively remote areas involves the risk of non-protection.

In cases where life is at stake this becomes a conflict between humane sympathies and the hard facts of municipal and economic boundaries. Do the same conditions apply to ambulances? Various police and fire vehicles have life-support equipment of differing value and efficiency. The standards of service may vary considerably.

The Attorney-General's inquiry may be able to resolve some of these questions and suggest some system — if the present one needs revision — whereby reasonable protection may be provided for all but the most remote residents.

There were factors in the current case which may have rendered any rescue effort inadequate, including an initial delay in informing authorities of the emergency. The advantages of secluded rural living inevitably are accompanied by disadvantages, and these can pose difficulties for the provision of urban services.

Brandt on the Knife's Edge

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — While much of the world's attention was focussed on Vietnam, events in Europe this past week have threatened an even more profound alteration in the balance of power and in East-West relations. The foundations of President Nixon's trip to Moscow are being jolted severely.

What is happening is that West German Chancellor Willy Brandt's policy of reconciliation with the East (his ostpolitik) is being challenged, and may be destroyed, by the domestic political opposition.

Brandt himself has escaped the first serious effort to oust him from office. But this coming week, the Parliament in Bonn is scheduled to decide whether to ratify the two critically important non-aggression treaties on which the ostpolitik is based: those with the Soviet Union, and Poland.

Close to Disaster

The long-range effect of shattering the ostpolitik is impossible to foresee; it could even be beneficial. But there is no question about the immediate effect. It would be close to disastrous.

- It would snatch from the Soviet Union the principal fruit of its policy of detente and provoke reprisals including, but by no means limited to, cancellation of the four-power accord on Berlin.
- It would revive the violent cold war of words between Bonn and Eastern Europe which for decades had poisoned the East-West atmosphere.
- It would set back, for the foreseeable future, preparations for a fruitful European security conference.
- And if President Nixon still went to Moscow, it would force him to renegotiate, instead of build upon, the foundations of East-West detente laid in recent years.

Two over-riding motives have prompted Soviet interest in detente. One is desire for quiet on Moscow's western front while tensions mounted with China. The other is a wish to firm up the partition of Europe by obtaining international acquiescence in the boundaries of the postwar Soviet empire.

Both of these objectives would be undercut by defeat of the German treaties. Fear of German "revenge-seekers" would be revived. Political and perhaps military tensions would result, feeding on the angry words being flung at Bonn. The shape of Europe would once again be in flux. Given enough time, the jolted kaleidoscope might settle into a new and better pattern. It is conceivable that Europe's diplomats, forced abruptly back to square one, could do a better job of building a detente. Brandt has been criticized as giving too much and getting too little.

LEONID BREZHNEV

But it is equally possible that the next time round, Moscow's bargaining power would be stronger, not weaker. The Kremlin is preparing to test an intercontinental missile even bigger than the SS-9, and its numerical lead over the United States in this field is growing. Soviet-Chinese tensions, which previously drove Russia toward the West, are beginning to show signs of easing.

And it is also entirely possible that an angry Soviet Union would refuse, for a substantial time, to try to renegotiate the detente. She has said the Bonn pacts are not subject to change. Having come close to one deal, she is very unlikely to accept another which is less attractive.

Much that President Nixon would be discussing with Party Secretary Leonid Brezhnev in late May would be affected. Wishing to retain its bargaining advantage in the nuclear field, Moscow could re-think the value of a SALT (strategic arms limitation) accord. The United States might then pull back from reviving East-West trade.

Pressure on Barzel

The United States, this past week, [illegible] been using whatever influence it could muster to persuade Rainer Barzel, the Christian Democratic opposition leader, to desist from sabotaging the pacts. West Germany's whole relationship with the NATO alliance could be adversely affected by successful sabotage, and Washington must have been pointing that out.

But Barzel's political future is also at stake, and few men draw back when they see an opportunity for power. Few men, too, readily accept advice on such matters from a foreign country, even one which is their principal ally. There is no sign, at this writing, of his exercising restraint.

It is also a sound presumption that Presidential adviser Henry Kissinger sought, in Moscow, to muffle in advance the possible Soviet reaction to defeat of the treaties. There is much the United States could do, given time, to seek reinstatement of the pacts, provided Moscow did not revive an all-out cold war against Bonn and make their burial a matter of national pride.

But damage-control operations can have only limited value. It would be much easier if the present pattern of detente were not shattered.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Dating Service

I was recently employed for one month with a local dating service which is no longer in operation for reasons of bankruptcy. Using my background in professional social work, I became aware of the potential value of such a service to many persons of all ages. In the month I was there, we received many telephone calls from many persons in addition to the persons who called at the office to inquire or to register.

Some persons in very trying situations saw such a service as the beginning point in essaying a solution. We allowed them to talk over their thoughts and feelings, and where indicated we facilitated the use of other agencies as well as our own.

I believe it is difficult to organize such a venture as a profitable business; such a service should be recognized as a social agency which can guide, enlighten, and educate the community as a whole, as well as helping individual persons to become acquainted with others who might meet their social and personal needs adequately.

Dating precedes marriage, illegitimacy, abortion, child neglect; successful dating can help counteract the loneliness which leads to mental breakdown or anti-social acts. In other words intelligent dating can help avoid social problems. Possibly such a service could have an acceptable image among the secondary school population giving a mature service of sound value, supplementing the communication among peers, or among staff and students.

The use of a dating service implies an interest in meeting another "whole" person; it can help develop a high standard of human relationship, i.e. a perception of, and an appreciation of the "other." The knowledge that one has a place where one can apply for a new friend if a relationship breaks is very supportive. Also the fact that one can talk over reactions to a date that turned out to be unsuccessful, or possibly even traumatic, is of great potential value to the economics of personality management.

Although I believe that such an agency should charge a fee, at least among employed persons, for which clients would receive integrity of service, I have not yet established a means for providing security and permanence for such a service by means of a guaranteed annual income. I have some offers of volunteer help. — Miss Doris Bergbusch, 3-908 Heywood Ave.

Fatherless Child

I am not a psychiatrist, so the views expressed here are just my own personal opinions.

I am referring to your article on unmarried mothers which appeared on Page 31 of your April 26 issue. In this article, you say that Dr. Ney believes there is no need to tell the child that it is illegitimate and that he (Dr. Ney) thinks mothers should indulge the child's fantasy that some day its father will appear.

I personally believe that this is a bad way to handle the situation and that there is no reason at all why a child should not be told the truth when it is old enough to understand (or old enough to ask questions about it).

To my mind, it is not surprising that the child becomes angry at the realization that the father will never return (as your article states) or that the child takes out this anger on the mother. After all, the mother has lied to the child and given it a false hope.

Children are not stupid (and they're getting smarter all the time) and most are very observant. It doesn't usually take too long for a child to realize who knowingly lies to him and who doesn't. And, I also believe a child does not long respect those who lie to him. You can't expect children to respect you when they're teen-agers if you knowingly lied to them during their childhood.

I also believe there is no reason for a mother to encourage her child to be angry at the child's absent father. I think the mother could explain to the child that she is angry at the father (if she is), but that she should also explain that, when the child is older, it will be able to assess the situation better. And, when the child is able to assess the situation better, I believe it would have a lot more respect for the mother who showed compassion for the absent father.

The "generation gap" won't close until we attain honest and open communication between the generations, and I believe it is never too soon to start.

I also believe that children should always be encouraged to accept life as it really is and to act on these realities. — (Miss) Gem McConville, 205—1417 Harrison.

Moon Rocks

I desire to call your attention to the safe return of the men who have made a return trip to the moon at a cost of millions of dollars. For what purpose, and what have they accomplished? When there is so much unrest, unemployment, old age veterans, men out of work, and war, it seems to me that this sort of money could have been better spent. Is it just rocks? There are plenty of them that have never been analyzed in our good Canadian Rockies — tons and tons of rock — let them explore our Canadian Rockies and not waste millions of dollars to get there. — Geo. E. Bennett, 604-1147 Quadra.

Air Pollution

A modern sage has likened the telephone to an extension of the ear, the telescope to an extension of the eye, the wheel to an extension of the foot, and a weapon as an extension of the muscle. A nuclear weapon could be called an extension of national muscle.

Professor George Wald, Nobel prize winner and biology teacher at Harvard, pointed out when he gave the Massey lectures that while man has extended himself with gadgetry which reshapes the environment all around himself, the mental process involved does not keep pace.

Professor Wald compares brain capacity to body-muscle power, pointing to the dinosaur as an incompetent and unadaptable creature having extremely massive strength but guided by a brain no bigger than a walnut. By comparison, present day mammals are much superior, and by this rating the human being is a "Wow"; at least until he steps behind the wheel of a motor car. Then he has reduced himself to the level of dinosaur, as evidenced by the results when someone has tried to climb a power pole with his automobile.

Now give man a weapon. Not a club or bow and arrow, but a nuclear weapon. Now the brain capacity of his power is reduced to a size less than a pin-head. That is the situation in the world today.

Sometime in June, France proposes to explode another nuclear device. It will be an explosion in the atmosphere, not an underground test such as the U.S.A. has been conducting on Amchitka Island and in Nevada, where the danger of radiation leakage is only partial. France's test will be done in the air where contamination of neighboring states and the total environment is certain to occur. We are reminded that Communist China has also conducted such testing recently.

The threshold of safety below which radiation might be considered harmless has long since been passed. Every increase brings with it a corresponding increase in damage to living tissue and reproductive cells. Any increase of radiation is too much! It does not "go away"; the iodine isotope for instance takes 17 million years to reduce by one-half.

When a neighbor unknowingly poisons your drinking water, that is an accident. When a neighbor knowingly poisons your drinking water, that is a deliberate act of aggression. To poison the air is an act of aggression against you, against all neighbors, against every human, against every living thing!

It is time we demanded behavior from nations that at least is as good as what we'd expect from an ordinary citizen. We'd not let anyone set off bombs at will in our community, so let us not tolerate such nonsense from a nation. Now is the time to write the President of France, M. Georges Pompidou, c/o Canadian Embassy, Avenue Foch, Paris, France, and tell him that his nuclear testing is not acceptable to us and that we would not condone such irresponsible behavior in a child. Nuclear Club mentality is Dinosaur mentality.

To further voice your protest you might write to Pierre Elliot Trudeau, Prime Minister of Canada, Ottawa, and Mr. Mitchell Sharp, Minister of External Affairs, Ottawa.

You may send moral and financial support to The Greenpeace Foundation, 3941 Westridge, West Vancouver, B.C. — Martin Rossander, Vice-Chairman, Powell River Anti-Pollution Association.

Angry Teachers

There is still much heated debate raging, as evidenced by "letters to the Editor" and news media articles, regarding the new government education finance formula.

Yes, the teachers are angry — justifiably! Any minority group so discriminated against would feel honourably angry. Yes, the teachers are becoming more militant — just as any minority group, so threatened, would fight for its civil rights.

Yet still the public ignored the major issue — the children of this province. Teachers are fighting for the futures of young people.

John Public merely sees teachers as creatures "wanting more money", "robbing the tax payer of his hard-earned cash", and all this for only "five and a half hours per day". Space is too brief to count the many hours teachers devote to lesson planning, parent conferences, extra curricular activities, in-service training, to mention but a few areas.

Larger classes, and lack of some very basic needs are the prospects for these children for September.

Where are the priorities of the people of B.C.? We know those of the government.

When you next go to the polls, let your vote speak for children, for they, not dollars, are our country's future. — Mavis DeGirolamo, 140 Medana St.

Escalation Of Firepower

By MARK FRANKLAND
The London Observer

The indignation of official Washington at Hanoi's escalation of the fighting in Vietnam is not very convincing to anyone who has followed the Indo-China war closely.

Since the early 1960s and the creation of the National Liberation Front (the Viet Cong) the Communists have steadily strengthened their military forces to match American attempts to build up the Saigon army. There have been three great Communist offensives in the last 10 years, each better equipped than the one before.

The 1964-5 offensive which almost destroyed the Saigon government and forced President Johnson to send in American troops saw the Viet Cong guerrilla turn into a soldier capable of fighting in large units with the North Vietnamese Army. America's backing of South Vietnam had always meant that the Communists could not rely on guerrilla skills and political propaganda: they had also to have enough firepower to counter the weapons Washington was giving Saigon. The arrival of half a million American troops in Vietnam after 1965 once more immensely increased the Communist forces' need of greater firepower.

Some people forget that the Tet offensive of 1968 — the second of the three great offensives — was preceded by a pretty thorough re-equipping of the Communist troops in the south. Their main new weapon was the Chinese-made AK47 assault rifle which was equal (some say even better than) the American M16. In early 1968 not even all U.S. units had the M16. The Communists brought in other weapons too, the most dramatic of which were Soviet and Chinese rockets.

General Westmoreland liked to point out that the more complicated the Communists' weaponry the more dependent they were on a big supply system. In 1968 the bulk of the Communists' supplies for the southern part of South Vietnam came by sea to Sihanoukville and then through Cambodia by lorry. Some people talk as though the Vietnamese Communists were somehow being untrue to themselves by going in for much advanced weaponry and logistics. But the Vietnam war has never been essentially a guerrilla war. It has always been a political war — the Chinese would say a "people's war" — but the Vietnamese Communists have used any military tactic that they found useful.

Washington's policy first of sending in heavily-equipped American troops and then, as the Americans withdrew, of giving the South Vietnamese almost as much heavy equipment forced the Communists to equip themselves too for conventional war. South Vietnam's million-strong army is now too big and too well-armed to crack except under heavy pressure.

This explains why in the present offensive the Communists have used more heavy guns and tanks than ever before. The tanks that fought at An Loc near the Cambodian border, some 60 miles north of Saigon, represented an immense logistical effort for Hanoi. They had to be brought all the way down the trails from the north and fuel dumps and repair shops set up near the battle area. Immensely vulnerable to planes though the tanks were, the Communists needed them to give their attack a heavy punch which would surprise and demoralise the South Vietnamese.

And in the first battles the Communists drove the Saigon troops out of the Loc Minh area where, in 1967, during preparations for the Tet offensive, more lightly-armed Communist units had attacked American troops and taken horrible casualties. In that battle the Americans fired their artillery point blank at the advancing infantrymen who were hopelessly outgunned from the start. Now the battles are more even.

Given the Communists' determination to force the Americans entirely out of Vietnam and to remove the government of President Nguyen Van Thieu, they had no choice but to give their troops bigger weapons. The Americans insist that the Russians are wicked because they are supplying Hanoi with most of these weapons (including anti-aircraft weapons which, as the years go by, have come to be used all the way down the Ho Chi Minh trails and in South Vietnam as well as in the north). Yet, according to American figures, Hanoi's annual economic and military aid from all sources is little more than a tenth of what America admits to spending on the Vietnam war.

What would happen if both the Soviet Union and America stopped giving their Vietnamese allies weapons? Few people who know Vietnam would deny that the Communists would be most likely to win. This explains why Washington goes on arming Saigon with guns and dollars and why the Soviet Union (and China, to a lesser but significant extent, it should be remembered) are obliged in return to ship arms to Hanoi and the Viet Cong.

Two Standards For Pay Board

THE NATION
An Editorial

A spokesman for Richard Nixon angrily denounces George Meany and other members of the Pay Board who have quit in disgust over the Administration's double standard of wage and price controls. The immediate issue is the board's veto of the settlement agonizingly negotiated by Harry Bridges and his West Coast longshoremen's union and the Pacific Maritime Association. The Nixon party line is that a few cantankerous labor leaders should not be allowed to interfere with the President's latest economic game plan.

His double standard becomes more transparent by the day. The Nixon Pay Board says that the longshoremen (many of them black, others brown; none of them rich) who do hard and sometimes dangerous physical labor should be denied a wage increase in one vital sector of transportation. But the board takes no action whatsoever when a whopping increase is awarded in another important sector of transportation — this one without any negotiations at all.

In the proxy statement prepared by the management of Trans World Airlines, its stockholders are informed of a huge pay rise for the company's chairman and chief executive officer — some 75 per cent over a three-year period. Charles Tillinghast will have his salary boosted from $100,640 to $125,000 in 1972; $150,000 in 1973, and $175,000 in 1975 (plus stock options, generous retirement, and other fringe benefits). F. C. Wiser, second in command, will also prosper. Within the next four years his pay will be doubled. He got $95,337 in 1971. That will be raised to $120,000 in 1972, followed by annual increases of $20,000 at least until 1976, when he is guaranteed $180,000, plus the usual extras that accompany high executive status.

There are double ironies to the situation. Much of the substantial salary increase is justified on the ground that Tillinghast and Wiser were responsible for what is being touted on Wall Street as a dramatic turnaround in the airline's fortunes.

There is no doubt that the balance sheet of 1971 is far different from that posted in 1970. Just a year ago, TWA's losses were among the largest any airline has ever experienced. In 1971 the red ink was erased, and the airline showed a modest profit. But who was in charge during the period when the losses were incurred? None other than the present management team — those men who modestly take credit for righting the ills of the previous year.

The embarrassing fact is that a large portion of the balance sheet improvement resulted from an event that those gentlemen sought to prevent: the cancellation of the government-subsidized SST. Tillinghast, as much as any other airline executive, urged the continuance of that ill-conceived scheme.

Following cancellation, and at the behest of the airlines, special legislation was introduced to refund to the airlines the money they had contributed toward building the prototype of the SST — $1 million for each delivery position held. Through this legislation the taxpayers gave TWA some $18 million, despite the fact that Tillinghast (and other SST proponents) had publicly stated that the payments were risk money and showed the airline's faith in the government-developed SST. Thus manager Tillinghast will be rewarded for a dramatic financial windfall which he did what he could to prevent and which comes directly from the taxpayers' pockets.

If this fact does not disturb Nixon's Pay Board, its double standard will become even more evident. Some may see in its inaction evidence that the Administration wants desperately to court the favor of powerful businessmen and that it is contemptuous to the economic anxieties of men who work with their hands.

And some may believe that it is not entirely coincidental that Tillinghast, once an anti-trust lawyer, recently wrote a letter to The New York Times in which he purported to see nothing wrong with the fact that high officials in the Justice Department had held private conversations with ITT executives when antitrust proceedings against the company were pending.

SEPARATE TABLES IN DINING HALLS

Black and White Don't Mix on U.S. Campuses

By THOMAS A. JOHNSON
New York Times

Racial tensions, distrust, some fist fights and a near total segregation in all but classroom activities characterize the relationships between black and white students on many major U.S. college and university campuses.

Many campuses have separate living arrangements, some authorized, and other ignored by housing officials. Separate tables in the dining halls are so commonplace that students go without second thought to either a black or a white table.

College dailies have, in many cases, been forsaken by black students who have preferred to print news about themselves and the black community in weekly or monthly publications bearing Yoruba or Swahili names.

Music war, in which whites turn up the volume on hard rock or country and western tunes to the discomfort of black students and in which the blacks retaliate with soul sounds, have become one of the most common of the dormitory confrontations. And they lead frequently to scuffles. Officials are hard put to find visiting musicians for concerts that would appeal to both racial groups.

At Kent State University in Ohio, complaints by black students that they were excluded from the basketball cheering squad resulted in the creation of two cheering squads, one black, one white, that alternated during recent games.

"I had no idea there were such racial tensions here," Mrs. Gertrude Huebner, a member of the Michigan state regents said, when the education officials heard testimony both for and against the setting up of two "Afro-American" housing units at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor.

'Very Depressed'

"I thought we were doing so well," she said. "I'm just very depressed."

Government agencies and the police have been brought into some campus racial difficulties. A white student at Northwestern University has complained to the federal Housing and Urban Development agency that a predominantly black dormitory there represents discrimination (against himself) in housing.

In San Francisco State College, a white student has complained to the U.S. Attorney's office that he was kept out of a black studies course and asked that office to help in protecting his civil rights.

Interviews with administrations, faculty and students at several major colleges showed that the current uneasiness was a direct outgrowth of the dramatic increase in non-white enrolments on what had been practically all-white, middle-class campuses.

Generally, no effective measures have been employed to avoid cultural clashes between the new "proud-to-be-black" students and whites who had little or no previous contacts with racial minorities.

Among those interviewed were 20 student journalists at major institutions. All but two of these student journalists used such terms as tense, expectant, hostile, frustrating, threatening and polarized to describe black-white relations.

Student journalists at the University of Florida at Gainsville (548 blacks out of 23,000 students) and the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville (175 blacks out of 12,000 students) reported little or no racial friction.

In some informal sessions, white students on several other campuses, however, confided that they had "expected blacks would want to be integrated into (white) campus life" or at least be "grateful for getting into a good school."

There were some admissions of racial prejudice and deliberate attempts by whites to harass the black students. They said also that there was greater likelihood that campus and town policemen would harass more black students than whites.

Like Wallpaper

In addition, the interviews with black students showed a widespread and aggressive rejection of whites, except on the very necessary level of instructor, administrator or, perhaps, roommate.

Diane Howell, a graduate student of psychology at the University of California at Berkeley, likened her white classmates to "the wallpaper — they're there. They are just there."

A recent graduate of Barnard College, Columbia University, where she said that blacks and whites were also polarized, Miss Howell expressed a fear that is widespread among black students.

She said: "I am not here to be some white person's 'black experience.' I am here to obtain a skill the black community needs."

Some white instructors, after expressing shock and dismay, will confide that they consider much of the black aloofness from white campus life to be a fear of competing with whites.

Black instructors, acknowledging the insecurity and adjustment problems of black students, add, however, that they are probably the "largest group of non-middle-class street blacks ever to go to the major universities and to freely express black cultural patterns that are different from whites."

"The top priority of most black students is simply getting out of school," said Harold Cruse, author of the Crisis of the Negro Intellectual and director of the Centre for Afro-American and African studies at the University of Michigan.

He said that the black aloofness from general campus activities "is a continuation of the separatist feelings going on among a number of blacks, especially younger people and especially freshmen and sophomores here."

Black enrolment in colleges and universities was 680,000 in 1971, according to census figures, compared to a white enrolment of 8,087,000. In 1960, the black enrolment was 287,000. About 56 per cent of the black college students attend predominantly white institutions where very few blacks attended a decade before.

ENRICH YOUR WORK, STEAL SOMETHING TODAY

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

If anything were lacking to emphasize the gulf that has developed between morals and mores in contemporary society, it has surely been provided by a United States industrial psychologist who suggested to a group of Toronto personnel managers that manipulation and condonation of the larcenous instincts of employees could be the latest management tool.

Noting that employees steal up to $10 billion a year from U.S. business, the psychologist says some companies are accepting the fact that people steal but, provided the employees don't filch more than 4 or 5 per cent of their "official" salaries, the company will in effect regard the thefts as a fringe benefit to the job. The prospect of thieving in fact helps to cut absenteeism, it's regarded as a job enrichment incentive — the way to make a dull job more interesting.

In spite of the "blind eye" system increasingly adopted by companies, it is unlikely that unions will seek the right to steal as a recognized fringe benefit in future contracts, or that it will be awarded a promising executive as part of the hiring package. Because then it would no longer be stealing and, as the psychologist notes, it is by stealing that the employee "acquires the job enrichment he needs. It gives him all the decision-making, rewards and targets he has been missing."

Internal losses in the U.S. retail business are reported to be three times as high as those from shoplifting. There is little reason to believe that the figures are much different in Canada. One Toronto company some time ago bought 4,000 best-quality styluses to be used in record players. During the year, it sold only 13 of the styluses; yet only 11 remained at the next stock inventory.

But, as the psychologist points out, eliminating employee theft could cost much more in security charges than the value of the goods stolen.

He says that 75 per cent of U.S. employees steal. Xerox Corp. of Rochester, N.Y., calculates that 50 per cent of production from office copying machines in New York is for personal use, while Bell Telephone Co. of New York says 12 per cent of all office calls have nothing to do with business.

What all of this does to the cost of business and the cost of goods to the consumer is cause for apprehension in the entire community but it must present finance ministers with particular anguish. How, oh how, are they going to tax it?

School Enrolment Dip Forecast

Enrolment in Greater Victoria's public schools is expected to decline steadily over the next four years, according to a school board study.

The study predicts that total enrolment in the Greater Victoria school district will decline from its high of 31,476 in 1970-71 to a low of 28,709 in 1975-76.

The predictions are made for the number of students in each grade for each of the next four years. They are based on enrolment trends over the last few years and on the birth rate.

ELEMENTARY

The decline in school population can be attributed entirely to an expected sharp drop in the number of elementary students in the district.

In 1968-69, the district had its most elementary students ever — 19,309. The figure for 1975-76 is predicted at 15,547.

However, this drop is balanced somewhat by an expected increase in the number of secondary students. From a 1968-69 figure of 11,352, secondary students are expected to number 13,162 in 1975-76.

The figures were compiled by the school district's department of development, personnel and research. The birth rate is used to calculate the number of students who will enter the system in kindergarten and Grade 1.

PREDICTIONS

Other grade figures are predicted by calculating the number of students who are likely to continue on into the next grade, right through to the last year of high school.

Factors which cannot be known ahead of time include the movement of families into and out of the school district. The department hopes to be able to co-operate with the district's four municipalities regarding new developments which would bring more families into the area.

SMALL ERROR

For a trial run of the predicting system, the department attempted to predict the actual 1971-72 enrolment based on the actual figures for past years. The percentage of error in their prediction was under one per cent over-all.

Because of the move-in, move-out phenomenon, the Grade 1 figures are the hardest to predict, but the trial run still was just over one per cent in error from the actual figures.

The school board uses the prediction figures in its long-range planning and in calculating how much money it will get from the provincial government, since operating grants are based on enrolment. This helps to plan programs and schools.

CHINESE COMMUNE PAYS $72 A YEAR

PEKING (Reuter) — Publication of the annual figures for a production brigade on a people's commune near Peking has given an insight into the salaries of Chinese peasants.

The figures were contained in an article by the official New China news agency about the No. 7 production brigade of the Hualti commune in Hopei province, southeast of Peking.

The article described how the team — a section of the commune consisting of more than 400 persons — divided up its income. On analysis, the figures showed that the average worker had an annual income of 185 yuan (about $72).

The figure does not mean that an agricultural laborer fares much worse than a factory worker in China's cities.

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter)—A team of researchers from Sydney Technical College will search the Simpson Desert this month for the green Australian night parrot. It was last seen 50 years ago and was thought to have become extinct until recent reports of sightings.

Saanich Tackles Run-Off Surge

A $286,800 Saanich capital drainage program this year is geared toward ultimate redevelopment of the municipal surface drainage system into natural watercourses.

The move was stimulated by exceptional runoff during the past winter, producing heavy flooding in many parts of the municipality. It will work in connection with a beautification plan involving an application for special provincial government greenbelt funds.

A detailed submission for the government grant is in the hands of provincial authorities.

12 PROJECTS

This year's capital spending of $286,000 will be in the form of extensions of permanent projects, or remedial works for the drainage system.

The program generally will bring more order to the Saanich surface drain system through 12 specific projects with amounts stipulated for correcting small problems, for works done in conjunction with sewer projects, for the municipal share of subdivision projects and a $145,000 estimate for work on residential drains along roads and property lines.

Most are expected to be in completion stages by the next rainy season.

Although the use of culvert and underground pipe will be expanded, acting engineer John Cowlin said major watercourses through Saanich would be developed as natural streams with banks high enough to contain freshet water.

In some areas the system would resemble canals with sloping banks planted with grass and shrubs.

The two main streams for which Saanich relies to drain its valleys and contours are Bowker Creek in the eastern part of the municipality, and Colquitz River, draining the west.

A tributary of Colquitz connects it with Swan Lake in the southern part of Saanich, which is earmarked for beautification adjoining the municipal precinct.

Most costly single item of the 1972 program is $29,000 to eliminate a serious erosion problem in Gordon Head, which is connected to neither of the main watercourses.

DESIGN WORK

For many years an outflow pipe has spilled over the bank on to Mt. Douglas Beach in the Ash Road area. This will be diverted by way of Barrie and Bissenden to flow naturally by ditching toward the park, where a ravine carries surface water to the beach.

Design work has started to correct drainage in Maria-McCoy area of the University of Victoria at a cost of $23,000.

On Richmond from Knight to Woodley, for which design is nearly complete, $12,000 will be spent; on Fowler from Sayward to Cordova Bay, $7,000; Interurban south of Quayle, $5,000; Hartland $5,000; Killarney south of Cadboro Bay $4,000; Walter-Obed $4,800; Major-Totem, Midgard - Shelbourne and Sapphire-Walema $3,000 each; Kathleen-Duke $5,000.

In a separate program Saanich will spend $50,000 for asphalt or concrete sidewalks on 10 streets. They are:

Interurban, Marigold to Grange; Cedar Hill, Arrow to Torquay; Grandview, Ferndale to Pomona; Feltham, Fairburn to Tyndall; Arbutus, Finnerty to Ebony; Arrow, Cedar Hill to Senior Citizens; Cowper, Obed to Admirals; Holland, repairing bad crest; Raymond, McKenzie to Kenneth; Arena Road, from Tillicum to arena.

Navy League Gets New Sailboat

The launching of a new fiberglass sailboat at the Navy League of Canada's headquarters on Robert Street Sunday signalled a week of special events.

To be used for training by the Patricia Dufour Navy League Wrenette Corps, the boat was named the Paddy D and received the customary christening in champagne.

Mrs. George Dufour, national chairman of wrenettes, after whom the corps and boat are named, officiated.

The wrenettes raised the money for the boat in fund-raising activities held during the past three years.

Chaplain T. C. Williams officially blessed the boat.

At 7:30 p.m. Tuesday the Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps will hold open house at Robert Street.

Open houses will be held by the Admiral Rayner Navy League Cadet Corps and the wrenette corps at the same time Wednesday and Thursday.

The Navy League branch will hold its annual meeting May 11 at 8 p.m. to elect its new executive.

Death Penalty End Sought

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Association of Social Workers wants capital punishment abolished indefinitely.

Delegates to the association's annual meeting on the weekend voted to press the federal government to extend indefinitely the five-year trial period of abolition of capital punishment, except in cases where policemen or prison guards are murdered.

The association, which has a membership of about 1,135, commended the federal program of prison leaves and temporary absences to permit prison inmates to seek employment and visit families.

Local Man Tops Plowers

Douglas Mar, 6095 Patricia Bay Highway, won the championship class at the 10th annual Saanich plowing match, held Saturday on Willard Mitchell's farm in Central Saanich.

Mar was awarded the Capital City Tally Ho Trophy.

The Archibald Campbell Memorial Trophy for novices went to Thomas Wilson, 4560 West Saanich Road, while the Canadian Legion (Sidney branch) Trophy for boys under 15 was won by Douglas Bickford, 12, of 7871 Simpson.

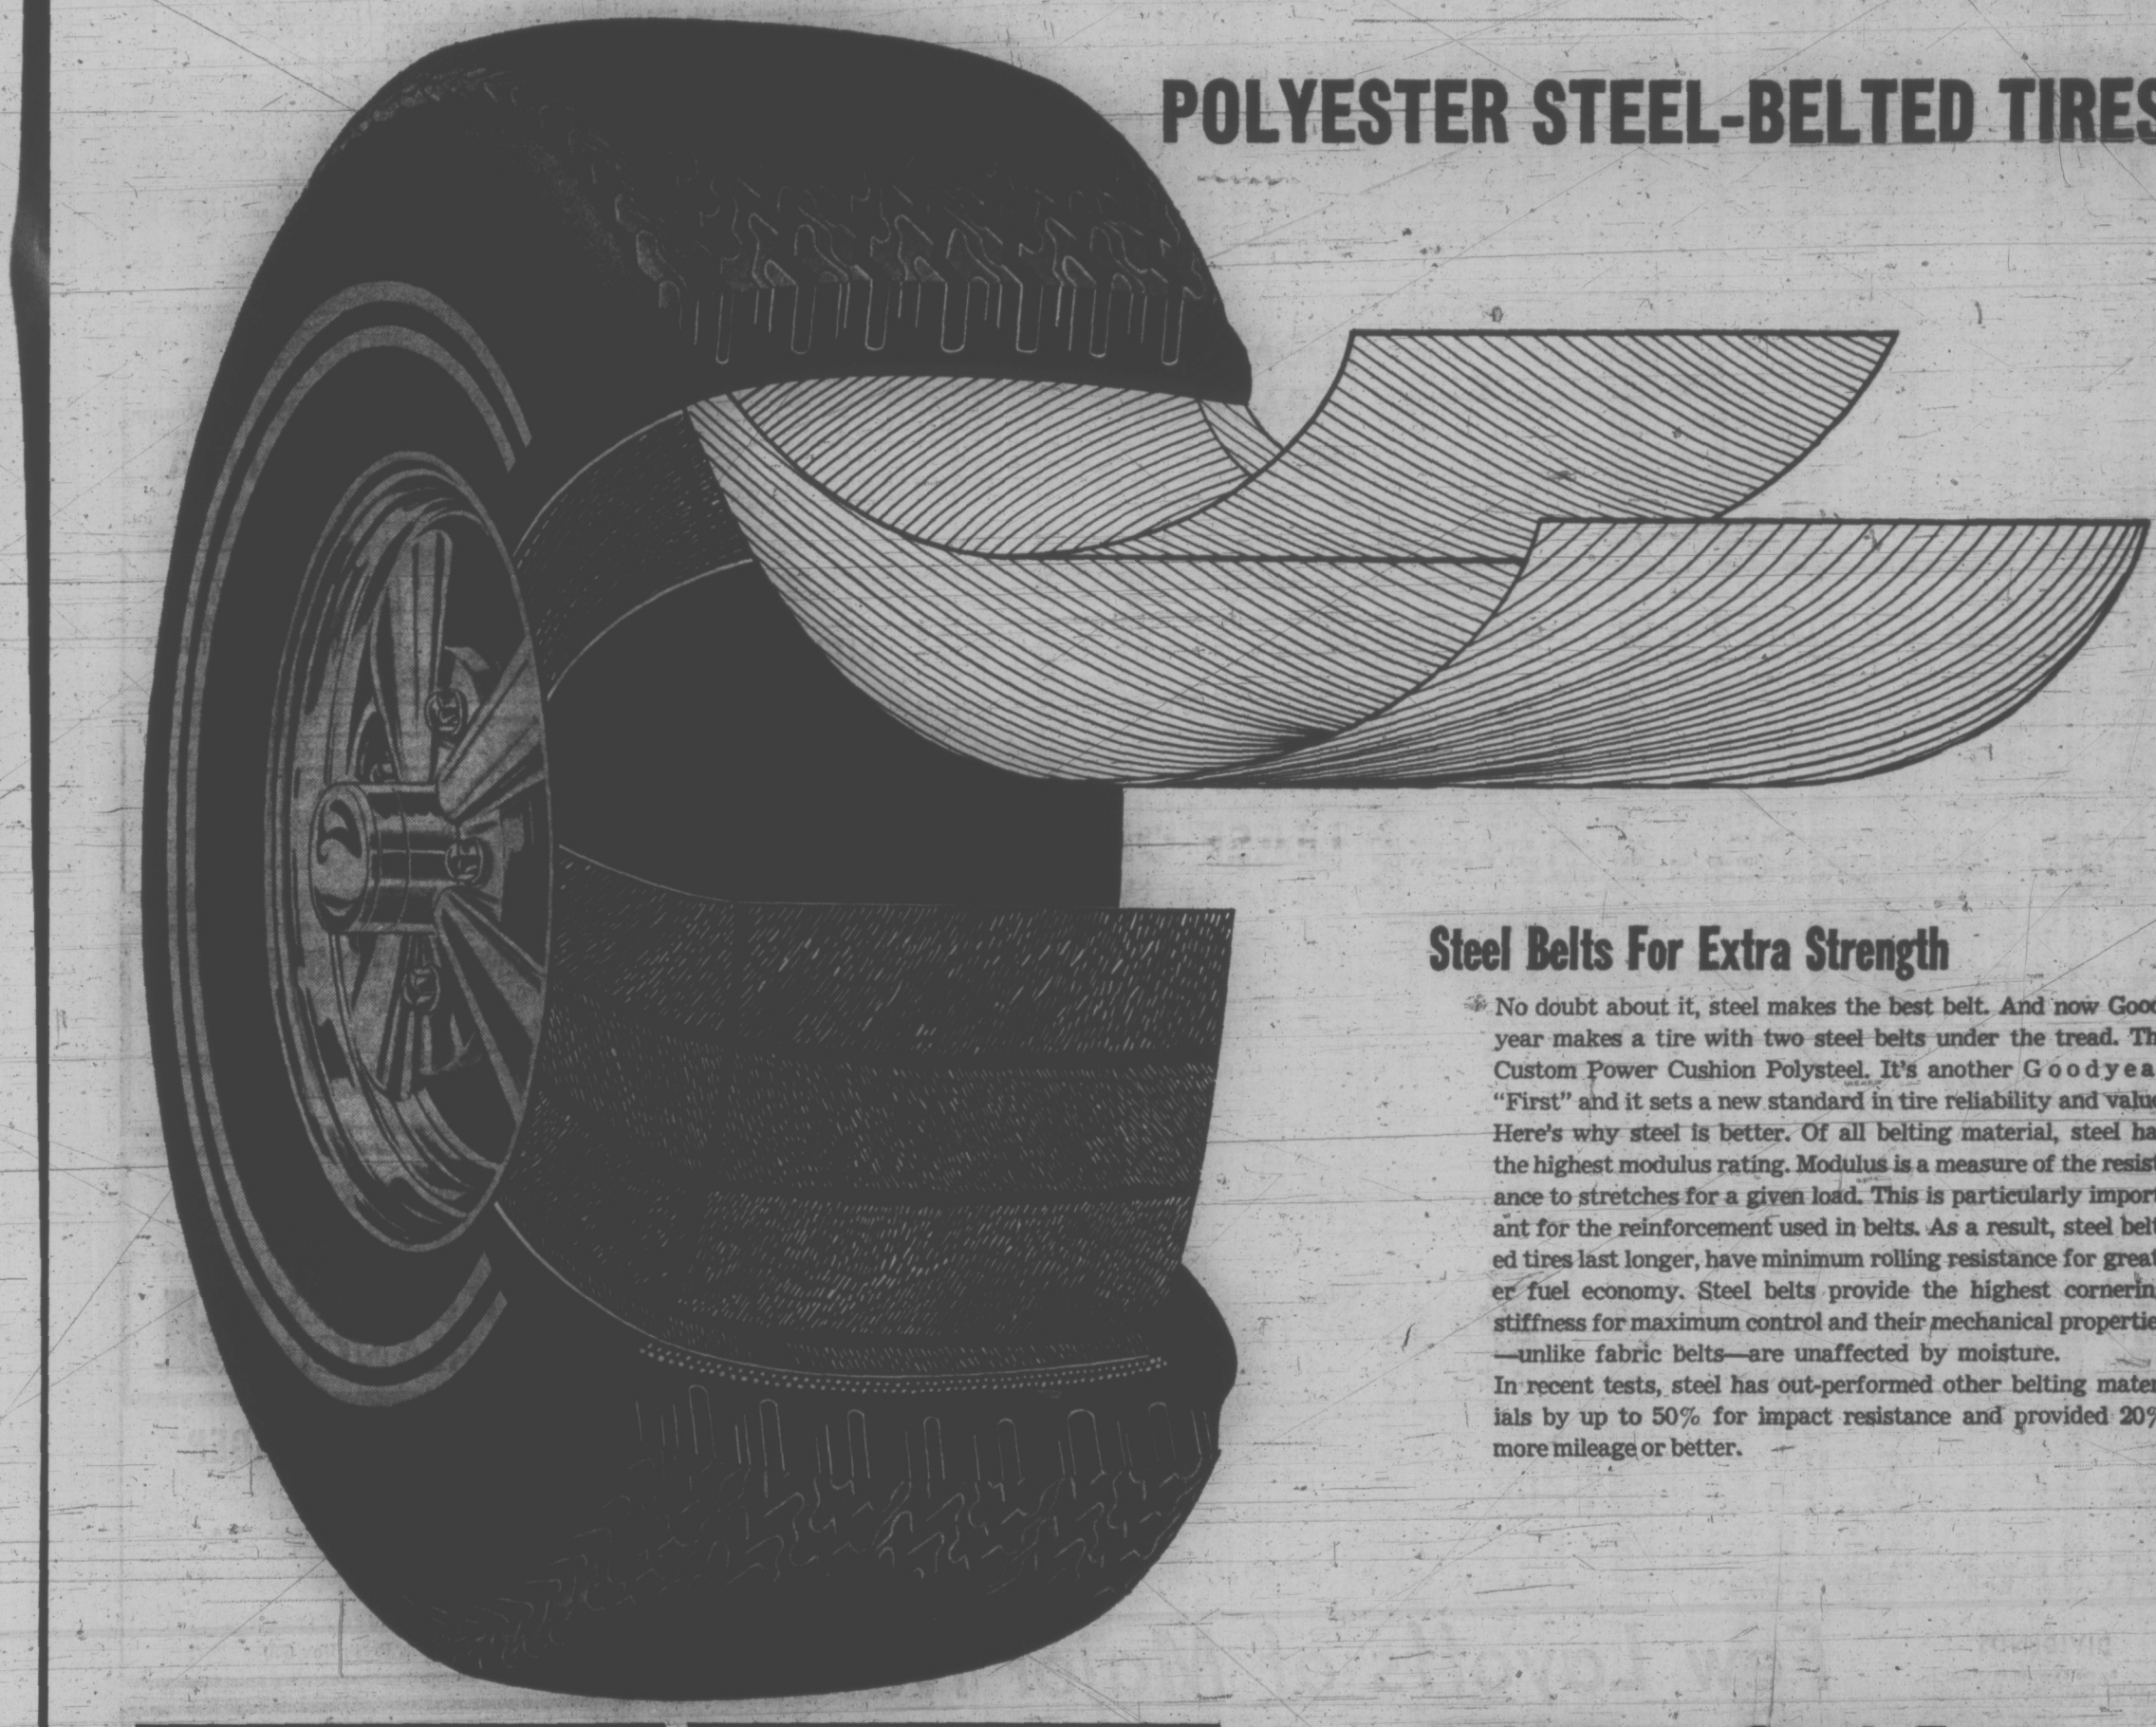
POLYSTEEL

POLYESTER STEEL-BELTED TIRES



Steel Belts For Extra Strength

No doubt about it, steel makes the best belt. And now Goodyear makes a tire with two steel belts under the tread. The Custom Power Cushion Polysteel. It's another Goodyear "First" and it sets a new standard in tire reliability and value. Here's why steel is better. Of all belting material, steel has the highest modulus rating. Modulus is a measure of the resistance to stretches for a given load. This is particularly important for the reinforcement used in belts. As a result, steel belted tires last longer, have minimum rolling resistance for greater fuel economy. Steel belts provide the highest cornering stiffness for maximum control and their mechanical properties —unlike fabric belts—are unaffected by moisture.

In recent tests, steel has out-performed other belting materials by up to 50% for impact resistance and provided 20% more mileage or better.

Pros Short; Start Rumors

VANCOUVER (CP) — Thomas Dohm, president of the Vancouver Stock Exchange has warned shareholders in Afton Mines Ltd. and Equatorial Resources, about the value of shares in the two companies.

Dohm said Sunday that the prices of shares in the two companies are being affected by rumors spread by "pros" and that small investors are having to sell at forced-down prices.

He warned shareholders to pay no attention to rumors "which may be purposely circulated to drive down the share price in order to help those in present 'short' positions to buy in stock at a cheap price so that they can cover their short positions."

"Selling short" involves the sale of shares not actually owned by the seller at the time of the transaction.

"The stock exchange is the only place I know where you can do it and not go to jail," Dohm said.

"The real danger in it occurs when small, legitimate speculators are forced to sell their shares in some instances by groups of "pros' who spread malicious, untrue rumors about a company in order to force down the true price of shares in that company. The short-selling 'pros' then buy in at the cheaper price.

"It has come to my attention over the past week that such forces have been at work on the Vancouver Stock Exchange, and in particular dealing with the border dispute between Afton Mines and Equatorial Resources."

B.C. Supreme Court earlier set aside an injunction that prevented Equatorial from drilling on its Kamloops copper prospect.

The injunction was granted last week after Afton claimed that Equatorial had trespassed on Afton property.

Mr. Justice Peter Seaton said his ruling to set aside the injunction has no bearing on the ownership of the claims.

He said if Equatorial was right about owning the claims "it would indeed be oppressive to stop it from drilling and allowing the plaintiff (Afton) to drill.

"I may be so naive as to wonder why either wish to drill before ownership is established," the judge said.

Steel Co. of Canada Ltd., Canada's major steel producer, reports first-quarter profit of $18,382,000 or 75 cents a share, up from $11,764,000 or 48 cents a share in the corresponding period a year earlier.

Noranda

The president of Noranda Mines Ltd. said development of primary industry should be a basic part of any industrial strategy for Canada.

Alfred Powis told the annual meeting of shareholders that while primary industries such as mining have been criticized for paying little in taxes, creating too little employment and for contributing to foreign domination, their development is necessary to achieve an over-all balanced growth.

"Unless we stimulate the development of primary industry, we are likely to have no growth at all."

Noranda reported a first-quarter profit of $12.2 million or 50 cents a share, compared with $12.1 million or 50 cents a share during the first quarter last year.

HB Oil

Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd. had net profit of $5,748,000 or 29 cents a share for the first three months of 1972 compared with $4,928,000 or 25 cents a share the previous period.

PanCana

PanCana Industries Ltd. increased 1972 first-quarter earnings to $684,000, up from $589,000 the corresponding period.

The earnings were equivalent to 21 cents a share compared with 18 cents a share during the first three months of 1971.

Gross revenues were $7,749,000 compared with $6,398,000.

Price

Price Co. reports net earnings of $820,000 or eight cents a share for the three months ended March 31, compared with $116,000 or one cent a share for the first quarter of 1971.

Sales for the first quarter totalled $44,186,000, a 3 per cent improvement over 1971.

Price reported a $34,000 loss in mining income during the first quarter of 1972, compared with income of $762,000 in the same period of 1971. The loss was caused by a protracted strike at the Buchans mine in late 1971 which interrupted the program and depleted concentrate stocks.

Bailey Chief Ranger-Wrecker

Young Bruin Pots Winner Fractures Stewart's Jaw

BOSTON (CP) — No one could blame Ron Stewart if he declines to play in Boston Garden from now on without wearing a helmet.

The veteran New York Ranger was almost decapitated by Boston's Garnet Bailey, the young centre who administered the final coup with his game winning tally late in the game as the Bruins edged the visitors 6-5 Sunday in the opener of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup final.

The second game in the series goes here Tuesday night at 4:30 p.m. PDT.

Bailey rattled his elbow off Stewart's jaw in the second period. The Ranger winger was slow getting his skates under him but managed to finish the game.

X-rays disclosed a fracture in the same area Stewart's jaw was broken here earlier in the season. He was an innocent victim, sitting on the bench with Vancouver Canucks on Nov. 18, when a Bobby Orr shot hit him.

"Bailey ran 30 feet and gave Stewart an elbow you could see from here to New York and the referee didn't see it or call a penalty," lamented Emile Francis, Rangers' general-manager coach in a post-game interview.

Moments later Boston's Johnny Bucyk didn't escape referee Bill Friday's eye when he sent Bill Fairbairn sprawling and the incident appeared to spark the New Yorkers, who rebounded from a 5-1 deficit to chase the Bruins to the edge.

The Bruins spotted New York an early 1-0 lead, regrouped their forces to take a 4-1 lead into the second period —including two goals while Boston defenceman Don Awrey was in the penalty box —then exchanged goals in the second period.

Boston's Ken Hodge was the dominant scorer, connecting on the only three shots he had in the game. Bailey and Derek Sanderson also made good on their only shots while Fred Stanfield hit on one of two to account for the Boston production.

Dale Rolfe, Rod Gilbert, Vic Hadfield, Walt Tkaczuk and Bruce MacGregor were the New York marksmen as the Rangers lived up to their pregame reputation of making their big move in the third period.

Hadfield, Tkaczuk and MacGregor beat Boston goaltender Gerry Cheevers in the third to knot the score at 5-5 before Bailey produced the winner in the 18th minute of play.

Notwithstanding complaints of inefficiency from Francis and Boston coach Tom Johnson, Friday enforced the rules strictly and after the first period the players stuck mainly to the game although the Bruins were tagged with four straight penalties in the second.

The Bruins came out hitting, much the same as they did against Toronto Maple Leafs in the quarter-final round, and New York defenceman Gary Doak upset Francis' game plans by getting ejected from the game for retaliating in the first period.

But the Rangers were then forced to use defenceman Jim Neilson more frequently than Francis had intended. Neilson had just returned to the lineup after being sidelined for two weeks with a mangled finger, suffered in New York's opening semi-final game with Chicago Black Hawks.

Neilson still has difficulty holding his stick, as does Hadfield who broke the thumb on his right hand late in the season.

Another ailing Ranger, Jean Ratelle, was back in action for the first time since March 1, when he suffered a broken ankle.

What killed the Rangers' chances was a two-minute penalty to Bruin defenceman Awrey at 16:44 of the first period. Before it ended, Sanderson and Hodge blinked the light behind Giacomin, who blew hot and cold in the game, to propel Boston into a 4-1 lead.

"Those two shorthanded goals against us were damaging. We gave them away," said Francis.

Relief Snub Hurts Wilf

DALLAS (AP) — "I feel like I can play again now," Billy Casper said.

The veteran professional golfer, winner of more than 40 tour titles but slump-ridden a year and a half, was talking about a changed mental attitude that he credited with helping him to a one-stroke lead after three rounds of the rain-delayed, $125,000 Byron Nelson golf classic.

"I'm more relaxed," Casper said after a one-under-par 69 in Sunday's third round that gave him a 54-hole total of 202, eight under par on the Preston Trail Golf Club course.

"Mainly, I'm thinking better, better than I have all year," said Casper.

And it was thinking, or lack of it, that may have led to a three-over-par seven on the 17th hole that cost Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg a share of the top spot in this chase for a $25,000 first prize, more than he has won in any of six previous seasons on the American tour.

He failed to call for relief—to which he was entitled—when his tee shot was plugged in the mud. The slightly-built 34-year-old from Winnipeg was tied for the lead at that point, but tried to hit a six iron out of the mud. It caught a creek and he later three-putted for the seven.

A tournament official later confirmed that Homenuik was entitled to a free drop from the mud, if he had called for a ruling.

"I didn't know it was plugged, but it was and I tried to hit it out," said Homenuik.

"I guess I should have called for an official, but I didn't."

That left him with a 71 and a 205 total going into today's final round. The tournament schedule was pushed back one day when Thursday's play was rained out.

"I'll just try to keep plugging along," Homenuik said.

CONCERN shows as Glen Meadows' Brian Sluggett studies route to 18th green during Times Island Open golf quarter-final match against Oak Bay's Vaughan Trapp. Despite good recovery bid, Sluggett bowed, one up, to former two-time champ Sunday. See story on right.

Gordie Found Way To Avoid Putting

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Vaughan Trapp made his putter behave when it was necessary while Gordie Rands breathed easier when he didn't have to putt the deciding stroke.

In overcoming pesky putting problems Sunday, Trapp and Rands accompanied Al Zimmerman and favored Bill Wakeham into the semi-finals of the 23rd annual Times Vancouver Island Open golf championship.

Trapp, never ahead until he tapped in a 30-inch putt on the final hole, nipped Glen Meadows amateur Brian Sluggett, one up.

Rands came within an inch of scoring a hole-in-one on the 17th hole at Uplands, and was conceded an eight-inch birdie putt that closed out Uplands' Bill Shvetz, 2 and 1.

SUB-PAR EFFORT

Zimmerman, the 63-year-old former tour pro now playing out of Glen Meadows, sidelined Cedar Hill's Greg Barnes, two up, while Wakeham uncorked a sub-par performance to eliminate Brian Gandy, also of Cedar Hill, 5 and 3.

So that sets up next Sunday's 36-hole semi-finals at Victoria Golf Club. Three pros and an amateur, Rands, the 19-year-old amateur from Cedar Hill, will face Zimmerman, while Wakeham, the defending champion from Cowichan, meets Trapp, the two-time winner from Oak Bay.

They'll be joined on the Oak Bay course by the Gorge Vale trio of Alastair Fulton, Terry Moody and Bill Burrows, and Dick Sparks of Uplands — the semi-finalists in the handicap competition for the Hugh Francis Trophy.

Sparks tripped Jeff Jones of Gorge Vale, one up; Fulton beat Rick Carmichael of March Meadows, 4 and 3; Moody struggled to the 20th before eliminating Frank Kilshaw of Uplands, and Burrows downed Gorge clubmate Mike Kolb, 5 and 4, in Sunday's quarter-finals.

PUTTING PROBLEMS

But now that "they're there," Rands and Trapp would prefer to look forward to next Sunday's semi-final action rather than recount their quarter-final struggles.

Both had their problems on Uplands' greens.

"At least I'm getting better. I took only 38 putts today," quipped Trapp, who twice pulled out victories on the 18th and had to go an extra hole for his other victory in the Island's premier match-play tournament.

Trapp scored an approximate three-over-par 73 to defeat the tenacious Glen Meadows southpaw. But the Oak Bay assistant pro was far from pleased with his putting. He four-putted the second hole and three-putted two others.

Sluggett was never behind until he took a bogey five on the 18th. Missing the green with his approach, Sluggett chipped to within eight feet of the hole but missed the try for a par. Trapp then two-putted from about 30 feet for his par and the victory.

Trapp also got good action from his putter on the 17th. He dropped a difficult, 12-footer to salvage a half after his tee shot caught a trap on the 153-yard hole.

LANDED INCH AWAY

The long-hitting Rands was about five over par for the 17 holes "with 37 putts." The burly Cedar Hill youngster three-putted five greens.

Naturally, he was delighted when he didn't have to putt out on the decisive hole. One up on Shvetz standing on the 17th tee, Rands spanked a five-iron shot directly at the hole. It landed hole-high, but an inch to the right, spun off to about eight inches from the cup.

Shvetz conceded the tap-in after missing his birdie attempt from off the fringe.

LIFT ON ELEVENTH

Shvetz, the 41-year-old Uplands greens superintendent, also experienced one putting disaster. It was, said Rands, "a gift that was the turning point in our match."

Shvetz was one up playing the par-three 11th. Rands hooked his tee shot over to the neighboring seventh fairway and eventually recovered to take a four.

Shvetz also took a four when he three-putted, missing a second from about three feet.

"That half gave me a big lift," said Rands. "I was looking at being two down."

CHIPPED IN FOR BIRD

Wakeham, as expected, won. The 28-year-old pro was two under par for the 15 holes played. He missed hitting three greens in regulation figures.

The misses, however, didn't help Gandy's cause. Wakeham chipped in for a birdie three on the first hole. He followed that display by rolling in a 65-footer for a birdie three on the second hole, and the 21-year-old Gandy began to wonder.

When Wakeham missed hitting two other greens in regulation figures, he chipped to within six inches twice for "gimme" pars.

SLOW START FOR GREG

The remarkable Zimmerman took advantage of a slow start by Barnes to grab an early lead, then squelched the Cedar Hill player's comeback hopes with three vital putts and, as always, superb chips and approach shots.

Zimmerman, three up after four holes and two up after nine, carded an approximate four-over-par 74. He rammed in "good putts" to halve the 10th and 16th, and another important long putt to win the 11th.

Barnes fought back by winning 12 and 14 but went two down when Zimmerman won the 15th. Barnes took Zimmerman to the 18th when he rapped in a 20-foot putt for a birdie two on the 17th.

Keep Punches Up Ali Tells Chuvalo

VANCOUVER (CP) — If George Chuvalo fights his usual brawling style, today's heavyweight battle could turn into "a low fight," says former world champion Muhammad Ali.

Ali, who took a 15-round decision over Chuvalo in Toronto in March, 1966, claims the hardnosed Canadian was hitting him with low blows all night in that fight and won't get away with it again.

"He's a dirty fighter, he's always punching low," Ali said.

"I'm going to be the first one to clean him up. He's gonna have one time to hit me low and after that, if the referee doesn't stop the second low blow or take points off, I'm gonna hit him low right back.

"It'll just be a low fight, 'cause I'm tired of him fighting dirty."

Chuvalo, who has never been off his feet in 86 fights, dismissed Ali's complaints about low blows as nonsense.

"In our last fight, Ali was wearing his trunks up around here," Chuvalo said, drawing a line midway up his chest.

"It's just like those cartoons, where the rabbit pulls up his trunks until all you can see are his ears. He's just trying to take away some of my best punches, to the solar plexus."

Both fighters are expected to weight in at 216 pounds. Each camp won one battle over the size of the ring and size of the gloves. The ring will be 18 feet by 18 feet an advantage to Ali, while the fighters will wear eight-ounce gloves, a concession to Chuvalo.

Price Does It Again

Bill Price is still grabbing the lion's share of super-stock laurels at Western Speedway.

Price, who won the first two main events at the Langford oval this season, scored a sweep during the third car-racing program on Sunday.

In addition to his triumph in the 35-lap feature race, Price brought most of the crowd of 1,932 to their feet with victories in the trophy dash and fast heat.

Rick O'Dell, who is rated as the likeliest challenger to Price this season, spun out on the fourth lap of the main and fell two laps behind — a handicap he couldn't overcome.

John Currier led the race for the first 16 laps before Price slipped past on the outside and went on to win.

"It's been a long time since anyone won three in a row," said track manager Reg Midgley after the race. "And nobody, as far as we can tell, has won the first three main events before in any class."

O'Dell won the Corby Cup for the most main event victories last season with five triumphs.

Richard Cudby took advantage of an opportunity to win the 25-lap stock car main.

Al Wade led for the first 15 laps before tangling with Tony Johnson on the 16th lap during a fight for the lead. Wade struck the grandstand wall but was uninjured while Cudby, who had also been in the battle for first place, evaded the pile-up and led the rest of the way.

Al Miller won the claimer race.

Wilt Regains Scoring Punch

LOS ANGELES (AP) — By design or otherwise, big Wilt Chamberlain of Los Angeles Lakers is scoring again and he's likely to keep it up for awhile.

The seven-foot-one centre dominated both ends of the court—scoring 23 points and grabbing 24 rebounds—in Sunday's 106-92 victory over New York Knicks at the Forum.

Chamberlain took only 11 shots last Wednesday night and scored 12 points when the Lakers lost 114-92 in the opener of the best-of-seven final. The National Basketball Association championship playoffs resume Wednesday night with game three in New York's Madison Square Garden.

Dave DeBusschere, the Knicks' forward who the Lakers feel is a big key in the series because of his outside shooting and rebounding ability, has a pulled muscle in his right side as a result of Sunday's game.

The Knicks weren't nearly as sharp as in the series opener when they made 72 per cent of their first-half field goal attempts.

The big question was whether DeBusschere can play on Wednesday night, and if he does, will he be 100 per cent?

Although starting the third period DeBusschere had to depart when he couldn't lift his right hand above his head.

The Lakers got 31 points from guard Gail Goodrich, but the deciding factors in the game appeared to be DeBusschere's injury and Chamberlain's shooting.

In the American Association, Virginia Squires bounced New York Nets 116-107 Saturday to take a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven East Division playoff final.

Finley Sees Red in Pitch for Blue

Times News Services

Vida Blue's name might be an Oakland contract now if baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn hadn't "arbitrarily involved himself and forced himself" into the salary dispute, according to Athletics owner Charles O. Finley.

Finley, still hopeful of signing his brilliant pitcher—on his own terms—switched targets Sunday from Blue's agent, Robert Gerst, to Kuhn.

"It's unfortunate because I thought I had Vida on the verge of signing until he (Kuhn) stepped in," said Finley.

"The commissioner arbitrarily involved himself and forced himself into contract negotiations with Blue, and I do not believe he had the authority to do so," he said.

An apparent contract agreement fell through Friday after a 22-hour meeting in Chicago, when Blue refused to sign a joint announcement publicizing details of the pact.

The next day Kuhn, using what he called his general powers to act in "the best interests of baseball," ordered Finley to leave open his offer and said he would urge Blue to accept it.

"That's when I saw red," Finley said.

Finley said he had offered a $50,000 contract for 1972, plus $13,000 as a bonus for 1971—$5,000 for attorney's fees and $8,000 for Blue's college education. Finley said Gerst initially demanded $115,000.

Blue earned $14,950 last year.

FIGURES on bowling balls tell big part of story after Jessie Holding and Keith Snelling captured Times Trophies and cash in Bowler-of-the-Year tenpin rolloffs at Mayfair Lanes Sunday. Jessie notched 225 in second game on way to women's title and Keith battered pins for whopping 254 in middle of three-game series as he cruised to men's crown. (John McKay photo.)

Jessie, Keith Snap Records in Rolloffs

By DOUG PEDEN
Times Staff

The eighth time was the payoff occasion for Jessie Holding and Keith Snelling Sunday at Mayfair Lanes as records for the event went tumbling in Times Bowler-of-the-Year tenpin rolloffs.

Both listed among rolloff qualifiers for the eighth time, Mrs. Holding and Snelling jolted rivals with blockbusters midway through their three-game, scratch series as they captured rolloff crowns for the first time.

After stepping into the lead with an opening score of 204, Jessie blasted hopes of opponents with a string of strikes for 225 in her second game before finishing with 181 to win the women's division title with a total of 610.

Well off the pace in 11th position after an opening effort of 120, Snelling rocketed to the top in the men's section as he bombarded the pins for a spectacular 254 in his second game. The 39-year-old stylist started his final game with two strikes and wound up with a solid 220 to wrap up the crown with a record-setting 654, snapping the former rolloff mark of 637, posted by Derek Leonard in 1966.

Mrs. Holding also established a new rolloff standard in the distaff division, surpassing the 589 that gave Reta Clarke a tenpin triumph in 1969.

For their victories, Mrs. Holding and Snelling each collected a Times Trophy and each also received the bonus award of $100 that goes to any rolloff champion who is a daily subscriber to the Victoria Times.

Bowlers qualified for the rolloffs by winning weekly awards in the 26-week, ninth annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition — open to all bowlers rolling in leagues on southern Vancouver Island lanes.

Fivepin rolloffs were staged on April 23, with Vi Squires and Fred Hickey collecting trophies and $100 bonus prizes.

Finishing in the runner-up spot behind Mrs. Holding was Carol Newcomb, who hit 219 in her third game for a total of 570.

Former rolloff queen Lorna Pollock was third at 567, five pins in front of Pat Metcalfe.

Kart Zwick and Brian Grexton kept the pressure on Snelling through the final game in the men's title chase.

Despite a couple of splits, Zwick rattled the pins for a 234 tally that boosted him into second place at 629, three in front of Grexton, who had games of 193, 232 and 211.

Former rolloff champion Henry Loo (214-180-215) was the only other contestant to top the 600 mark, posting 608 to wind up in the fourth spot.

Assistant-manager and mechanic at Mayfair, Snelling had trouble finding the range with his sweeping hook in the first game.

"The alleys were very fast and I slid by on a few spares, he said. "But I seemed to be rolling my banana ball better in the last two games.

"And I got a lucky one in the ninth," added Keith, who posted averages of 195 and 193, best in the city, while bowling in two leagues during the past season.

The "lucky one" came in his last game after he had failed to mark in the eighth frame. He got a strike from "a very thin hit" and followed with another strike in the 10th frame to erase final hopes of his pursuers.

Mrs. Holding appeared likely to squander her lead in the second game when she followed a strike with splits in the second and third frames.

Jessie spared the next two frames and then ran off a sizzling string of seven strikes for the 225 tally that left her with a whopping lead.

"I knew I had to reach, and I tried to keep the speed I can do something with," she said of her Sunday efforts.

And since she is planning a trip to Europe later this month, Mrs. Holding had an extra reason for jubilation.

"This," she said of her $100 prize, "is extra money for Paris."

Jack Offers Argument On Behalf of Veterans

Some people believe that men who have been around for more than four decades shouldn't risk the hazards of rugby, but Jack Patrick is presenting a convincing argument on behalf of aging athletes.

Patrick, an inside centre, scampered for three trys Sunday at Royal Roads to spark the Blacks to a 26-26 deadlock with the Reds in a wide-open exhibition match.

Leading the Reds was Derek Hyde-Ley, who connected for a try and three conversions.

JAPANESE TEAM

The effort was the first in a series of Victoria Rugby Union exhibitions for the "Ebb Tide" side that is preparing for an Oct. 4 clash with the touring Japanese over-40 Wak-Waks.

On other pitches, youthful Victoria clubs won and lost in a pair of championship contests.

Velox got trys from Harry Carter and Mike Adams and a convert from Rob Hutchison to defeat Cowichan 10-3 in a Vancouver Island fourth division Colt division (under 17) final at Cowichan.

Joe Dougan had a penalty goal for Cowichan.

Vancouver Meralomas squeaked by James Bay 22-21 in the B.C. junior league final at University of B.C. despite a spectacular effort by Archie Douglas.

Douglas scored a pair of trys, kicked three converts and added a penalty goal to account for 17 of the James Bay points. Rod McDonald scored Victoria's other try.

For Meralomas, John Billingsley had two trys, Kim Rymer scored one and Jay Monfort kicked two penalty goals and two converts.

Experienced Handed Back Seat in Cycling

VANCOUVER — Novice riders from Victoria Wheelers Bicycle Club fared better than their experienced clubmates during the Carlton Cycle Criterion here Sunday.

Stuart Cox of Victoria won the 10-mile novice event with a time of 25:05 minutes while clubmate Eric Smith placed second ahead of Al Clark of Vancouver.

Victoria riders Tom Morris and Karl Fawthorpe placed fourth and fifth, respectively, in the 40-mile "A" class race, which was won by Max Grace of Vancouver in a time of 1:22.10 hours.

Vancouver's Hugh Harden won the 30-mile "B" class event in 1:04.30 while Pat Ferris and Peter Volgelaar of Victoria finished eighth and 12th.

Steve Philabaum of Seattle won the 20-mile "C" class race in 53:15 minutes. Brian Henderson of VWs was third while clubmate George Allen placed fourth.

Bakers Lose To Richmond

RICHMOND—Richmond defeated Victoria McDonald's Bread 13-8 Sunday in the opening game of the B.C. Junior "B" Lacrosse League season.

Rich Robbins led Richmond with three goals.

Gordie Neilson paced Victoria's attack with three goals while others were added by Don Ferguson (2), Gary Lockyer, Dennis Fellman and Glen Eversfield.

Oil Kings Rebound To Deadlock Series

REGINA (CP) — Edmonton Oil Kings scored two goals in the opening period and went on to defeat Regina Pats 3-0 Sunday night to even their best-of-seven Western Canada Hockey League final series at one game each.

Regina won the opener 5-2 Saturday night.

The third and fourth games are scheduled for Edmonton Tuesday and Thursday, with the fifth game back here Friday.

Marcel Comeau took advantage of defensive lapses by Regina to score the first two Edmonton goals at 14:33 and 19:06 of the opening period Sunday. John Rogers scored the third at 18:33 of the final period.

The Pats did everything but score in the second period as they outshot the Oil Kings 19-13. However, the shots-on-goal total doesn't include a goal post hit and one that was picked out of the air by Oil Kings' defenceman Keith Mackie.

Al Barrett, Ken Marit, Glen Burdon and Clarke Gillies scored to give Pats a 4-1 lead in the first period Saturday. Dennis Sobchuk added the fifth Regina tally late in the third period.

Tom Bladon and Rogers replied for Edmonton.

IRISH XV WINS

LONDON (AP) — Ireland defeated France 24-14 in their International Rugby Union meeting Saturday.

Thorne Takes Legion Event

Charlie Thorne of Victoria Evergreen Track Club nipped Jeff Hawker by 50 seconds Saturday to win the Canadian Legion 15-mile road race.

Thorne, who also competes on the University of Victoria track team with Hawker, completed the distance in 1:21.54 hours.

Bruce Shaw of Victoria Flying-Y placed third in the field of 15 runners with a time of 1:23.02.

Lew Labored Long in Bid for Job

RED SOX NIP RANGERS

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I'm trying to win a starting job in the rotation," Boston's Lew Krausse said, and his manager, Eddie Kasko, quickly responded: "Krausse is certainly going to get another start after the helluva job he did today."

What Krausse did Sunday was give up a single to Len Randle, the first batter he faced, then hold Texas hitless until the ninth inning when Randle nicked him for another hit.

Unfortunately, Boston wasn't getting any runs for Lew. And so, after nine virtually flawless innings, he was removed for a pinch-hitter.

But all was not lost. Carlton Fish had doubled in the top of the 10th before Bob Burda batted for Krausse. And after Burda was given an intentional walk, Tommy Harper crashed a two-run double to the left centre field wall, then Luis Aparicio doubled Harper home.

And after Bill Lee came on in relief to set down the side in order in the bottom of the 10th, the Red Sox had a 3-0 triumph over the Rangers and Krausse had his first victory in a Boston uniform.

YANKS, TWINS SPLIT

In Sunday's other American League games, New York Yankees beat Minnesota 5-4 before the Twins won the second game of their doubleheader by the same score, Milwaukee Brewers beat Oakland Athletics 3-1, Chicago White Sox defeated Detroit Tigers 6-3, California Angels edged Baltimore Orioles 4-3 and Cleveland Indians outlasted Kansas City Royals 5-3 in 16 innings before the second game of their twin bill was rained out.

"It was the longest I've pitched since last August," said the weary Krausse, who came to the Red Sox as part of a 10-player deal with Milwaukee.

He got the start because Marty Pattin had a back injury. And midway in the game, the work and Texas heat were getting the best of him. And hitting a two-bagger didn't help matters.

Rusty Torres' tie-breaking pinch double in the bottom of the ninth inning gave the Yanks the opening game and Rod Carew's tie-breaking two-run single in the eighth inning of the nightcap provided the Twins with a split.

In the National League, Pittsburgh Pirate manager Bill Virdon commented that "it's just a matter of time before we start doing our thing."

They'd better hurry — they've lost five straight games already.

The defending world champions, who never dropped more than four in a row during last year's run to the pennant, continued to spin Sunday when beaten 6-1 by Atlanta Braves.

pitching, which helped them beat the Baltimore Orioles in the 1971 World Series, is nowhere in sight so far this year. None of the starters has lasted a full game.

Virdon held a closed-door meeting with the Pirates after the game which plunged the club's mark to 5-8. The manager promised better things than the current fifth-place status in the East.

In the National League's other games Sunday, Chicago Cubs defeated Cincinnati Reds 6-4; Houston Astros beat St. Louis Cardinals 7-6; Los Angeles Dodgers downed New York Mets 7-0; Montreal Expos topped San Francisco 5-2 in the first game, then dropped the second 13-3, and Philadelphia Phillies took two from San Diego Padres, 6-1 and 3-1.

Top-Ranked Ted Rolls Into Eights

Top-seeded Ted Davies of Oak Bay swept by Walter Lysak of the Racquet Club in straight sets Sunday and advanced to the men's singles quarter-finals of Victoria's B.C. Festival of Sports tennis tournament.

Davies and clubmate John Nichol then teamed up to crush D. Wild and E. Payne 6-0, 6-0.

Meanwhile, Sandy Hameon, of the Racquet Club top-seeded in women's play, fended off a pesky performance by clubmate Brenda Cameron, 6-2, 7-6.

Ireland Lags In Final Drag Round

Keith Winterbottom of Port Moody, behind the wheel of an H-MP Ford Falcon, defeated Dennis Ireland of Victoria in the final round of the modified eliminator bracket before a season-opening crowd of approximately 2,100 fans Sunday at Van-Isle Dragways.

Ireland was driving a D-MP 1955 Chevrolet.

In the super-stock bracket, Ry McDonald of Richmond booted his SS-PA '56 Chev to victory over Terry Hardy of Vancouver, who was driving a SS-DA '63 Plymouth.

Howard Hilborn of Port Alberni won stock eliminator honors in his C-SA '72 Chevelle by beating Campbell River's Art Porin, who is campaigning in a B-S '69 Dodge Dart.

Next drag-racing action is scheduled for May 14.

United's Effort Enough To Topple Westminster

Victoria West-United didn't play like champions Saturday, but then they didn't have to.

United, first-place finishers in the Pacific Coast Soccer League, played just well enough to scrape by New Westminster Blues 1-0 in a semi-final contest before 384 fans at Royal Athletic Park.

Dean Stokes headed in the winning goal on a pass from Dan Lomas 16 minutes into the second half. Prior to the goal, both teams played a tight-checking game that offered good scoring chances.

Blues, who needed to win a special playoff to qualify for the fourth and final playoff position, couldn't generate much offence, particularly when United fell into a defensive shell after the goal.

United coach Frank Grealy wasn't enthused about his team's performance but did think Victoria had the edge in play and, with some finish around the goal, "might have had a couple more goals."

"We weren't working and running after passing the ball," said Grealy. "We weren't mobile enough."

He was the first to suggest that United must be "100 per cent better" against Paul's Canadians next Sunday in Vancouver when the two teams meet for the Coast League championship.

The final is a two-game, total-goal series. The second game will be played in Victoria May 13. Paul's finished in second place, just one point back of United, and trimmed North Shore 4-2 in the other semi-final last weekend.

ROBARTS HELPS

Pete Bobarts, who filled in for Howie Anderson, out with the flu, played well at right back. The fill-in from Vic West of the Victoria and District League and goalie Barry Sadler turned out to be the steadiest players on the field.

Sadler, who chalked up his sixth shutout of the year, made his biggest save in the last 10 minutes, diving out to block a shot by Bill Sinclair that was marked for the tying goal.

Blues' goalie Robin Davies, kept slightly busier, was called upon to make his best stops on Jan Bentley and Stokes.

Several United players were honored at half time during presentation of team awards. Captain Brian Robinson was presented the President's Trophy as the club's most valuable player on and off the field.

Tom Forrester, league-scoring champion, received the George Pearkes Trophy as the club's leading scorer.

Ranjit Dillon earned the Evening Optimists Award as the most improved player, and fullback Ray Telford and centre-half Jim Irvine were named co-winners of the Pearkes Trophy as best defensive players.

Westminster Blues — Robin Davies, Doug Smith, Gordy Glover, Tom Westwater, Sandy Beveridge, Pete Nolan, Doug Wilson, Ken Phillips, Bill Sinclair, Ron Price, Doug Cannon. Reserves: Rusty Bruce, Joe Liddle, Neil Calver.

Referee — Ed Hipsey, Victoria.

England Drops Opener

(Times News Services)

West Germany defeated England, 3-1, in the European Nations Cup quarter-finals Saturday with two dramatic goals in the last five minutes.

Belgium and Italy tied, 0-0, in the first leg of their two-game, total-goal quarter-final series, played in Milan.

A sellout crowd of 100,000 in London's Wembley Stadium watched the teams battle to a 1-1 tie until five minutes from the end, with Ulli Hoeness scoring for the Germans in the first half and Francis Lee equalizing after the interval.

Then England captain Bobby Moore gave away a penalty and Gunter Netzer scored from the spot. Gerd Mueller made it 3-1 three minutes later.

Goalkeeper Piot starred for Belgium, making five brilliant saves.

There was a crowd of 80,000 at Milan's San Siro Stadium, where no foreign team has ever beaten Italy and where no foreign player has scored against Italy in 18 years.

Second leg of the Italy-Belgium series will be in Brussels and England plays West Germany again in West Berlin, both on May 13.

Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union also battled to a scoreless draw in the first leg of their quarter-final series.

In the day's other quarter-final, played at Budapest, Hungary and Rumania also played to a draw, 1-1.

UVic Squads Sweep District Boot Titles

University of Victoria squads sewed up both divisional titles Sunday in sudden-death Victoria and District Soccer League playoff matches at Royal Athletic Park.

Vikings captured the first division crown and the Price Cup with a 4-1 upset victory over defending-champion Cosmopolitan Royals while Norsemen retained the G. Dodd Trophy as second division champions by nipping Victoria West, 2-1.

Steve Bridgeman opened scoring for Vikings at the four-minute mark of the first half, converting a pass from Mike Sails. Brian Barraclough then booted a corner by Jindy Johl into the net at 33 minutes to give the UVic club a 2-0 half-time lead.

Dave Achurch made a great save in the Viking net at 28 minutes, deflecting a penalty kick by Theo Van Den Bergh, but saw his shutout bid go down the drain when Scott Haskett rammed in the rebound. The penalty was called after Dave Swanson pulled Russ Ball down in the penalty area.

Swanson came back to score at 41 minutes and Barraclough finished up with a goal three minutes later — both on passes from playing-coach Ike MacKay, back for the first time after serving a six-week suspension.

Royal were handicapped with the loss of leading-scorer Rudi Kuebler, who suffered a mouth injury early in the first half and was forced to retire from play.

After battling through a scoreless first-half, Ted Evans and Rod Narankian scored for Norsemen in the 50th and 65th minutes, respectively. Bob Bowles scored on a penalty kick for Victoria West in the 73rd minute.

Victoria West goalie Steve Webb made a good save on a penalty kick by Fred Stephenson late in the match and was blessed with good fortune shortly after when UVic's Mike McManus hit a post.

Doug Hill left Wests shorthanded early in the match by being sent off the field.

Delesalle Sweeps Gymnastic Crown

WINNIPEG (CP) — Philip Delesalle of Victoria stepped out of his age group Saturday to win all six events in the novice class at the Western Canada gymnastics championships.

Delesalle, 13, breezed to the title with comfortable margins of victory in the floor exercises, vault, still rings, pommel horse, parallel bars and low bar.

Keith Carter of Winnipeg was the only other competitor to sweep his age class. The 19-year-old Carter led 10 others, winning all six events in the junior men's class.

All four western provinces and the Yukon Territories were represented at the one-day meet. Alberta won five of the 10 team titles.

Tami Stevens of Vancouver and Michael McDowell of Edmonton were over-all winners in the Argo class. Tyro winners were Donna Telepchan of Calgary and Gerry Brimacombe of Edmonton.

Alison Andres of Vancouver was the novice girls' champion and Shannon Stewart of North Battleford, Sask., won the junior over-all title.

Alberta teammates Bob Blanchette and Steve Caestar, both of Edmonton, shared the senior men's championship. Lenka Svatek and Sandra Hartley, both of Edmonton, were the only senior women's competitors. Svatek won the over-all title by 90 points.

You wouldn't think a friendly little critter like the firefly would have anything in common with "Coolite", a product of our technological age. But they do. They both glow with a bright green light, and they do it without batteries, bulbs or wires, without flame or heat. It is called Chemical Luminescence. Fortunately for fireflies, Man has not found them to be a viable source of commercial energy. Fortunately for everyone, "Coolite" can shed light on a lot of dark situations . . . all you do is bend the plastic tube and make a light that glows brightly for 3 hours, continues to glow for 24, then you toss it away (into a suitable receptacle of course).

world renowned bear says

"Nobody ever started a forest fire with "Coolite"! And because it is so small and virtually weightless you can pack it along with your camping gear or fit it into a backpack for hiking and camping trips, for fishing and hunting expeditions too. Priced at a mere 1.35 each, you can afford to take along more than one.

When your world suddenly goes dark . . .

it's probably just a power failure. Never fear, you have "Coolite" on the emergency shelf so you won't be stumbling about trying to find batteries or dripping candlewax over everything. In fact, "Coolite" is so safe your children can carry it about . . . and you can poke "Coolite" into dark corners and not fear fire. It's a far-out idea for travellers going 'round the moon or 'round the island.

"Coolite" the sociable one—

'tis the season of outdoor living . . . parties on the patio, in the garden, at the beach. Just imagine how friendly and inviting your outdoor area will be illuminated with the green glow of "Coolite" . . . so what if it blows or rains on your party, "Coolite" goes right on glowing no matter what the weather office dreams up. Don't you owe it to yourself and your family to have "Coolite" stashed away in your basement, kitchen, car, boat, attic, nursery . . . we're sure you'll think of dozens more uses.

FULLER HASN'T GIVEN UP FIGHT

BOSTON (UPI) — Millionaire Peter Fuller says he will continue his court fight to prove that Dancer's Image, not Forward Pass, won the 1968 Kentucky Derby.

Fuller, who owns Dancer's Image, said he would ask the Kentucky court of appeals for a rehearing of its decision declaring Calumet Farms' Forward Pass the winner of the disputed race.

The ruling by Kentucky's highest court Friday overturned a lower court verdict which had given first place money of $122,600 to Fuller's horse.

"I'm stunned by the latest decision," Fuller said.

Derby Threat Impressive

By the Associated Press

Maribel Blum's Hold Your Peace coasted to an easy five-length victory Saturday in the Stepping Stone Purse at Churchill Downs at Louisville, Ky., boosting his stock for next Saturday's 98th Kentucky Derby.

Hold Your Peace, ridden by jockey Carlos Marquez, took the lead from the pace-setting Brick Door at the quarter pole and drew away easily.

Combat Ready, Alaray Stable's nominee for the Derby, charged up for second money over the tiring Brick Door.

Hold Your Peace, winner of the Flamingo and second in both the Bahamas and the Everglades Stakes, was timed in 1:24 for the seven furlongs.

At Inglewood, Calif., Cougar II, snapping out of a drought which covered four races and six months, set an American record of 2:11 for 1⅝ miles on turf in running away with the Century Handicap at Hollywood Park.

The Chilean-bred six-year-old bay, owned by Mary F. Jones, was three-fifths of a second faster than the record in 1970 by Quiche in this race.

UNCONSCIOUS SECOND

Unconscious, setting the pace most of the way, was second by 1¾ lengths and Star Envoy was third.

At New York's Aqueduct track, C. V. Whitney's Inca Queen won the 33rd running of the Top Flight Handicap by holding off longshot Polly Piper in the stretch and surviving a claim of foul.

Inca Queen won by a nose over Polly Piper in the 1⅛-mile test for fillies and mares, three-year-olds and up. Polly Piper took the place by a neck over Aladancer in the race run in 1:50.

Avelino Gomez, the former Canadian champion jockey who does most of his riding on Ontario tracks and is making a comeback this year, flew to New York to ride Painted Pony, who finished eighth. Gomez claimed foul on Garth Patterson, Inca Queen's rider, for interference at the far turn, but the claim was not allowed.

At Fort Erie, Ont., Happy Victory made Sunday a happy day for Jack Jackson of Montreal, who had never won a stakes race in Ontario until his three-year-old filly ran away with the Star Shoot Stakes.

Happy Victory, obtained at the bargain-basement price of $10,000 as a yearling, beat some classy company in the race for Canadian-bred fillies.

Among the horses following Happy Victory home were Gay Northerner, $67,500 daughter of Northern Dancer, and Dawn Deluxe, Canada's top two-year-old filly of last year with earnings of $32,000.

Jackson collected $6,775 for Happy Victory's win.

On Saturday, Briartic, a 9-5 favorite, won the $11,625 Bold Venture Stakes at Fort Erie.

Canadian Projects Tops With Socreds

If Social Credit comes to power in Ottawa, the Bank of Canada will get instructions to render all possible aid to Canadian projects, the party's national leader said in Victoria Saturday.

"Let's finance ourselves," Real Caouette told a luncheon of about 100 in The Empress ballroom. If Canada can make interest-free loans to developing nations, it can do no less for itself.

Three provincial cabinet members were on hand to lend support to the federal party's cause.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell introduced Caouette as "an old friend of British Columbia."

CHABOT BRINGS WORD

But it was Labor Minister James Chabot who hammered the solidarity message home.

Speaking briefly in French, he then said the people of British Columbia were fed up with Trudeau — with the shrug, foul language, terms like "bigot," with problems ranging from raging inflation to high unemployment.

"We look to you to bring about management," he told Caouette, assuring him provincial Socreds will be out helping him win the next federal election.

Also at the head table were Works Minister William Chant and Stockwell Day, federal Socred candidate in the Cowichan Nanaimo and The Islands riding.

Caouette had earlier told reporters the pary would field a full slate of candidates in the four western provinces as well as Quebec.

Canadain unity will be Prime Minister Trudeau's platform in the next election, said Caouette. But the prime minister has done more to divide the country than any other prime minister.

CAOUETTE
. . . pledges full slate

"While fighting among ourselves, we lose sight of the real problem" — development of a united Canada which allows provinces to be different and indivuduals themselves.

On debate over changing the constitution, he said those who would change it don't know what changes they want.

"Let's respect this constitution first — which allows everyone to be himself."

On the perils of socialism, he recalled a visit to Czechoslovakia, where there was no unemployment — but most were earning about $55 a month. When all business, big and small, is owned by the state, initiative is destroyed.

Caouette said 900,000 young Canadians could not get jobs last summer. But if a war had broken out, all of them would have been employed the next day.

Social Credit wants to do in peace what the old line parties are able to do in war.

With the Liberals plumping for national unity, he also predicted the campaign themes for the other parties when the next election comes.

The Conservatives, he said, will be for fighting unemployment but they won't be able to say how.

The NDP will be against foreign control, domination by Americans.

Newfie CBC Strike Ends

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Members of the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians (NABET) returned to work at CBC locations in four Newfoundland centres early today and were expected back on the job at Corner Brook later in the morning.

The 90 NABET members walked off the job late Wednesday in St. John's, Gander, Grand Falls, Marystown and Corner Brook.

The strike was one of an intermittent series across Canada to back up NABET's demands in contract negotiations with the CBC.

BABY, PARENTS SURVIVE SCORCHING TREK

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — A seven-weeks-old girl was pushed in a baby carriage through the scorching Nullarbor desert for five days by her parents after the family's car gas tank leaked dry.

Railway worker Graham Greenwood, 29, and his 19-year-old wife Marian told today how they kept baby Trudy-Anne alive by feeding her on water from the car's radiator mixed with canned milk.

The parents lived on a pack of cookies and during the chill desert nights huddled together with Trudy-Anne between them to keep warm.

The Greenwoods set out Sunday, April 23, along a little-used dirt road from Eucla to Reid in south Australia, en route to western Australia.

Their gas tank was holed by a stone and they started to walk back to Eucla.

The daytime temperature in the desert is more than 100 degrees.

They were found Friday by schoolteacher David Stephenson.

He said: "Greenwood was lying in the desert, his tongue swollen, sunburned and with his feet heavily bandaged.

"His wife and baby were a few miles down the track. The baby was partially sheltered under her upturned pram."

The family was reported recovering after medical treatment in Eucla.

Saskatoon Police Can't Cope

SASKATOON (CP) — Police Chief James Kettles says his department has insufficient staff to cope with drug problems and crime associated with drugs in the city.

Chief Kettles was appearing before city council Saturday on the police department's 1972 budget estimates. Council refused to accept the proposed $2.8 million budget and referred it back to the police commission.

Chief Kettles said that of a proposed staff increase of 12 men, one probably would be assigned to the present two-man drug squad.

"We should assign six or eight men full time to look after drugs."

He said the 206-man force is "not policing various areas the way we should, but we're doing the best we can."

Alderman Cliff Wright told council the police estimates represent an increase of 15 to 15 per cent from 1971.

Under the Municipal Act, city council does not have power to change the police budget, but if it disapproves can refer it back to the police commission.

Own Insurance

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba government may consider setting up its own life insurance company to provide group insurance coverage for employees of the Manitoba Development Corporation, Premier Ed Schreyer told the legislature.

The life insurance proposal would only become necessary if there is unsatisfactory response from existing private companies to tenders put out for the development corporation employees' group insurance, he said.

Acreage Changes

SASKATOON (CP) — Farmers in central Saskatchewan will plant larger acreages of wheat, smaller acreages of rapeseed and about the same amount of barley as last year when seeding operations get under way within the next two weeks.

Agriculture representatives in Saskatoon and eight surrounding districts indicated that a more optimistic foreign market situation and a smaller carryover will encourage planting of more wheat, while a combination of large rapeseed carryovers, lower prices and fear of the army worm will reduce the rapeseed acreage, they said.

Ballet Plans 34-City Tour

TORONTO (CP) — Sol Hurok, Russian-born impresario famous for bringing the cream of international culture to the masses, will sponsor a 23-week tour of 34 North American cities by the National Ballet of Canada, it was announced Sunday.

The tour, which begins Sept. 1 at the National Arts Centre in Ottawa, will feature the company's first production of Tchaikovsky's The Sleeping Beauty, with choreography by Rudolph Nureyev, who will be joining the company on the tour.

Price to Rise

WINNIPEG (CP) — Fourteen of 22 Canadian distillers will increase their prices for rye, gin, rum and vodka by about 25 cents a bottle to coincide with higher provincial sales tax on liquor, Frank Syms, chairman of the Manitoba Liquor Control Commission, said.

"We're not overly happy about receiving the increases," Syms told a news conference. They (the distillers) have had an excellent year."

Aid for Tourism

WINNIPEG (CP) — Recreation Minister Larry Desjardins has announced a policy of direct financial support for regional tourism organisations.

The program will consist of $1,500 basic grants to each of the seven regional offices of the Tourist and Convention Association of Manitoba, and additional dollar-for-dollar matching grants on a limited basis for approved regional tourism development of tourism marketing programs.

Socred's Plans

MEDICINE HAT (CP) — The Social Credit party plans to run candidates in all 19 Alberta constituencies in the next federal election, according to Martin Hattersley, president of his party's Alberta branch.

"We have already nominated a candidate in Crowfoot (farmer Jim Green of Brooks, Alta.) and we are in a position to nominate candidates quickly in the other ridings if an election is called soon."

Set for Hoppers

EDMONTON (CP) — Additional supplies of insecticide will be available to meet predicted outbreaks of grasshoppers in some parts of Alberta, Agriculture Minister Hugh Horner told the legislature.

Some supplies of the chemical lamate are also available in case of bertha army worm infestation of rapeseed crops.

Link Planned

EDMONTON (CP) — A rapid transit link between Edmonton and Calgary is not far in the future, according to Industry Minister Fred Peacock.

The minister said, however, the two cities should consider their "inner core" transportation priorities first and later examine inter-city transportation, which would probably use existing rail lines.

Bear Hides Sold

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba government received a total of $2,212 in a sale of polar bear hides, according to Len Evans, acting environment minister.

The six hides were from bears shot by conservation officers after they continually returned to the garbage dump at Churchill last winter. The bears had been removed several miles away in an airlift. Three hides sold for $250, two sold for $406, and one drew a top bid of $650.

Singing the Praises Of the Swinging Game

A reader who describes himself as "fiftyish," having noted the occasional references here to the game, asks if I'd recommend the taking up of golf and I have replied, at truly incredible length, as follows:

Yes, sir, I would. I believe this to be the best of all participant sports and there are some 12,000 Victorians, according to the educated guess of our resident golf writer, who would doubtless agree. It is a game that offers challenges and rewards physically, cerebrally, psychologically and, if you play your cards right, financially. Stephen Potter, master of the art of one-up-manship, has said that "life is golf on a smaller scale" and, come to think of it, it is.

Age or gender matter not a whit, whatever a whit may be. Anyone who has marvelled at the sight of the tall, erect figure of C. Arthur Thompson striking the ball down the fairways of Uplands, two months away from his one hundred and third birthday, still in love with the game after 69 years of playing it, will get the message. "Fiftyish," therefore is irrelevant.

Since it is a game in which physical strength or stamina are far less important than co-ordination, rhythm and concentration almost anyone, in theory, may become a competent golfer by the simple application of intelligence and perseverance. I was once told by one of my heroes, Mr. Sam Snead, now 59 and playing some of the finest golf in his long career, that any man or woman who can dance can learn to play with a respectable score. I believe it.

Lessons are important for the beginner to establish the fundamentals of the grip, the stance, the stroke, the position of the feet, the pivot, the rotation of the hips and shoulders, the flexing of the knees and all that stuff, but I am one of those who hold that over-instruction may be more of a handicap than none at all.

Henry Longhurst, far and away the greatest writer and commentator on the game, shares this view. "I often suspect," he has written, "that little is to be learned by people like myself from instructional books on golf by people like Palmer and Nicklaus, for the simple reason that they cannot possibly know, fortunately for them, what it feels like to be me. They therefore recommend me to get myself into positions in which high-speed photography shows them to get themselves, little knowing that if I did so I should be taken straight to the infirmary."

While some instruction is advisable, preferably with a patient professional, it must always be remembered that golf is a simple game, that the stroke is far less complicated than the sum of its parts. There are really just two things to keep in mind.

One is that golf is a swinging game. You do not hit or strike a golf ball. You swing through the ball with a sweeping, fluid motion. Certain pros, indeed, provide their students with kitchen brooms before allowing them to touch a club.

The second thing to remember is to look at the ball and this, really, is the most difficult thing to learn and to maintain. If one swings through the ball and looks at it very intently and studiously one will always get good results, presuming, of course, that nothing has gone wrong meanwhile with one's grip, the stance, the stroke, the position of the feet, the pivot, the rotation of the hips and shoulders and the rest.

At the recent Bob Hope Classic in the California desert, where two newcomers, Lanny Wadkins and Jerry Heard, impressed me as the coming stars, each ventured a remark that every novice should keep in mind.

Heard, having muffed an approach shot, turned to his caddy and asked, "Why do we make such a simple game so complicated?" Wadkins, chatting with some of us in the press tent, was asked to define his approach to the game and replied: "You have to learn the basics of it—then you just whomp it."

Concentration, needless to say, is essential, particularly on the greens. A memorable P. G. Wodehouse character, Mitchell Holmes, is remembered as a man "who missed short putts because of the uproar of the butterflies in the adjoining meadows." Another instance Wodehouse cited was of a golfer who missed a putt on the sixth green at Deal by the seaside "and, raising his hands above his head, cried, 'How can anyone be expected to putt with all this bloody traffic going up and down the Channel?'"

Though club players are now going to comic extremes in acquiring the hardware of the game, no great outlay is needed for the beginner's equipment.

In a golfing tour that my wife and I made through England and Scotland, including the playing of the four links at St. Andrews, we set out with only five clubs apiece, contained in curious, collapsible canvas quivers. These were entirely adequate and the fact that we returned with a total of 25 clubs, including four putters, was caused only by the mystic persuasive powers of Scottish professionals, particularly evident when North Americans come into their shops. One might guard against this by staying away from Scotland, but no real golfer ever would.

Quite apart from the fact that golf is excellent for the health in painlessly providing exercise and fresh air and is played in surroundings that are good for the soul—the most beautiful views in Victoria are from the sixth tee at Gorge Vale and the seventh at Oak Bay—it offers purely psychological delights that often transform the beginner from a casual devotee to a religious fanatic.

For one thing, it is a game in which the player is essentially in competition with himself. In other sports the ineptitude of an opponent may provide an illusion of skill. In golf a man is on his own and any resulting elation or torment is of his own doing. It may, in fact, be the only sport in which a man may feel strong revulsion or adoration for himself.

Because the game can never be mastered—that would entail playing 18 consecutive holes each in two-under-par figures—it never palls and even the greatest of the professionals, stepping to the first tee, are always prepared for the surprise of their life.

So join us, "Fiftyish," and when you've broken 100 for the first time we'll have a game. You're just the kind of fellow we're always eager to join for—say—two-bits a hole.

Pedal Power

Aged from six to 72, about 500 enthusiasts mounted bikes and pedalled to raise money for the Victorian Days Sunday.

At least 24 cyclists, however, stuck it out for the maximum 100 miles, one of the fastest finishing times being John Luton's three hours and 50 minutes.

Officials hope to raise between $2,000 and $3,000 from the event but complete figures won't be available until all pledges are in.

The young Parfett sisters of 1928 Beach capitalized on the thirsty drivers by setting up a soft drink stand on their section of the route.

Macaulay Diversion Chosen

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

An engineering report made public today recommends diversion of sewage from Clover Point and McMicking Point outfalls to new facilities at Macaulay Point in Esquimalt.

A price tag of $9.33 million was put on the diversion by James F. MacLaren Ltd., Ker, Priestman, Keenan and Associates Ltd. and Associated Engineering Services Ltd. in their report to the Capital Regional District.

Clover Point, in the Fairfield district, is the main sewer outfall for Victoria city while McMicking Point, just east of McNeil (Shoal) Bay, is the main outfall for Oak Bay. Both discharge a few feet into the sea with resulting pollution of adjacent shoreline waters.

The old outfall at Macaulay Point was replaced in 1971 by a new 6,100-foot pipe discharging sewage into 200-feet deep water.

The report recommends a new 10,000-foot outfall be built parallel with the 1971 outfall to handle the diversion. The 6,100-foot pipe would then become a bypass.

Sewage would be pumped in a 42-inch diameter pipe from the two outfalls under Beach Drive, Fairfield Road, Bushby Road and Dallas Road, crossing under the Inner Harbor between Shoal Point and just north of the Imperial Oil dock in Esquimalt.

The old outfalls at Clover Point and McMicking Point would not entirely disappear.

Regional district engineer Bill Gerry explained a weir would be built so that when there is an influx of storm water, it could be directed into the old outfalls which would become storm water overflow outfalls.

'Optimum Point'

The report to the regional district, which is responsible for main sewer line and outfall reconstruction in the area, said Macaulay Point represents the "optimum point" for an outfall and eventual location of a treatment plant.

It was chosen over a Trial Island site for handling the Clover-McMicking outfalls.

The regional board, which decided on the study last September, gave two alternatives — diversion to Macaulay Point or diversion to a new site at Trial Island.

Other alternatives, such as enlarging Clover Point and building a treatment plant, would require clearing of 70 houses or using Ross Bay Cemetery or Beacon Hill Park, which was not found to be acceptable.

Macaulay Point is allowed to discharge sewage without treatment while studies are made on water quality but 10 acres have been set aside if a treatment plant is ruled necessary by the Pollution Control Branch.

The report said the initial phase of construction does not need inclusion of sewage treatment facilities on the basis of current understandings of receiving water quality.

However, in view of potential future needs for treatment, the report said it is "imperative" that decisions now being made adequately provide for futre installation.

In tables of costs, the report put the diversion price at $26.8 million if treatment is added now, or $20.2 million if treatment was not added until after 1980.

The report recommends that the environmental monitoring program at Macaulay Point be continued as well as programs to determine points of storm water entry to the sewer system and to work towards elimination of this.

Benefits from spending money for a rebuilt sewage discharge system "result primarily from the improvement of public health indices of water quality to levels within safe limits on public bathing beaches along the south coast, and the improvement of aesthetic conditions at the existing points of discharge at Clover Point and McMicking Point."

The report will be considered at a meeting of the regional diarrict's executive committee Thursday and will probably go before the regional board at its May 24 meeting.

Jaycees Seek Federal Help To Finish Emily Carr Home

Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce has offered to give up title to the Emily Carr home in order to assure federal funds for its completion as a national historic site.

In a letter to the historic sites branch of the department of Indian affairs and northern development, the Emily Carr Foundation said that under the existing arrangement "the Emily Carr Home will never be completed, or open to the public."

Foundation chairman Andrew Blaney said the Junior Chamber refuses to "desecrate" by removing part of the front garden of the famed artist's old home to provide space to park four cars as required by the Victoria board of variance.

Without parking, the home cannot be opened to the public.

If it would have the effect of releasing federal funds for the purchase of adjoining property, to satisfy parking requirements, the club will give title to the federal authorities.

Meanwhile, the Junior Chamber will spend no more on the project, other than to use $15,000 provided by the historic sites branch for maintenance.

Its letter to Peter H. Bennett, assistant director of the branch in Ottawa, states in part:

"It seems incredible that because your department was not fully organized when we entered the partnership back in 1967, that we find the foundation exempt from gaining necessary funds to finish off a national historic site."

The letter, written by Brian Small who is the foundation's investigation committee chairman, pointed out that in other parts of Canada "millions of dollars are being expended to build and restore historic sites without any funds from groups such as the Junior Chamber of Commerce."

Since it launched the Carr project as a Canadian centennial undertaking in 1967, Jaycees have spent $80,000 on the house. The federal government has granted $25,000 and the local and provincial governments have made no cash contributions.

Copies of the letter went to the prime minister, the minister of Indian affairs and northern development, MPs David Groos and David Anderson, Mayor Peter Pollen, B.C. Trade Minister Waldo Skillings and Public Works Minister W. N. CHant.

Public Views Sought

Greater Victoria parents and taxpayers get a chance to register complaints — or compliments — with the people who run their school system Tuesday night.

Trustees and administration officials of School District 61 (Greater Victoria) will be at Mount View high school, 3814 Carey Road, from 8 p.m., listening to what the public thinks of the way the schools are being run.

It is hoped the atmosphere will be informal, lending itself to conversations between trustees and individuals.

OAK BAY BUDGET DUE

Oak Bay council goes into its final budget-paring session tonight with the municipality's taxpayers still facing a possible five-mill increase in the general tax rate.

Mayor Frances Elford said today she hopes that council will set the budget before getting down to regular council business.

After the last session, council had whittled the estimated increase from 8.65 mills to five, the biggest item yet to be decided being $258,700 for surface drain extensions.

The mayor said the question will be whether to go for some short-term borrowing (with no referendum needed) in order to keep the budget down or decide on long-term borrowing for a capital budget.

"This item is just one year of a several-year program," she explained, "council might go for a capital budget, with a referendum say in December, including any other major capital projects."

She says an addition to the municipal hall, cut out of this year's budget, is badly needed and might be one of the items that could be financed on a long-term borrowing program.

She said tonight's decision will be one of policy and politics with "two schools of thought".

She said that Ald. Douglas Watts has, in the past, been opposed to long-term borrowing because of the high interest rates.

"I'm inclined to favor it, however," she said "because I think it unfair to put the whole burden on this year's taxpayers when the benefits are spread over the property owners of the next 20 or 30 years."

Mrs. Elford said the council is watching other municipalities in an effort to keep any tax increase in line.

"We are comparing with other municipalities, particularly Saanich, which has a tax increase of 2.5 mills.

"This increase does not include sewer costs and many Saanich residents will have a hefty increase on top of the 2.5."

Environment Focused

Environment Day was marked in Victoria today by the opening of a large Environment Canada exhibit in the Hillside Shopping Mall.

To be on view for three weeks, the display will include a 10-by-16-foot model of the Straits of Georgia, showing underwater features, land formations and major industrial installations.

The Canadian forestry service will present a fire film from the Pacific Forest Research Centre and the Canadian wildlife service has arranged an aviary containing various migratory birds, including swans and geese.

Atmospheric Environment has a weather station on display and the fisheries service has arranged two large models of spawning channels and fish hatcheries.

Of interest to boaters will be a display on chart-making, provided by the hydrographic services.

The lands services' contribution is a 35-mm. slide presentation on the wise use of land.

Several Greater Victoria schools also took part in recognition of Environment Day.

Students of Macaulay elementary school helped clean up Fleming Beach in Esquimalt and picked up litter from streets and boulevards in the area.

South Park elementary students became involved with Project Recycle and cleaned up debris in neighboring parks.

Fairburn elementary students will hold their Environment Day Wednesday when they will go to Gyro Park at Cadboro Bay to clean up.

Ask the Times

Q. Recently we watched a movie on Channel 8 that ran between 8 and 10:30 p.m. and it was well worth the four stars given for it. But it was quite ruined by the 49 commercials at intervals. Can you tell me if this is necessary and why so many? A.N.B.

A. It's not necessary, but it's legally permissable, under Canadian Radio and Television Commission regulations. Radio and television stations can have a maximum of 250 minutes of ads a day, or a little more than four hours, between 6 a.m. and midnight, and, if they wish, they could run them continuously. The maximum for a week is 1,500 minutes, which is 6 times 250 minutes.

NOTHING'S TOO SMALL to escape the attention of curious boys like Brian and James Fraser who took part in the nature tour Sunday sponsored by the Thetis Lake Sanctuary Association. Expert guides led the expedition to study wildlife and plants at the park.

Wife's Plea Set Husband Free

BELFAST (AP) — Mrs. Charles McSheffrey, the mother of four, stopped Britain's administrator of Northern Ireland on a Londonderry street, told him she couldn't cope with her husband in jail and as a result the husband has now walked out of the Long Kesh internment camp a free man.

It was considered one more gesture of reconciliation toward Roman Catholics from William Whitelaw, sent here last month to take over from the Northern Ireland government.

McSheffrey was freed from Long Kesh with nine other men suspected of being members of the underground Irish Republican Army, which seeks to throw out the British and link predominantly Protestant Northern Ireland with the mainly Roman Catholic Republic of Ireland to the south.

Whitelaw now has freed nearly 150 of more than 700 internees all held without trial as suspected IRA militants.

McSheffrey had been interned for six months. Mrs. McSheffrey stopped Whitelaw in the street on Monday of last week during his first visit to Londonderry.

Whitelaw, in another conciliatory gesture, also praised Northern Ireland's labor unions for helping to defuse the sectarian fueding which has pitted Catholics against Protestants.

He said union efforts to reduce tension between the two communities in factories and business had been "immensely important."

The British opposition Labor party spokesman on Northern Ireland, Merlyn Rees, said after a visit to the North that the situation was "moving in a new direction and is more hopeful" as a result of direct British rule.

Rees said in a radio interview the North appears to have been pulled back from the brink of civil war, but he appealed to Whitelaw to include the IRA in any peace talks.

STATE BROTHELS VOTED 'NO-NO'

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Washington State shouldn't operate houses of prostitution, even though profits would help schools, the Washington youth senate has decided.

Voting after several hours of heated debate, the YMCA-sponsored legislators turned down the bill 28 to 25 recently. The bill would have instructed the state health department to build houses of prostitution and oversee the operations. Prostitutes would be state employees.

"This bill would be good for a prostitute because it would mean guaranteed employment," the main sponsor argued. "Besides it's better to have your prostitution profits going to the schools instead of organized crime."

The measure gained recognition earlier last week when Governor Dan Evans said it was the first new proposal for tax reform he had heard in more than a month.

An opponent to the bill said, "The state can't sanction something that goes against the moral beliefs of so many people.

"It would be the same thing as condoning murder."

Another opponent said the bill discriminates against men because only female prostitues would be affected.

About 200 high school students from around the state attended the three-day mock legislature.

Lib Trio in Rape Attempt

MAN FILES SUIT

CHICAGO (UPI) — A University of Illinois student said recently that although he has been called a "male chauvinist pig," he has filed only simple battery charges against three aggressive coeds who tore open his shirt, pulled down his pants and threatened to rape him.

William Chester, 34, said the three girls attacked him on the sixth floor of the university's student centre in Chicago.

Two university employees who said they interrupted the incident confirmed Chester's story.

"They (the coeds) took offense at my satirical article about women's lib organizations," Chester said referring to his story which appeared in the "April Fool" edition of the Chicago Ollini, an off-campus "underground" publication.

Chester said he received a note when he arrived at the newspaper's office. "Come and see us, we are going to rape you," he quoted the note as saying it was signed by "three women's libbers."

Undaunted, Chester entered the women's lib office on the fifth floor of the building.

"They suggested we go out in the hallway to talk about the article," he said. "Then they suggested we go up to the sixth floor."

"When we got there, one of the girls — a husky 200-pounder — put a bear hug on me from behind. The other two pushed me and the big one held me while lying under me," Chester said in a report to university authorities.

One of the girls tore open his shirt and another pulled down his pants, "but in the next couple of minutes" two university employees came down the corridor, and the girls fled, Chester said.

A university spokesman said it plans no action against the women's libbers, although they can "easily be identified on sight by the employees."

Bangladesh Plight Revealed in Letter

Another letter has reached me from Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, this time from Singapore after a visit to Bangladesh. She said she was physically exhausted and "emotionally shattered as I have never been in my life." Then adds — "perhaps this pouring out on paper of my innermost feelings and thoughts will help me to find myself again . . ."

You have to go deep into the villages of Bangladesh to understand the full tragedy of what has been done to its people, Dr. Lotta says. And that is exactly what she did.

She discovered there is practically not one family left in the country which has not been cruely affected by the tragic events of the past 12 months.

The food situation is desperate, the last 200,000 tons of wheat on hand was expected to be distributed within a fortnight after she wrote her letter. "Then the present stocks will be exhausted to zero . . . unless they are replenished immediately by friendly governments."

"Already there were reports of widespread hunger, she said. "I heard of interior villages where people were eating leaves from the trees because no other food is left."

Priority number one, after food, is shelter. Unitarian Service Committee funds are being used right now to build one-room houses about 10 by 14 feet, for refugee families whose homes were burned.

One such house, with corrugated iron or temporary grass and straw roofing and bamboo mat walls, costs $200, and Dr. Lotta says "we are doing our utmost to finish hundreds before the rains break."

She writes of students pressing around her at Dacca University women's residence. "They lacked in everything from saris to books to enough money to pay for their food, their fees and incidental expenses.

"They all looked so fragile, like slightly wilted flowers, but beautiful in their courage and determination to make their newly created country more just and progressive . . . their elders are pinning tremendous hope on this new generation."

At the village of Kholamore on the Burigonda River "where one-third of the almost 800 houses were burned and 26 men and women killed," youth leaders, speaking enough English to be understood, led her around.

"The tragedies I saw and heard of I shall never be able to put into words," she writes. "In my ears I keep hearing the wailing of the widow at the mass grave where her husband was shot and buried.

"I see in front of me the bodies of those who were ruthlessly knifed for no reason whatever; the mutilated arm of a little boy whose hand was shot off by a soldier; the fearful eyes of children who have witnessed torture and killing which will haunt them forever . . ."

Rarely during her past 27 years service with the USC has Dr. Lotta felt more helpless" in the face of an immense tragedy. There have been many since 1945: destroyed western Europe, the Greek aftermath in 1949-50; the Korean holocaust and then Vietnam. Bangladesh is surely the worst!"

And when this valiant little woman says that, you know it must be right.

It is essential that we from Canada provide "utmost assistance" she believes. Recent $50 million in aid, including life-saving wheat from the Canadian government, works out to a little over two dollars per Canadian citizen.

"Surely," she writes, "there are many individuals who can donate another dollar or more, much more, and channel them through voluntary agencies such as the USC."

Money is needed to build housing for the homeless; to buy maximum amounts of milk; to provide loin cloths for men and saris at one dollar each for women who are in tatters; to buy vehicles to transport relief supplies; to procure food for the hungry; give tools to those who have lost everything and are ready to start from scratch.

Dr. Lotta lists all these things in her letter. Then, in her typical forthright way she ends with "every penny will be welcome at USC headquarters in Ottawa . . . and I promise that, as always, such help will go to those who need assistance and encouragement most."

An End to 'Horror'

DEAR ABBY: I have some good news for that husband who wrote in to say that his pregnant wife was scared stiff by those old hens who told her horror stories about the pain and torture of childbirth.

It doesn't have to be that way. I had my first baby seven months ago, and it was the most beautiful experience of my life. My husband and I prepared ourselves for it by enrolling in a class at the "Y." (It was called "Childbirth Education.")

The reason so many women fear childbirth is because they don't know what to expect. We were shown movies, and we were even taken on a tour of the hospital to see the labor and delivery room, and finally the nursery.

Please, Abby, let others know about these wonderful educational courses. Every doctor is aware of what is available in his area. It is free, too. You cannot believe how much it helped my husband and me. — Glad I Learned.

DEAR ABBY: About that girl expecting her first baby and being frightened by old ladies who told her how rough it was: Don't let the old biddies scare you Honey. The inconvenience of not being able to clip your toenails for about four months is worse than the short pain of labor, which is something like all the menstrual cramps you missed all rolled into a couple of hours!

How can I speak with such authority? Simple. I am writing this from the hospital where I had my first baby just three days ago!

It really wasn't so bad. But even if it had been as rough as some of those old biddies said it would be, it would have been worth it. You should see my beautiful baby boy!— Happy

DEAR ABBY: I can just hear those old hens telling that poor pregnant girl how terrible it is to give birth to a baby!

I'll bet they didn't tell her how they made their husbands, doctor and nurses suffer right along with them. Nor how they overate during their pregnancies and delivered great big, oversized babies.

Labor and delivery is too miraculous a time to waste by thrashing and screaming, trying to prove that a "good mother" has to suffer for her child.

These martyre are the reason I no longer work on the maternity floor. — An R.N. (And Mother)

DEAR ABBY: Good grief! Nobody has to suffer in childbrith any more. All an expectant mother has to do is ask her doctor about the various classes that are offered in her community. She can practically take her pick of the "method" she wants to use.

I chose the Lamaze method, which is natural childbirth. It takes some studying and practice, but it is worth it to have a healthy baby that hasn't been struggling to be born of a mother who is so doped up and out of it she makes it rough on herself and the baby.

The husbands are included in these courses, too. My husband took it, and he stayed right with me the whole time.

We recommend it for all expectant parents. M. and J.

Because today many European countries are celebrating their Labor Day, it may be a good time to learn something about the labor union movement in Canada. Several free leaflets are available to help you.

History of the Canadian Labor Congress tells you for example that a kind of labor union existed in Canada already 150 years ago. Over 2 million Canadians are now unionized.

How Unions Work discusses mainly the intricacies of collective bargaining.

The Structure of Labor in Canada surveys some union activities besides those across the bargaining table.

Labor's Social Objectives discusses some of the social issues that are of concern to labor unions.

Good Sleep Just a Pill Away

WENDY DEY - EDITOR

By IAN BROWN
Special to The Times

LONDON (FWF) — Insomnia is causing doctors great alarm, as more and more of their patients make the trip to dreamland by swallowing pills.

Often these pills aren't really needed. And, like all drugs, they're easier to start taking than to stop.

More than 25 million sleeping pill prescriptions were written out by doctors in Britain last year and no doubt millions more pills were bought privately. Busy doctors can't be blamed for prescribing pills. They only have their patient's word for it that they are not sleeping properly.

Need Unknown

But, as a London doctor said: "Most people don't know what sleep they really need. They feel that if they don't get eight hours there's something wrong.

"The fact is that everyone's sleep needs vary. So long as you are in bed and resting without mental or physical tension, it is unnecessary to count the actual hours of sleep.

"A lot of people fool themselves that they are insomniacs. They rise in the morning with the impression that they haven't slept all night. Actually, they are only remembering the short periods they were awake; no one could go sleepless for very long without serious symptoms developing."

Sometimes the problem in purely physical — indigestion, a draughty bedroom, lumpy mattress, too hard a pillow or a snoring spouse. But usually the problem is of the mind. Worry, depression and emotional tension are the great enemies of sleep. People tend to lie awake worrying about the past day's mistakes and the next day's schedule. The harder they try to force themselve to sleep, the more difficult it becomes.

Surveys have shown that the older you are, the more likely you are to suffer from insomnia — and that women suffer from it more than men.

A recent Canadian study showed that character also plays a big part in determining sleeping habits. It was found that withdrawn, self-conscious introverts slept, on average, about four hours a night while the more outgoing personalities average between six and seven.

One psychologist in the team said, "When we sleep, our body temperature drops, our heart slows down and various bodily systems — like the digestion — switch off. Normally it takes something like an alarm clock or a shake to jerk us awake, raise our temperature, start the heart beating faster and get all the body's systems going again.

Uneasy Dreams

"But if we take our worries to bed, we may drop off to sleep and then have uneasy dreams in which something alarming is about to happen. This fear or guilt is enough to start the heart beating faster and stimulate our systems — so we wake in the middle of the night. Once that happens, it is difficult to get off to sleep again because we start thinking consciously about the troubles that made our subconscious force us awake."

So what's the best way to get off to sleep without taking a pill? The doctor said, "It's all a question of getting the mind away from your problems. It often helps to spend a few moments writing these problems down on paper and putting them into perspective, and to make a list of all the things you want to do the next day. A few pages of a novel — preferably a boring one — are ideal and crossword, chess or bridge problems also help. One of my patients lies with his eyes closed mentally playing a round of golf. He says he has never completed a round."

Some British hospitals are using a machine shich puts to sleep patients for whom drugs might be dangerous. This machine sends gentle electrical impulses to the brain and produces a low humming — a space-age lullaby, in fact. Students of hypnosis can will themselves to sleep and most of us practise hypnosis unwittingly when we snap awake a minute or two before the alarm rings.

Enterprising businessmen all over the world are trying to cash in on the international insomnia. Some of their ideas sound extremely far-fetched. On the market in Britain is a machine to make your bed vibrate and pulse soft rhythmic noises through your pillow. In Germany, tape-recordings of the patter of raindrops, the rippling of a brook and the breaking of waves on the shore, have been marketed. An American company has produced what it calls the "Sleep Crate" — a box containing several crickets whose clicking, reminiscent of tropical shores is meant to send customers to sleep.

Make Love

Doctors don't ridicule these ideas. "Most of them will work because the people who buy them are probably convinced that they will work," says one. It's comforting to know that one of the best sleep-inducing exercises is making love. "You can't be worrying about your problems when you are making love and it induces a feeling of well-being and drowsiness," said the doctor. So who needs sleeping pills?

Are 'Dick and Jane' Victims of Sex War?

(Times News Services)

NEW YORK — "Johnny says girls aren't fun. . . . Janey says she wants to be a doctor when she grows up, but she knows girls can not be doctors, so she will be a nurse instead. . . . Janey says she might be only a girl, but she isn't stupid."

Those are themes and quotations culled from 134 elementary-school readers by a group of 25 women in Princeton, N.J., who call themselves Women on Words and Images and are affiliated with the National Organization for Women (NOW). Their study resulted in the just-published pamphlet, "Dick and Jane as Victims: Sex Stereotyping in Children's Readers."

According to the pamphlet, the selected books from 14 leading publishing companies are sexist—"overwhelmingly male-oriented." The group's thesis comes through loud and clear: male chauvinist conditioning starts in kindergarten.

Some of the books studied were published some years ago, before women's lib became so popular, and many are being brought up to date or phased out.

The women say they found that stories about boys outnumbered stories about girls by five to two. Boys outnumbered girls four to one in stories showing ingenuity, creativity, perseverance, strength, bravery, apprenticeship, earning money, competitiveness and exploration. On the other hand, girls exhibit such traits as passivity, docility and dependency six times as often as boys, the group contends.

The boys in most of the stories were found to lead adventurous lives, involving much travel and excitement; the girls rarely venture far from home and hearth.

The pamphlet makes a persuasive case. But questions may be asked about some of the yardsticks applied. For example, a listing of "sexist quotations" includes: "He remembered his mother's advice, 'always wait until your father has finished his food before asking him anything'," or: "Mary is a good girl. She likes to help." To many observers these statements would seem normal, with no sexist overtones.

Another question is whether books for young children should be expected to go beyond reflecting the world as the children know it. When dealing with the realm of work, for example, it seems natural to the present scene to describe more male than female occupations.

SHRIMP DISH WON HER OVER

By MARY MOORE

What I had on hand was a small amount of cooked chicken and a can of shrimp. How to make them into a perfectly delicious main course? Sounds simple? It wasn't. I was trying to prepare dinner for a convalescent patient who had lost her appetite and along with it 15 pounds.

It was a wonderful reward to hear her say "This is the best thing I've tasted since my operation."

The amounts I am describing are made in four shells and would serve four moderate eaters — but a hearty eater or a big man would want two of these, so use your judgment. Some of you might have to double the recipe for your families.

SHRIMP AND CHICKEN COQUILLES

(Serves 4)

NOTE: You should have those natural shells from Florida in which to make these but you could make do with medium-sized individual baking dishes.

1½ tbsp. butter.
1½ tbsp. flour.
½ cup milk.
1 tbsp. sherry.
8-oz. can large shrimp (drained weight 4¼ ozs.; cost 99c)
(Reserve liquid—see below.)
¾ cup cut-up cooked chicken (packed).
5 tbsp. fine soft breadcrumbs.
3 tbsp. grated Parmesan.

Make the sauce by blending butter and flour over medium heat. Stir in milk, sherry and shrimp liquid (about three or four tablespoons) until thick. Remove from heat and add chicken.

Line up the four shells on your counter and into each put about five or six canned shrimp. Spoon sauce evenly over each. Mix crumbs and cheese and carefully sprinkle over top. Bake at 375 Deg. F. 15 or 20 minutes until bubbling and flecked with gold. Protect your good china plates with folded tissues under each shell when you serve these.

Great for a guest luncheon.

Top Teacher Explains What Makes Him Tick

NEW YORK (UPI) — From someone on the inside, here's what school's like today:

"Many kids have a feeling no one cares and no one wants to listen. They think of school as just a place to go, spend time and leave. Some from books, television and movies, know as much or more than the teachers do about various subjects. They're often bored. Some of them are angry. They want things done now and not in the old ways."

The insider says teachers can do something to help — "give the student the feeling that he, the student, can think."

The comments on the schoolhouse in contemporary America come not from a student, but from a teacher who's on the students' side.

The teacher is James M. Rogers Jr., just voted 1972 Teacher of the Year by the council of chief state school officers. He teaches in an integrated high school in Durham, N.C. He is the first black ever to receive the prestigious accolade. His remarks about schools today were made in response to this question: "What makes a good teacher tick?"

"First," said Rogers, "an honest respect for each individual student is essential. Not students as a group, and not black or white, but just each student.

"If the teacher can communicate this respect he has a chance of getting something done. If not, no amount of knowledge of his subject will make any difference."

Rogers cautions teachers against "treating kids like they haven't got a mind."

In addition to sponsorship by the council, the annual Teacher of the Year competition is supported by Encyclopaedia Britannica and Ladies' Home Journal.

Other observations made by Rogers:

"I feel that young people should be listened to and, when feasible, their ideas utilized. I hope that no one gets the false impression that I feel teachers and administrators should abdicate their leadership roles. I simply feel that anything which we can do to achieve success as instructors should not be overlooked."

Church Ponders Change In Marriage Rite Words

LONDON (CP) — The Church of England's liturgical commission is considering major changes in the marriage service, including much less emphasis on the procreation of children.

The commission, which recently recommended modernizing the wording of the Ten Commandments and the Lord's Prayer, is considering dropping the introduction to the service in the Book of Common Prayer in which the procreation of children is given first priority among "the causes for which matrimony was ordained."

It is drafting a new form of service in which the aims of matrimony are instead incorporated into prayers asking for the gift of children, mutual help and comfort.

Recently, in a debate on population problems in the House of Lords, Baroness Summerskill from the Labor benches suggested the time may have come when the marriage service should be revised to remind married couples that indiscriminate procreation of children was to be condemned as anti-social.

The sooner the service was amended, the better for the country, said Lady Summerskill, 70-year-old former food minister in the post-war Labor government and mother of two.

In reply, Dr. Ronald Williams, bishop of Leicester, said most parsons felt uneasy about the way "strict hierarchical purposes" were expressed in the preface to the marriage service. But if Lady Summerskill was saying children were a sideline in marriage, she should think again.

Later, Dr. Williams, who is married but has no children, said Lady Summerskill's speech had "touched a chord which does produce an echo."

"Having children is part and parcel of marriage," said the bishop, "but it is not the only reason for marriage."

Dr. Williams explained that the change under consideration was in line with a general feeling in the church that people no longer wanted "exhortation" as to what they should or should not do.

The prayer book, last revised in 1928, states first in the preface to the marriage service that matrimony is ordained for "the procreation of children, to be brought up in the fear and nurture of the Lord." Other aims follow, such as avoiding fornication and giving mutual comfort in adversity.

DIAMONDS TO BE 'PRINTED'

LONDON (Reuter) — A revolutionary method of "fingerprinting" diamonds so that the stones can be identified if a thief tries to sell or disguise them by re-polishing, was announced here today.

The system involves photographing microscopic markings — traces of the diamonds' original crude shape — which remain after polishing.

Scotland Yard headquarters and the international police organization, Interpol, will have access to the photographs, stored in a computer.

HEAVY WORKLOAD FACES OTTAWA LEGISLATORS

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament has a heavy workload piling up, with new government policy statements about to be tabled and more legislation adding to the current backlog.

In the first eight days of May, the Commons will get the long-awaited government policy statement on regulation of foreign ownership and an outline of economic policy in a tax-and-spending budget.

The foreign-ownership policy is to be published Tuesday evening by Revenue Minister Herb Gray, chief author of a study on which the cabinet based its program.

Six days later, Finance Minister John Turner plans to present a budget.

Mr. Turner's announcement last Thursday that he would outline the budget May 8 cooled speculation that the Liberal government would call a June general election.

With the time-lead required to organize a federal election, last week was the practical deadline for calling one in June.

HEAVY WORKLOAD?

Further dampening electioneering fever on Parliament Hill last week was word from the Liberal party caucus to the effect that Prime Minister Trudeau had outlined a heavy schedule of legislation.

Apart from legislative proposals accompanying the foreign ownership policy and the budget, there are promised bills to come on such matters as housing—notably, proposals that would set up new methods of financing home purchase.

In the meantime, Parliament already has a dozen government bills awaiting study, debate and resolution. Subjects range from revisions of the criminal law and farm credit to changes in federal labor regulations and the baby-bonus program.

Today, the Commons resumes discussion of a weighty bill amending numerous features of the Criminal Code—everything from abolition of whipping as a sentence to delineation of the new crime of airplane hijacking.

MOST IN FAVOR

In two rounds of preliminary debate late last week, most MPs who spoke supported the proposed amendments, although there were some reservations.

When MPs complete general debate on that bill and send it to committee for detailed study, they are scheduled to turn to another criminal-law bill that would regulate the use of wiretapping.

Last week, the Commons finally sent for committee study the bill to transform the family-allowances program—after nine days of general debate.

Almost simultaneously, the government put another piece of legislation on the debating agenda, one that would broaden eligibility for federal job-training help.

The Senate, marking time until the Commons sends it some legislation to consider, has adjourned until May 16—unless something comes up in the meantime.

Reject U.S. Funds, Union Urges

VANCOUVER (CP) — The United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union has called upon Environment Minister Jack Davis to reject partial American financing of salmon development projects on the Fraser River.

In a telegram the UFAWU urged Davis to adopt a "go-it-alone" stance and oppose a $14 million budget estimate by the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission which includes American financing of Fraser River projects.

b.c. briefs

A union spokesman said allowing the American financing would weaken negotiating positions over reciprocal fishing rights.

In recent talks, he said, Americans have demanded a large portion of the Fraser River salmon catch, basing their claims on American investment in Fraser River development projects.

B.C. at Disadvantage

BURNABY (CP) — Tax reforms by the federal government in the past year have put B.C. at a relative disadvantage to most other provinces, a Vancouver tax expert told the Pacific Northwest Regional Economic Conference.

J. K. Ralph, tax division manager of Arthur Anderson and Co. a chartered accountants firm said the emphasis on income tax relief for low-income taxpayers at the expense of middle-income individuals tends to favor poorer provinces.

He also said the reluctance to provide special industry tax concessions places major provincial industries at a disadvantage compared with the same industries in areas which do offer such concessions.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jean May Parker, mother of three children, was sent to prison for five years after a B.C. Supreme Court jury found her guilty of attempting to murder her common-law husband with a knife. William Lawrence White was left paralyzed, possibly for life.

The court was told the incident occurred early last New Year's morning following drinking and an argument.

Rally Brings Clash

ALESSANDRIA, Italy (Reuter) — Police and left-wing youths clashed Sunday night at an election rally of the Neo-Fascist Italian Social Movement party addressed by the party's leader, Giorgio Almirante. Five policemen were injured, three demonstrators arrested and five others charged and subsequently released.

Apollo 17 'The Big One'

HOUSTON (AP) — Apollo flies only once more, before Americans leave the moon to the solitude of the ages. But Apollo 17 will be the big one, the most exciting of them all.

Apollo 17 will attempt to answer questions man has asked through recorded history:

—Are gravitational waves, pouring across oceans of space from an early epoch of the universe, telling us when time began?

—Is the moon slowly fashioning an atmosphere and interacting with the solar winds to create the building blocks of future life?

—Under the bedrock of the frozen lunar interior, are there layers of ice that man can tap to make air and water for permanent bases on the moon?

"We'll have many, many answers," says Dr. Rocco Petrone, Apollo program director." "Not the final answers, no. But a far better understanding of it all."

Apollo 17, with astronauts Eugene Cernan, Ronald Evans and Dr. Harrison Schmitt aboard, departs for the moon Dec. 6.

MEASURE WAVES

Rocks take a back seat on this mission. The experiment that rouses scientists most is a surface gravimeter. On the quiet moon, it will detect waves of gravity that may have come across eons of time from the birthplace of the universe.

Life never evolved on the moon because there was no atmosphere and no water. But acid treatment of moon rocks have converted simple organic compounds into amino acids, the building blocks of life.

With another new surface instrument called a mass spectrometer, Apollo 17 will explore the possibility of the moon coming alive in the future.

It may determine that the solar winds implant atoms of hydrogen, oxygen, nitrogen and carbon in the lunar soil.

"At night, with cooling and shrinking, we think there are gases being vented by the moon and moving across the surface," Petrone said. "They can tell us if we are seeing the birth of an atmosphere."

The majority of scientists insist there is no water on the moon. But there are dissenters. Apollo 17 will seek an answer to that crucial question.

As the astronauts travel in the moon rover, a device will penetrate the surface to a depth of 5,000 feet with energy waves. Some of the waves will penetrate bedrock.

"If there is ice under the bedrock, it will be reflected and recorded on tape," Petrone said.

Cool Spring Caused Some Late Buddings

By May 1 we expect all our hardy trees and shurbs to have leafed out.

This week as we see the horsechestnut flower clusters expanding we get a bit frantic about the plants still showing little change from their winter appeareance.

To allay a few fears, here are some plants noted through the years as being slow starters.

Each year until timing schedules were written into a notebook I used to worry about Parrotia persica and the related Liquidambar styraciflua (Sweet-gum). Both belong in the Witchhazel family though it is certainly not apparent. Both wait until the end of April before showing a green sheathed leaf bud.

Tamarix, the pretty cloud-pink shrub which delights us with its show before May is over, has at present nothing more than scarlet and green pin points of color. To those who know the shrub, this is enough promise of the prettiest picture one could wish for.

The glowing Smoke-bush (Cotinus coggygria and its purple leaved variety C.c. purpureus) is a notorius slow starter.

Phone calls from worried owners ask if their shrubs have been winter killed because the whole appearance is still just a mass of brown twiggy branches. If you look closely, you will find the tip of every shoot has a lively bud. Soon these will unfold into the new shoots which bear the smoky panicles of tiny flower parts.

In fall the coloring of the foliage of these two shrubs is worth every minute of spring worry. On Cotinus coggygria the green leaves change to all the colors of bonfire flames; the purple-leaved variety goes to a plum red.

Albizzia juibrizzin (Silk-tree); the native Cascara-tree; and Koelreuteria paniculata (Goldenrain-tree) are three more trees which I find only now showing promise of growth.

But Catalpa has me worried every spring. It looks as though every bit of life has deserted the branches, yet faithfully in May the handsome leaves will appear.

Garry Oak seedlings, which I grow just because they belong to British Columbia, never show any life until May, but this I've grown accustomed to.

Having some early starters in the garden like the flowering plums, forsythias and spiraeas, spreads the spring interest over more weeks than if everything leafed out overnight at the same time. This year, perhaps the difference in times is more noticeable, because of the cooler weather during April.

SOLUTION TUESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In theory, good bidding produces good results. However, this does not imply that poor bidding produces poor results. As an example, observe today's deal, in which South's opening bid, on a bridge examination, would receive a failing grade. But if the consequence of his action were to serve as the criterion of right versus wrong, he would get an " A plus."

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

The fact that South had only 21 high-card points for his opening "book" bid of two no-trump (22-24) is not what one would call a heinous crime. But the fact that his spade suit was completely unguarded warrants severe censure, if definition is to serve as the criterion.

North, possessing 10 high-card points, plus three tens and two decent suits, certainly cannot be criticized for having slam aspirations. His three-club call was the initiation of the Stayman convention. It commanded South to bid a major suit of four or more cards, if South had one. When South showed his heart suit, North promptly contracted for the slam. In retrospect, six diamonds would have been the superior contract, with South not having the worry that he had at six hearts.

West's queen of spades opening lead was captured by dummy's ace. Had South played in puerile fashion, by taking the trump finesse at this point, he would have gone down, as can be observed. The defenders, in this case, would have made a trump and a spade trick.

But South played the hand in expert fashion. I suppose to atone for his inexpert bidding). At trick two he led dummy's queen of trumps, hoping to entice East, if the latter possessed the king, into covering the queen. When East followed with the five of hearts, South took dummy's queen with his ace.

Next came the ace, king and queen of clubs, with the hope that neither opponent would ruff any of these leads with a low trump. On the third club lead, the board's four of spades was discarded. When both opponents followed suit to all three club leads, South was home.

He then led his remaining spade and ruffed it in dummy. From here in all the defenders would make was West's king of hearts, for the defenders' one and only trick.

Ron got back into the car. "Did you see these crazy cows when you honked?" he asked. "It was quite an act."

"They're still there, about 20 in all," replied John. "What d'you mean?"

The boy smiled. "A fifth of those standing up lay down, and a quarter of those lying down stood up. So then half of them were standing up.

How many in all?

Friday's answer: 8 miles from Glyn.

THEY'LL NOTICE —BET ON IT

LEICESTER, England (UPI) — Ron Hallam has introduced something new in his off-track betting shops—a topless young lady chalking up race results on the board.

Jane Siddons, 21, had the first crack at the job this week and said while her boss feels her presence will increase trade, she is not so sure.

"I doubt whether many will even notice me," she said. "They get far too excited over their bets."

War-Protesting Nuns Arrested

NEW YORK — Seven nuns protesting the Vietnam war were arrested Sunday in St. Patrick's Cathedral after they stretched out in the main aisle during a Mass celebrated by Terence Cardinal Cooke.

The nuns, who wore street dresses, slacks or blue jeans instead of their religious garb, were booked on charges of disrupting a worship service. Also arrested was a lay teacher at a Catholic school.

A spokesman for the cardinal said the archdiocese would not press charges against the women.

SCALA
. . . drug victim

HOLLYWOOD — British-born actress Gia Scala was found dead late Sunday night in her Hollywood Hills home. Detectives said the 36-year-old entertainer apparently died from an overdose of drugs.

Miss Scala, who was born Giovanna Scoglio in Liverpool and was raised in Rome, previously had been confined to a state hospital for psychiatric observation.

Her screen credits included "Don't Go Near the Water," "Never Say Goodybe," "Garment Jungle," and "The Guns of Navarone."

BELLINGHAM — Rogan Jones, 76, a pioneer in Washington television broadcasting and a national innovator in pre-recorded broadcast programming, has died.

Jones purchased Bellingham radion station KVOS, now called GMI, in 1929. Following the Second World War, he received authorization for a television channel and built one of the first commercial TV cable systems in the country. He later moved into the FM radio field.

PORTLAND, Ore. — Racquel Welch got a cut lip and swollen face when she and another actress "got carried away" while filming a fight, a studio spokesman said. He named the other actress as Helena Kallianiotes. "What happened, she got slugged, he said. The scene was being filmed in a north Portland industrial area for a picture titled the Kansas City Bomber in which Miss Welch plays a roller derby star.

STAPLETON, England — The tax man refused raspberries from John Forster, a 33-year-old farmer who owes $104.40 in corporation taxes.

When a representative of inland revenue called at his farm, Forster offered him 40 pounds worth of raspberry bushes. The bailiff declined the offer and said he would return to collect some other property in lieu of tax.

SOUTH SHIELDS, England — Seven-year-old Dawn Holden's daddy bought her a school just to keep her happy. Furniture store owner Victor Holden said he bought St. Anne's private school for an undisclosed price because he heard it was for sale and worried it might go to someone who would want to change teaching methods. "My little girl is happy with the school as it is and I want her and her friends to stay that way."

SAN CARLOS, Calif.—William Johnson stood before 96 clergymen and lay delegates from 19 churches Sunday and told them why "My gay life style" should not bar him from being ordained a minister.

After 2½ hours of discussion Johnson, 25, of North Hollywood, had the votes of 62 delegates to endorse his ordination on June 25 as the first known homosexual pastor of the United Church of Christ.

Johnson came from Houston, Texas, and was a graduate of Berkeley's Pacific School of Religion when he began work for the San Carlos Community United Church of Christ in 1968.

ATHENS, Tex. — The furnishings of Jack Ruby's nightclub, from liquor cabinets to filing cabinets — in fact everything but the backroom safe — were sold Saturday at a public auction.

The furniture, barstools and even the wooden horse that was mounted on the sign of the Carousel Club, were auctioned.

Ruby was owner of the Carousel Club in Dallas on that day — Nov. 23, 1963 — he shot and killed presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald in the basement of the Dallas City Jail as Oswald was being transferred to the county jail.

Ruby died of cancer on Jan. 3, 1967, while awaiting a second murder trial. He was convicted of Oswald's murder on March 14, 1964, but the conviction was reversed Oct. 5, 1966.

FIERY LORD WEDS

LONDON (UPI) — Lord Shinwell, who as Emanuel Shinwell was a cabinet minister and a high official in the Labor Party, married Mrs. Sarah Hurst today. He is 87; the bride is 75.

Shinwell, still known as "Manny" to most of his friends, was one of the most colorful Labor leaders and members of parliament Britain ever produced.

He once creased the floor of the House of Commons and flattened an Opposition critic with a punch on the nose. The critic turned out to be a former boxing champion, but he didn't hit back.

Lord Shinwell's marriage surprised even his closest friends. Only two witnesses accompanied the bride and groom at the registry office ceremony.

Lord Shinwell was secretary for war from 1947 to 1950 and minister of defence until 1951. He was chairman of the national executive of the Labor Party until 1967 and held many other high party and government posts.

Police Seek Driver

DUNCAN — RCMP here are looking for the driver of a car which crashed into a tree early Saturday morning and left a passenger lying injured nearby.

A spokesman said this morning that Tariok Manhas, 28, of Paldi, was found suffering from a broken leg and facial lacerations near the smashed vehicle after police received a call from a passing motorist about 7:50 a.m.

The car had travelled 60 feet off the Cowichan Valley highway near Duncan and struck a tree.

RCMP do not know where or what time the vehicle went off the road. Police are still investigating the incident.

Reward To Deter Vandals

DUNCAN — Council now has a standing $100 reward for the conviction of anyone seen damaging city owned propery.

Duncan aldermen have passed a resolution introducing the reward after vandals caused over $200 damage last weekend by smashing windows and damaging a wall in the city's new $135,000 library-senior citizen complex. The building has not even been officially opened yet.

"I hope this will be a deterrent to get people to people to stop vandalizing property here," Mayor Jim Quaife said.

Better lighting and screens on windows will be installed in the rear of the new complex.

NEW CONSTABLE of Cowichan Indian Band, George Auckland, 30, will enforce band by-laws and traffic control on reserve roads after he completes his initial training with local RCMP. Auckland, father of three children, from Terrace, begins training for the $4,800 a year position in mid-May. The first constable to be hired by the band was dismissed six months ago.

KNOT CONTROL?

LAKE COWICHAN — Residents here would like to see a speed limit control set for motor boats on the Lake Cowichan river and lake before the swimming season starts.

A spokesman said the river is navigable for about 2wo-thirds of a mile below Cowichan Lake and during the summer this narrow waterway is filled with youngsters floating on rubber tubes amidst the constant droning of the high powered boats.

"We don't want to stop river traffic," one mother said. "We just want to slow it down."

Village administrator Bill Chappell said the council has no authority under the present legislation to enforce a speed limit on the river while Lake Cowichan RCMP said it was not likely a speed limit could be set.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Travellers' Diarrhea

TRAVELLERS' DIARRHEA

In an editorial in the Journal of the AMA, I read of the anxiety that many travelers have of the "travellers' diarrhea." Dr. M. G. Schultz, of the U.S. Center for Disease Control in Alabama, mentions a drug that has been used for several years, but today the Food and Drug Administration people much doubt if it has any effect.

Dr. Schultz says that the diarrhea most commonly begins at the beginning of a trip. This is so true. Years ago, when I went to Mexico City, during the first day on a train, knowing a good deal about bacteriology, I was careful to eat no food that was not cooked, or that could have been handled after being cooked. I drank no water, and I touched nothing with ice floating in it.

Nevertheless, I must have gotten a virus through the air, because I spent the whole of my first night in Mexico City suffering from a violent diarrhea. To me the two most interesting points are that I do not see how I could possibly have gotten the infection from food on the train or in the Mexican hotel and that I was over my trouble the next morning. That suggestion to me that the cause had been a virus.

A few years ago, able physicians from the United States and Mexico studied this problem in the laboratories of the fine medical school in Mexico and came to the conclusion that the trouble is probably due to a virus.

An important point for travellers is that usually they need not worry about getting medicine, because in the morning they will probably be well.

HEALTH HAZARD OF PET TURTLES

For years it has been known that many pet turtles carry the germs of salmonellosis, a disease which is a minor relative of typhoid fever, due to the salmonella bacteria. The main symptom is diarrhea. I read that as many as 300,000 cases of turtle-borne disease are reported each year — usually among children who were handling their pets. Infection is acquired directly from handling the pets or indirectly when water from turtle tanks contaminates kitchen counters and sinks.

Some 15 million turtles are sold each year in the United States. Unfortunately, attempts to control the problem by adding chemicals to inhibit salmonella in turtle breeding ponds have failed. About 10 per cent of the turtles sold are imported, and repeated studies have shown that shipments of imported turtles, as well as those in interstate commerce, are consistently infected with salmonella.

'STORK LADIES' LEAVE BABIES

RECLIFE, Brazil (Reuter) — Two mysterious "stork ladies" have left 13 babies at the doors of affluent childless couples here in recent weeks with written appeals to treat them well, press reports said.

Typical was a note pinned to the clothing of a baby boy left on the doorstep of Francisco Leite Bezerra which read: "I arrived on April 5 at 1300 hours. I want to eat at noon. Keep me because I need you. Don't leave me forsaken. Help me to be a normal man and useful to my country."

The press reports said the babies always are left late at night and the letters pinned to their clothing indicate the "stork ladies" are familiar with the financial circumstances of the intended parents.

Police were quoted as saying they believe the "stork ladies" are Recife society matrons seeking homes for babies of unwed mothers.

Formal application for adoption have been made by most of the couples who received babies, the reports said.

Rave Book Review Tagged to Author

SASKATOON (CP) — The man who wrote a "glowing" forward to Prime Minister Trudeau's latest book is actually the same man that wrote much of the book's contents, former prime minister John Diefenbaker says.

He told a testimonial dinner in his honor that Trudeau's book is "a collection of his speeches." Many of the prime minister's speeches are written by Ivan Head of Trudeau's office "and this same man wrote the Glowing Forward praising the quality of the speeches."

About 700 persons attended the dinner.

The former prime minister also said Information Canada could well turn into a "snooping service" under the government's proposal to establish a clipping service. The service would record all news in newspapers, television and radio reflecting on government policies.

He called the Trudeau government's policies a "Disneyland fantasy" with "cockeyed nightmare schemes" leading to a deterioration of the country's natural greatness.

Diefenbaker also said local initiative projects are wasting millions of dollars.

He said the recent expenditure of $25,000 to improve the appearance of the prime minister's office is deplorable.

"Parliament no longer takes an effective look at expenditures."

Supreme Court Supports Breath Test

OTTAWA (CP) — Compulsory breath tests to determine whether a driver is impaired are not ruled out by the Canadian Bill of Rights, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled Monday in an unanimous judgment.

The high court made the ruling in rejecting an appeal by John Curr of Toronto whose maintenance was that in being forced to take the breath tests, he was giving evidence against himself.

Said Mr. Justice Roland Ritchie:

"I think . . . the words protection against self-incrimination as they occur in . . . the Bill of Rights are to be taken as meaning protection against self-incriminating statements, and not as embracing incriminating conditions of the body such as the alcoholic content of the breath or blood."

Mr. Curr's appeal is one of three legal tests against the breath test laws which make it mandatory for drivers to give breath samples when requested by police officers.

STUDY OTHER POINTS

Still to be decided by the high court is whether a driver has the right to consult a lawyer before taking the test; and whether the law should be struck down until the government finds a suitable containers that motorists can also be given samples for a possible defence.

Mr. Justice Bora Laskin, who wrote the main reasons for the nine-member court, said giving a breath sample "doesn't raise the question of illegally-obtained statements or admissions."

He said he also believed that provisions of the law compelling a person to take the breath test "without concurrent protection against its use in evidence against him does not offend against the self-incrimination guarantee" in the Bill of Rights."

MR. Justice Laskin also said it was within "the scope of judicial notice to recognize that Parliament has acted in a matter that is of great social concern, this is the human and economic cost of highway accidents arising from drunk driving."

Nor was there anything argued during the appeal to suggest that persons right to security of the person were affected by provisions of the drinking laws.

REFUSED TO TAKE TEST

Mr. Curr was convicted in November, 1970, of refusing to take the breath test.

Judge Charles M. A. Charles agreed with his contention that the Bill of Rights protected him from giving evidence against himself in the form of the test and acquitted him of the charge.

Judge Charles M. A. Charles agreed with his contention that the Bill of Rights protected him from giving evidence against himself in the form of the test and acquitted him of the charge.

The Supreme Court of Ontario and the Ontario Court of Appeal ruled against that finding and Mr. Curr then appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Some Builders Ignore Lockout

A union spokesman said this morning it "looks like" most major contractors in Victoria have put a lockout into effect and closed their building sites.

However, John Schibli, secretary of the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council, added that there are some members of Construction Labor Relations Association working.

He did not wish to identify them. Each one was being checked to see if it was a full or partial work being undertaken. Schibli said the unions will offer no impediment if these contractors want to carry on as usual.

CLRA, representing 840 contractors in negotiations with 18 unions and 30,000 men in B.C., instituted a lockout effective at the end of Friday's work. The two sides were unable to reach agreement on new contracts to replace contracts which expired March 31.

Schibli said there was no picketing this morning but all job sites were being checked and "we'll judge the situation as it comes up."

He said his own union, the carpenters, is willing to carry on work at the nearly-completed addition to Gorge Road Hospital, where Cana Construction instituted a lockout.

He was willing to discuss the matter of other tradesmen doing the same with their unions.

CLRA is expected to decide this week whether schools and hospital construction should be exempt from the lockout, as suggested by Labor Minister James Chabot and the B.C. Federation of Labor.

A spokesman for the CLRA group said he knows of no members that are not going along with the lockout. He added that CLRA members cannot sign interim agreements because the group itself has sole bargaining rights.

Unaffected by the lockout are non-union segments of the building industry, mainly in house building and small apartment and commercial work, contractors signed to national-international agreements and independent contractors signing interim agreements.

Negotiations between the two sides deadlocked after CLRA offered wage increases of between 65 and 80 cents an hour over two years, coupled with demands that unions give up certain travel time allowances and relax some protective clauses.

Unions have been seeking a variety of wage increases which contractors said range from 10 per cent over one year to as high as 56.3 per cent over two years, plus reduction in the work week to 35 hours from 37½ hours.

FISH PLANT HEARING URGED

The federal government's refusal to fund construction of a fish cannery at Port Simpson has prompted Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford to call for a public hearing into the west coast fishing industry.

Shelford sent a telegram last week to Prime Minister Trudeau requesting the hearing.

Shelford said that any delay will "greatly damage the belief of the Indian people in the sincerity of the government."

Last month the federal government rejected the idea of a new fish cannery at Port Simpson to be operated by Indians.

"In the best interests of unity and the right of all to be heard on this important issued, I urge you to immediately call a public hearing at Prince Rupert so that all will have an opportunity to air their views on the long-term development of the fishing industry on the Pacific coast," Shelford's wire said.

The cannery has been on the drawing board for three years at a cost of $74,000. Shelford earlier expressed differences with the federal government after it rejected the scheme.

No Finger, No Loot For Bandit

MONTVILLE, N.J. (AP) — A masked bandit lost the loot and the tip of a finger outside a bank here early Sunday when his intended victim slammed his car door and drove away, police reported.

The bandit then fired two shots through the car's window, one of which grazed the chest of Charles Blaing, an attendant at a hamburger stand.

Blaing, who was depositing Saturday night's receipts at the State Bank of New Jersey's branch here, drove to a nearby service station to phone police. He did not discover the severed digit until he opened his door.

Pusher's Hoard Dug Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Federal agents said Saturday they had dug up $978,000 cash in the back yard of a convicted heroin trafficker, and found another $100,000 hidden in a basement wall.

It was said to be the largest cash haul ever made by the bureau of narcotics and dangerous drugs.

The new find was located at the Bronx home of Louis Cirillo, 49, who was convicted April 25 on conspiracy to violate federal narcotics laws and possession with intent to distribute 80 kilograms of heroin. He is in jail awaiting sentence, which could be up to 60 years.

Frank Monastero, associate regional director of the narcotics bureau, described Cirillo as the "most substantial trafficker the bureau has ever found."

Quakers In Vigil

Members o fthe local Religious Society of Friends (Quakers) and their sympathizers will hold a silent vigil at the Cenotaph on the Legislative Building grounds at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The vigil, part of a cross-Canada demonstration, is in support of Quakers holding a "Call for public witness" before the White House protesting U.S. action in Southeast Asia.

"Three years ago, a group of Quakers was told by Henry Kissinger, 'Give us six months. If we haven't ended the war then, you can come back and tear down the fence,'" local spokesman Bart Sorensen said today.

"We cannot stand idly by while the Canadian war industry's profits reach $1.5 billion," Sorensen said. "There are limits to what you do for money."

The Quakers are protesting "a president who promised peace, but intensifies indiscriminate destruction of human beings, their culture and resources."

Students Disrupt Meeting

MONT GABRIEL, Que. (CP) — About 40 students from Quebec, Iran and Brazil disrupted the closing session Saturday of a three-day meeting of international criminologists, preventing Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer from delivering a scheduled speech.

The students were protesting what they called the brutality of police in Quebec, Brazil, Iran, the Ivory Coast and other developing countries.

They broke into the conference hall and took over the sound system at the meeting in this Laurentian resort, about 30 miles north of Montreal. About 100 delegates representing 34 countries were present.

Goyer, who had not yet delivered his speech, and the delegates listened patiently to the students for about half an hour and then began to leave the room.

The anti-terrorist squad of the provincial police was on duty but decided not to eject the demonstrators.

URGE FIGHT

The students said sociologists, criminologists and other social scientists should openly fight existing institutions when their research indicates these institutions are the cause of social problems.

They also said that work done by the International Centre for Comparative Criminology in Montreal, the host of the conference, is contributing to the support of repressive, high-policed political regimes.

CURBING THE PAIN Wilbur Campbell, chairman of Moccasin Miles, rests during Saturday's 25-mile walkathon from Vancouver to New Westminster.

500 WALK IN MOCCASIN MILES

VANCOUVER (CP) — An estimated 500 persons took part Saturday in the Moccasin Miles 25-mile walk from Vancouver to New Westminster and back to raise funds for Indian activities.

First to cross the finish line was Joseph Jazy, 24, of Vancouver, who completed the hike in two hours and 40 minutes.

Second place went to Billy Nelson, 17, of Port Alberni.

The walkers included Vancouver Ald. Harry Rankin, who has participated in several walks over the years.

Moccasin Miles, the annual walkathon of the Resources for Native Progress Association, began in 1969 and the resulting proceeds paid for a unity campaign which led to the foundation of the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs.

The walk also made initial contributions to the B.C. Association of Non-Status Indians and helped other Indian activities.

Walkers ask sponsors to pledge so much a mile, then turn over their contributions.

The amount of money raised in Saturday's march, held in ideal sunny weather, will not be known until later, a spokesman for the event said.

Tanker Route 'Stupid'

OTTAWA (CP) — Patrick McTaggart-Cowan, executive director of the Science Council of Canada, says that despite advances in cleanup techniques, the threat of oil spills makes a tanker route down the B.C. coast a "thoroughly stupid" idea.

"It is just a matter of time before you foul the coast, and if you're using supertankers that will be a real foul-up."

McTaggart-Cowan, who led cleanup operations after the tanker Arrow sank in Nova Scotia's Chedabucto Bay two years ago, was speaking on CTV's Question Period, broadcast Sunday.

The government and Commons have also condemned the Pacific Coast tanker route, which the U.S. government and oil companies have proposed to take Alaskan oil to U.S. West Coast refineries.

Cabinet ministers have recommended a Mackenzie Valley pipeline as a safer alternative.

McTaggart-Cowan said Canada learned a lot from the Arrow cleanup, which he said cost about $4 million.

Procedures and equipment, including a Canadian-patented slick-licker that's "the best picker-upper of goop from the water that there is in the world," already have proven effective, he said.

He cited removal of bunker oil from "that stupid Panamanian ship" that ran aground off Vancouver Island after crossing the Pacific with little more than a hand-held compass for navigation.

But the coastal tanker route was a special peril because earthquakes are common on the proposed cross-Alaska pipeline route and at the port where the pipeline will feed the tankers, and because of the accident rate of ocean-going tankers.

He suggested that a partial solution would be establishment of an international traffic control system for ships like that used for aircraft.

On the environmental problem generally, the science council director said he differs with the "gloom and doom boys" who voice hopelessness.

The recovery of the Thames River in England was perhaps the most spectacular example of how quickly nature will restore itself "once you stop being completely stupid."

He also took issue with the Senate committee on science policy, which has recommended that government spending on the social sciences be multiplied six or seven times by 1975. That would be about 30 per cent of government aid to all science.

While he supported increased aid to the social sciences, the rate of increase proposed by the Senate committee "is too fast."

"I don't think it could be spent wisely."

One Halifax Strike Over

HALIFAX (CP) — One of three wage disputes facing city council was settled Sunday when striking transit workers voted to accept an agreement worked out during a 10-hour bargaining session Saturday.

Gerald Hollett, president of Local 508 of the Amalgamated Transit Workers' Union, said the men voted 118 to 49 to accept a 55-cent-an-hour increase, ending a seven-week strike that tied up public transportation in this city of 130,000.

Council still must negotiate new wage contracts with its firemen and policemen, both of whom have voted in favor of strikes to back their demands.

HEROIN: The Black Plague So Few Know About

This is the first article in a six-part series on the serious, rapidly growing menace of heroin addiction in Greater Victoria.

Times reporter Robert Olver submerged himself in the murky subculture of drugs, pushing and addiction for two months to produce the series.

By ROBERT OLVER
Times Staff

(First of Six)

Drug abuse in Victoria is a plague which is as deadly a threat to the community as would be an epidemic of a new, unknown and virulent strain of typhus.

It is a plague about which few people — even those who might be expected to be well informed on the subject — know anything for certain, and about which absolutely no one knows everything.

And whatever truth there is, is obscured by misconceptions, misinformation, prejudice and apathy.

That is the consensus which emerges following two months of investigation by the Times.

During those months this reporter talked and became friendly with dozens of addicts. He gained the sometimes uneasy trust of drug pushers and was eventually allowed to be present when customers came to buy.

He watched while money changed hands and drugs were sold, often with undercover narcotics agents only a few feet away.

And then there were dozens of conversations with those agents, the "narcs," the people who are hated, feared and despised in the twilight world of illegal drugs. There were still more conversations with judges, politicians, doctors, priests, teachers and social workers.

Here is what some of those people say about the spread of drug abuse.

Dr. Conrad Schwartz, chairman of the B.C. Medical Association's committee on drugs: "There is clear evidence that the use of narcotics is spreading at a rapid rate."

Dave Turner, probation officer attached to Victoria's Family Court: "The number of cases I deal with are increasing sharply and younger and younger people are getting involved."

Dr. Larry Axmaker, psychologist in the special education branch of Greater Victoria School Board: "Children are becoming acquainted with drugs when they are very young."

Mrs. Margo Hall, guidance counsellor at Mount Douglas senior secondary school: "The drug culture is part of the lives of our young people."

D. M. Bartlett, narcotics auditor's officer of the federal fool and drug department: "We've got a bad problem and most of us don't even know about it."

SAIGON — South Vietnam's first provincial capital fell to the North Vietnamese today after five days of savage assaults in the northern sector by troops of four divisions, giving Hanoi its biggest victory of its 38-day offensive.

South Vietnamese troops abandoned Quang Tri and into Communist hands went territory stretching from the demilitarized zone 27 miles to the south.

The South Vietnamese military commanders abandoned the 10,000 government troops in that provincial capital today and flew to the safety of Hue.

This May Day triumph followed the seizure of full control of the population and important rice crops along the central coast, the cutting of Highway One in crucial points north of Da Nang, site of the U.S. air base, and renewed Communist pressure on Kontum, another provincial capital in the central highlands.

Senior U.S. officers in Hue said Brig. Gen. Vu Van Giai, commander of the 3rd Division in Quang Tri, lost communications with other units there and "began throwing temper tantrums because he didn't have control over his own people." The Americans said they left because the command structure disintegrated.

With the fall of Quang Tri, capital of the province of the same name, a threat became more imminent to the old imperial capital of Hue, now only 24 miles south of the northernmost defensive line of the South Vietnamese on Highway One.

ADVISERS EVACUATED

Field reports said the South Vietnamese troops were trying to escape the fallen capital as best they could. All American advisers were safe-evacuated by helicopter shortly before it was decided to abandon plans to defend the city. Most of the civilians had long since fled and only a few remained.

Quang Tri had a population of about 27,000.

U.S. and South Vietnamese officials had said the objective of the North Vietnamese offensive was to seize Quang Tri and Hue, capitals of the two northernmost provinces. Hue is 35 miles south of Quang Tri.

There have been frequent reports that the North Vietnamese would attempt to annex the two northernmost provinces of Quang Tri and Thua Thien as part of a plan to give them political bargaining power.

Other objectives of the North Vietnamese offensives are to defeat the South Vietnamese army and prove that President Nixon's Vietnamization program is a failure.

In Floresville, Texas, President Nixon said Sunday night that only American air and sea power is stopping a Communist takeover of South Vietnam. He vowed to bomb and shell North Vietnam as long as the enemy offensive continues.

"The North Vietnamese are taking a very great risk if they continue this invasion of the south," Nixon said. "I'll just leave it there and let them take their choice."

Nixon spoke in response to questions following an informal barbecue supper at the ranch home of Treasury Secretary John Connally.

COURAGE TOASTED

Guests at the party — 200 strong — spontaneously rose after Nixon's remarks and drank a toast with French champagne "to the courage of the president."

"In Moscow, Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny declared militant solidarity today with those battling "U.S. aggression" in Indochina in a May Day speech three weeks before President Nixon's scheduled trip to Moscow.

Podgorny told a cheering May Day crowd on Red Square that the Soviet Union reaffirms its "militant solidarity with the courageous patriots of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia who lead the heroic struggle against U.S. aggression."

And in Washington, Secretary of State William Rogers says President Nixon was forced to increase military activities in Vietnam to protect the lives of 16,000 U.S. troops in the provinces under Communist seige for the past month.

"Just imagine what would happen if the president failed to take the action which he has taken? Suppose we lost 16,000 Americans? Suppose they were captured, killed or massacred? The president has an obligation to take action to protect these men," Rogers said Sunday.

Burnaby Servants Strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — Civic workers walked off their jobs today in Burnaby, making it the second Greater Vancouver municipality hit by a public service strike.

The 600 employees set up picket lines around City Hall, RCMP stations and the public works yard in Burnaby as they widened their efforts to win improved wage contracts.

The strike is expected to shut down garbage collection, water, sewage and street maintenance. Vancouver city services have been halted since Thursday, when 2,800 workers walked out.

Workers walked out in Vancouver following collapse in February of contract negotiations between the Canadian Union of Public Employees, the Municipal and Regional Employees Union and seven municipalities in the Greater Vancouver area.

The unions said today they are prepared to return to the bargaining table, with the duration of the agreement open to discussion and negotiation.

Their decision followed a meeting Saturday to formulate a reply to the municipalities' demand that they commit themselves in writing to negotiate a two-year agreement instead of the one-year contract they have been asking.

The unions rejected an offer which the Municipal Labor Relations Bureau, which bargains for the municipalities, said amounted to a 9.55-per-cent increase in wages and fringe benefits in a one-year contract.

The unions have demanded a 20-per-cent raise in one year.

In Burnaby, CUPE represents both inside and outside workers while in Vancouver the inside workers are part of the MREU.

Meanwhile, as the Vancouver strike went into its fifth day today; garbage continued to pile up and wind scattered paper and other rubbish along city streets. Residents found themselves locked out of park buildings and other recreational facilities.

In Toronto more than 140 fires broke out in temporary garbage dumps in the metropolitan area during the weekend as negotiations aimed at ending the strike of municipal outside workers continued to plod along.

The Toronto fire department said most of the fires were the result of "boys with matches" and "careless smoking."

The strike, which began three weeks ago today, involves 4,000 workers including garbagemen, street and road maintenance workers, parks employees, sewage and water treatment workers, ambulance drivers, ferry boat operators and zookeepers. They are members of Local 43, Canadian Union of Public Employees.

ELK RAILWAY APPEAL UPHELD BY COURT

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada today found that the Canadian transport commission erred in a major point of law rejecting an application which would have allowed the Kootenay and Elk railway to move into the rich coal market in southeastern British Columbia.

The commission is studying the court ruling to see whether the Kootenay and Elk application should be heard again.

The court split six to three on the single point of law in which the commission was found to be wrong. On other legal matters, the court ruled that the commission judged correctly.

In its decision, the commission said the Railway Act prohibits a common carrier, such as Burlington Northern, from interchanging traffic with a company that is not a common carrier such as the Kootenay and Elk.

The court said the section in the Railway Act mentioned by the commission is not intended to prohibit traffic but to allow two common carriers to interchange traffic.

Liquor Prices Up

A major increase in liquor prices went into effect today, hitting imported wine drinkers the hardest.

A spokesman for the Liquor Control Board said the price changes, almost all on imported products, were caused by prime cost increases, freighting costs and revaluing of British currency.

The big increases in French wines and liqueurs are a direct result of the producers' own price increases, an apparent response to a world-wide rising demand, an official said.

A bottle of Chablis Cruse wine has gone up by $2.15 to $6. A bottle of Hennessy cognac rises by $1.10 to $9.95.

338 CHANGES

There were 338 price changes, only 18 being decreases. Most of them were on domestic products.

Some rye whiskies went down 10 cents.

Five B.C. wines went down,

GOLD PRICE SETS POST-WAR RECORD

LONDON (AP) — Sustained industrial demand sent the price of gold above $50 an ounce today, a post-war record.

Bullion dealers fixed the free market price at $50.45, up from the previous high of $49.60 an ounce at the afternoo nfixing Friday.

Peterson Eyes Boards

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson today asked for an immediate end to billboard advertising of tobacco products in the province to comply with last week's Supreme Court decision upholding the government's tobacco and liquor ad ban.

At a press conference, Peterson said he has telegrammed Seaboard Advertising Ltd. requesting that "you take immediate steps" to end billboard tobacco ads.

Peterson said Seaboard is the major company continuing the advertising of tobacco products despite the legislation which went into effect in September, 1971.

Peterson also said he is making a "public appeal to newspapers published within the province" to respect the ad ban.

In Montreal the Canadian Tobacco Manufacturers' Association said it plans to take the British Columbia Supreme Court ruling upholding the B.C. government's ban on tobacco and liquor advertising to a higher court.

Peterson also mentioned Time Magazine, saying "I urge them to have their western edition comply with the legislation."

He said he is "extremely pleased with the (B.C. Supreme Court) judgment which confirms the unanimous action of the B.C. legislature."

Bomb Kills Man At Ulster Plant

BELFAST (AP) — A chain of bomb blasts ripped through a big synthetic fibres plant today, killing one man and injuring 10 others.

The explosions left one man with both arms ripped off and another with serious head injuries as flames engulfed the factory at Carrickfergus, 10 miles from here.

Security forces said that 20 minutes before the first blast they received an anonymous telephone tip that explosives had been planted in a canteen at the factory, owned by the British Chemical combine Courtaulds.

The attack was blamed on the underground Irish Republican Army.

PROTESTANT BACKLASH

Security forces fear the long-awaited Protestant backlash may have started against the IRA's guerrilla campaign and Whitelaw's concessions toward the province's Roman Catholic minority.

Shops and pubs were set ablaze in a three-hour fight Sunday between rioters and police in eastern Belfast's Newtownards Road district, a Protestant stronghold. Bloody riots in eastern Belfast Saturday night injured 12 police and 13 civilians.

A spokesman at Belfast police headquarters said: "It's a case of the gamekeepers turned poachers. The Protestants crowds are attacking us. The Protestant backlash seems under way."

Sunday night and early today, at least six shops and pubs were wrecked by flying rocks or set ablaze with flaming gasoline bombs. Police reported wide-spread looting.

POLICE STONED

Bottles and stones rained down on police from a mob of about 300 who staged lightning raids out of the darkness. Three policemen were injured and four rioters arrested.

In the Catholic enclave of Ardoyne, youths commandeered vehicles and turned them into blazing barricades to protect gunmen who fired at army patrols.

The British troops shot back but claimed no hits.

Socreds Lead in Everything—Just Ask!

British Columbia's Social Credit government is a leader in everything from social welfare to conservation and pollution control — if you take at face value the broadcast statements of cabinet ministers.

The three opposition party leaders don't.

The provincial government's controversial advertising program, Ask Your Provincial Government, got its first airing on B.C. radio stations on the weekend. Opposition reaction was quick and critical.

"Propaganda," chorused the three, each choosing his own definitive adjectives to embellish the condemnation.

"Orchestrated propaganda," Conservative leader Derril Warren said. "Strictly 1952 politics."

"Merely Socred electioneering propaganda," Liberal leader Dr. Pat McGeer agreed.

COST $200,000

"I refuse to comment on cheap Social Credit propaganda, the cost of which is taking food off the tables of old age pensioners of this province," New Democratic Party leader Dave Barrett stated.

The program will cost the taxpayers of B.C. $200,000.

Here are some of the questions and answers which prompted the opposition reaction.

"A Penticton man says he doubts that the department of rehabilitation and social improvement really helps people in need. For the reply, in his office at Victoria the minister, the Hon. Phil Gaglardi."

"Yes, it sure does, and here's how. This month, 3,800 men and women who are blind or totally and permanently disabled received incomes under the Blind and Disabled Pensions and Allowances Act. Last month social assistance was paid to 16,000 deserted or widowed mothers with children. Today, through its foster homes and special services, the department is caring for almost 7,000 children. Children who have been abandoned, abused, orphaned or for a number of reasons cannot remain safely in their own homes. When we stop to add it all up do you know that almost 200,000 citizens of our province will receive some direct benefit or allowance this month from your department of rehabilitation and social improvement."

POLLUTION

Another question concerned pollution. What, a letter from Castlegar asked, was the public works department doing in the field of pollution control?

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant replied:

"First of all we have, we lead in the construction of all-electric public buildings and we are also changing over to gas in our heating plants and have done this in a number. At the present time we have no coal burning plants left in our institutions anywhere in the province and we have also installed efficient treatment plants at Haney and Alco to treat sewage and furthermore we have led for several years in the disposal of garbage by burning it and using the resulting heat to generate steam heat for the different buildings and other offices."

"Thank you, Mr. Minister," Ray Orchard, announcer on the recorded broadcasts and a public employee, the provincial secretary department's administration officer respon-

Lew Labored Long in Bid for Job

RED SOX NIP BRAVES

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I'm trying to win a starting job in the rotation," Boston's Lew Krausse said, and his manager, Eddie Kasko, quickly responded: "Krausse is certainly going to get another start after the helluva job he did today."

What Krausse did Sunday was give up a single to Len Randle, the first batter he faced, then hold Texas hitless until the ninth inning when Randle nicked him for another hit.

Unfortunately, Boston wasn't getting any runs for Lew. And so, after nine virtually flawless innings, he was removed for a pinch-hitter.

But all was not lost. Carlton Fish had doubled in the top of the 10th before Bob Burda batted for Krausse. And after Burda was given an intentional walk, Tommy Harper crashed a two-run double to the left centre field wall, then Luis Aparicio doubled Harper home.

And after Bill Lee came on in relief to set down the side in order in the bottom of the 10th, the Red Sox had a 3-0 triumph over the Rangers and Krausse had his first victory in a Boston uniform.

YANKS, TWINS SPLIT

In Sunday's other American League games, New York Yankees beat Minnesota 5-4 before the Twins won the second game of their doubleheader by the same score,, Milwaukee Brewers beat Oakland Athletics 3-1, Chicago White Sox defeated Detroit Tigers 6-3, California Angels edged Baltimore Orioles 4-3 and Cleveland Indians outlasted Kansas City Royals 5-3 in 16 innings before the second game of their twin bill was rained out.

"It was the longest I've pitched since last August," said the weary Krausse, who came to the Red Sox as part of a 16-player deal with Milwaukee.

He got the start because Marty Pattin had a back injury. And midway in the game, the work and Texas heat were getting the best of him. And hitting a two-bagger didn't help matters.

Rusty Torres' tie-breaking pinch double in the bottom of the ninth inning gave the Yanks the opening game and Rod Carew's tie-breaking two-run single in the eighth inning of the nightcap provided the Twins with a split.

In the National League, Pittsburgh Pirate manager Bill Virdon commented that "it's just a matter of time before we start doing our thing."

They'd better hurry — they've lost five straight games already.

The defending world champions, who never dropped more than four in a row during last year's run to the pennant, continued to spin Sunday when beaten 6-1 by Atlanta Braves.

pitching, which helped them beat the Baltimore Orioles in the 1971 World Series, is nowhere in sight so far this year. None of the starters has lasted a full game.

Virdon held a closed-door meeting with the Pirates after the game which plunged the club's mark to 5-8. The manager promised better things than the current fifth-place status in the East.

In the National League's other games Sunday, Chicago Cubs defeated Cincinnati Reds 6-4; Houston Astros beat St. Louis Cardinals 7-6; Los Angeles Dodgers downed New York Mets 7-0; Montreal Expos topped San Francisco 5-2 in the first game, then dropped the second 13-2, and Philadelphia Phillies took two from San Diego Padres, 6-1 and 3-1.

Top-Ranked Ted Rolls Into Eights

Top-seeded Ted Davies of Oak Bay swept by Walter Lysak of the Racquet Club in straight sets Sunday and advanced to the men's singles quarter-finals of Victoria's B.C. Festival of Sports tennis tournament.

Davies and clubmate John Nichol then teamed up to crush D. Wild and E. Payne 6-0, 6-0.

Low teamed with Paul Moss to stop George Walton and Robin Fisher in men's doubles play.

Ireland Lags In Final Drag Round

Keith Winterbottom of Port Moody, behind the wheel of an H-MP Ford Falcon, defeated Dennis Ireland of Victoria in the final round of the modified eliminator bracket before a season-opening crowd of approximately 2,100 fans Sunday at Van-Isle Dragways.

Ireland was driving a D-MP 1955 Chevrolet.

In the super-stock bracket, Ry McDonald of Richmond booted his SS-PA '56 Chev to victory over Terry Hardy of Vancouver, who was driving a SS-DA '63 Plymouth.

Howard Hilborun of Port Alberni won stock eliminator honors in his C-SA '72 Chevelle by beating Campbell River's Art Porin, who is campaigning in a B-S '69 Dodge Dart.

Next drag-racing action is scheduled for May 14.

You're looking at the cockpit of a Celica ST. The hot little hardtop from Toyota. The Celica is a car you'll want to drive just for the pure pleasure of it all. And the Celica has it all. Luxurious interior. Full instrumentation. Powerful 2 litre O.H.C. engine. In fact once you've seen it you'd expect it to have a long list of costly options. Instead it has a long list of standard equipment including radial tires and an AM/FM radio. It looks like one of those high performance cars. But it doesn't cost like one. Surprising as it may seem, the Celica ST costs less than $3400. And that's for everything. So it isn't surprising you couldn't guess what it is. Now that you know, drive a Celica ST and really be surprised.

HEROIN: The Black Plague So Few Know About

This is the first article in a six-part series on the serious, rapidly growing menace of heroin addiction in Greater Victoria.

Times reporter Robert Olver submerged himself in the murky subculture of drugs, pushing and addiction for two months to produce the series.

By ROBERT OLVER
Times Staff

Drug abuse in Victoria is a plague which is as deadly a threat to the community as would be an epidemic of a new, unknown and virulent strain of typhus.

It is a plague about which few people — even those who might be expected to be well informed on the subject — know anything for certain, and about which absolutely no one knows everything.

And whatever truth there is, is obscured by misconceptions, misinformation, prejudice and apathy.

That is the consensus which emerges following two months of investigation by the Times.

During those months this reporter talked and became friendly with dozens of addicts. He gained the sometimes uneasy trust of drug pushers and was eventually allowed to be present when customers came to buy.

He watched while money changed hands and drugs were sold, often with undercover narcotics agents only a few feet away.

And then there were dozens of conversations with those agents, the "narcs," the people who are hated, feared and despised in the twilight world of illegal drugs. There were still more conversations with judges, politicians, doctors, priests, teachers and social workers.

Here is what some of those people say about the spread of drug abuse.

Dr. Conrad Schwartz, chairman of the B.C. Medical Association's committee on drugs: "There is clear evidence that the use of narcotics is spreading at a rapid rate."

Dave Turner, probation officer attached to Victoria's Family Court: "The number of cases I deal with are increasing sharply and younger and younger people are getting involved."

Dr. Larry Axmaker, psychologist in the special education branch of Greater Victoria School Board: "Children are becoming acquainted with drugs when they are very young."

Mrs. Margo Hall, guidance counsellor at Mount Douglas senior secondary school: "The drug culture is part of the lives of our young people."

D. M. Bartlett, narcotics auditor's officer of the federal food and drug department: "We've got a bad problem and most of us don't even know about it."

SAIGON — South Vietnam's first provincial capital fell to the North Vietnamese today after five days of savage assaults in the northern sector by troops of four divisions, giving Hanoi its biggest victory of its 38-day offensive.

South Vietnamese troops abandoned Quang Tri and into Communist hands went territory stretching from the demilitarized zone 27 miles to the south.

The South Vietnamese military commanders abandoned the 10,000 government troops in that provincial capital today and flew to the safety of Hue.

This May Day triumph followed the seizure of full control of the population and important rice crops along the central coast, the cutting of Highway One in crucial points north of Da Nang, site of the U.S. air base, and renewed Communist pressure on Kontum, another provincial capital in the central highlands.

Senior U.S. officers in Hue said Brig. Gen. Vu Van Giai, commander of the 3rd Division in Quang Tri, lost communications with other units there and "began throwing temper tantrums because he didn't have control over his own people." The Americans said they left because the command structure disintegrated.

With the fall of Quang Tri, capital of the province of the same name, a threat became more imminent to the old imperial capital of Hue, now only 24 miles south of the northernmost defensive line of the South Vietnamese on Highway One.

ADVISERS EVACUATED

Field reports said the South Vietnamese troops were trying to escape the fallen capital as best they could. All American advisers were safe-evacuated by helicopter shortly before it was decided to abandon plans to defend the city. Most of the civilians had long since fled and only a few remained.

Quang Tri had a population of about 27,000.

U.S. and South Vietnamese officials had said the objective of the North Vietnamese offensive was to seize Quang Tri and Hue, capitals of the two northernmost provinces. Hue is 35 miles south of Quang Tri.

There have been frequent reports that the North Vietnamese would attempt to annex the two northernmost provinces of Quang Tri and Thua Thien as part of a plan to give them political bargaining power.

Other objectives of the North Vietnamese offensives are to defeat the South Vietnamese army and prove that President Nixon's Vietnamization program is a failure.

In Floresville, Texas, President Nixon said Sunday night that only American air and sea power is stopping a Communist takeover of South Vietnam. He vowed to bomb and shell North Vietnam as long as the enemy offensive continues.

"The North Vietnamese are taking a very great risk if they continue this invasion of the south," Nixon said. "I'll just leave it there and let them take their choice."

Nixon spoke in response to questions following an informal barbecue supper at the ranch home of Treasury Secretary John Connally.

COURAGE TOASTED

Guests at the party — 200 strong — spontaneously rose after Nixon's remarks and drank a toast with French champagne "to the courage of the president."

In Moscow, Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny declared militant solidarity today with those battling "U.S. aggression" in Indochina in a May Day speech three weeks before President Nixon's scheduled trip to Moscow.

Podgorny told a cheering May Day crowd on Red Square that the Soviet Union reaffirms its "militant solidarity with the courageous patriots of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia who lead the heroic struggle against U.S. aggression."

And in Washington, Secretary of State William Rogers says President Nixon was forced to increase military activities in Vietnam to protect the lives of 16,000 U.S. troops in the provinces under Communist seige for the past month.

"Just imagine what would happen if the president failed to take the action which he has taken? Suppose we lost 16,000 Americans? Suppose they were captured, killed or massacred? The president has an obligation to take action to protect these men," Rogers said Sunday.

Strike Spreads to Burnaby

VANCOUVER (CP) — Civic workers walked off their jobs today in Burnaby, making it the second Greater Vancouver municipality hit by a public service strike.

The 600 employees set up picket lines around City Hall, RCMP stations and the public works yard in Burnaby as they widened their efforts to win improved wage contracts.

The strike is expected to shut down garbage collection, water, sewage and street maintenance. Vancouver city services have been halted since Thursday, when 2,800 workers walked out.

Workers walked out in Vancouver following collapse in February of contract negotiations between the Canadian Union of Public Employees, the Municipal and Regional Employees Union and seven municipalities in the Greater Vancouver area.

The unions said today they are prepared to return to the bargaining table, with the duration of the agreement open to discussion and negotiation.

Their decision followed a meeting Saturday to formulate a reply to the municipalities' demand that they commit themselves in writing to negotiate a two-year agreement instead of the one-year contract they have been asking.

The unions rejected an offer which the Municipal Labor Relations Bureau, which bargains for the municipalities, said amounted to a 9.55-per-cent increase in wages and fringe benefits in a one-year contract.

The unions have demanded a 20-per-cent raise in one year.

In Burnaby, CUPE represents both inside and outside workers while in Vancouver the inside workers are part of the MREU.

Meanwhile, as the Vancouver strike went into its fifth day today, garbage continued to pile up and wind scattered paper and other rubbish along city streets. Residents found themselves locked out of park buildings and other recreational facilities.

In Toronto more than 140 fires broke out in temporary garbage dumps in the metropolitan area during the weekend as negotiations aimed at ending the strike of municipal outside workers continued to plod along.

The Toronto fire department said most of the fires were the result of "boys with matches" and "careless smoking."

The strike, which began three weeks ago today, involves 4,000 workers including garbagemen, street and road maintenance workers, parks employees, sewage and water treatment workers, ambulance drivers, ferry boat operators and zookeepers. They are members of Local 43, Canadian Union of Public Employees.

ELK RAILWAY APPEAL UPHELD BY COURT

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada today found that the Canadian transport commission erred in a major point of law rejecting an application which would have allowed the Kootenay and Elk railway to move into the rich coal market in southeastern British Columbia.

The commission is studying the court ruling to see whether the Kootenay and Elk application should be heard again.

The court split five to four on the single point of law in which the commission was found to be wrong. On other legal matters, the court ruled that the commission judged correctly.

In its decision, the commission said the Railway Act prohibits a common carrier, such as Burlington Northern, from interchanging traffic with a company that is not a common carrier such as the Kootenay and Elk.

The court said the section in the Railway Act mentioned by the commission is not intended to prohibit traffic but to allow two common carriers to interchange traffic.

Liquor Prices Up

A major increase in liquor prices went into effect today, hitting imported wine drinkers the hardest.

A spokesman for the Liquor Control Board said the price changes, almost all on imported products, were caused by prime cost increases, freighting costs and revaluing of British currency.

The big increases in French wines and liqueurs are a direct result of the producers' own price increases, an apparent response to a worldwide rising demand, an official said.

A bottle of Chablis Cruse wine has gone up by $2.15 to $6. A bottle of Hennessy cognac rises by $1.10 to $9.95.

338 CHANGES

There were 338 price changes, only 18 being decreases. Most of them were on domestic products.

Some rye whiskies went down 10 cents.

Five B.C. wines went down,

GOLD PRICE SETS NEW RECORD

LONDON (AP) — Sustained industrial demand sent the price of gold above $50 an ounce today, a post-war record.

Bullion dealers fixed the free market price at $50.45, up from the previous high of $49.60 an ounce at the afternoon fixing Friday.

Davidson To UN

OTTAWA (CP) — CBC president George Davidson is to resign from the government-owned network to accept an appointment as United Nations under-secretary general in charge of budget, finance and administration, his office announced today.

No date for Davidson's resignation was announced.

Davidson, 63, was appointed CBC president in January, 1968, noting at the time existence of "a very real gap in my armory of knowledge about broadcasting."

A career civil servant, he was secretary of the treasury board during the four years previous to the CBC appointment. He succeeded J. Alphonse Ouimet.

After completing high school in New Westminster, Davidson studied at the University of British Columbia.

Peterson Eyes Boards

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson today asked for an immediate end to billboard advertising of tobacco products in the province to comply with last week's Supreme Court decision upholding the government's tobacco and liquor ad ban.

At a press conference, Peterson said he has telegrammed Seaboard Advertising Ltd. requesting that "you take immediate steps" to end billboard tobacco ads.

Peterson said Seaboard is the major company continuing the advertising of tobacco products despite the legislation which went into effect in September, 1971.

Peterson also said he is making a "public appeal to newspapers published within the province" to respect the ad ban.

In Montreal the Canadian Tobacco Manufacturers' Association said it plans to take the British Columbia Supreme Court ruling upholding the B.C. government's ban on tobacco and liquor advertising to a higher court.

Peterson also mentioned Time Magazine, saying "I urge them to have their western edition comply with the legislation."

He said he is "extremely pleased with the (B.C. Supreme Court) judgment which confirms the unanimous action of the B.C. legislature."

Bomb Kills Man At Ulster Plant

BELFAST (AP) — A chain of bomb blasts ripped through a big synthetic fibres plant today, killing one man and injuring 10 others.

The explosions left one man with both arms ripped off and another with serious head injuries as flames engulfed the factory at Carrickfergus, 10 miles from here.

Security forces said that 20 minutes before the first blast they received an anonymous telephone tip that explosives had been planted in a canteen at the factory, owned by the British chemical combine Courtaulds.

The attack was blamed on the underground Irish Republican Army.

Britain's chief administrator in Northern Ireland, William Whitelaw, held emergency talks in Belfast during the day on the rampage of Protestant mobs through the capital Sunday night.

Security forces fear the long-awaited Protestant backlash may have started against the IRA's guerrilla campaign and Whitelaw's concessions toward the province's Roman Catholic minority.

Shops and pubs were set ablaze in a three-hour fight Sunday between rioters and police in eastern Belfast's Newtownards Road district, a Protestant stronghold. Bloody riots in eastern Belfast Saturday night injured 12 police and 13 civilians.

A spokesman at Belfast police headquarters said: "It's a case of the gamekeepers turned poachers. The Protestants crowds are attacking us. The Protestant backlash seems under way."

Sunday night and early today, at least six shops and pubs were wrecked by flying rocks or set ablaze with flaming gasoline bombs. Police reported wide-spread looting.

Fallers Stay Out

PARKSVILLE (CP) — A meeting of fallers employed in the coast forest industry Sunday voted to continue a two-week-old walkout despite B.C. Supreme Court injunctions ordering them back to their jobs.

Socreds Lead in Everything—Just Ask!

British Columbia's Social Credit government is a leader in everything from social welfare to conservation and pollution control — if you take at face value the broadcast statements of cabinet ministers.

The three opposition party leaders don't.

The provincial government's controversial advertising program, Ask Your Provincial Government, got its first airing on B.C. radio stations on the weekend. Opposition reaction was quick and critical.

"Propaganda," chorused the three, each choosing his own definitive adjectives to embellish the condemnation.

"Orchestrated propaganda," Conservative leader Derril Warren said. "Strictly 1952 politics."

"Merely Socred electioneering propaganda," Liberal leader Dr. Pat McGeer agreed.

COST $200,000

"I refuse to comment on cheap Social Credit propaganda, the cost of which is taking food off the tables of old age pensioners of this province," New Democratic Party leader Dave Barrett stated.

The program will cost the taxpayers of B.C. $200,000.

Here are some of the questions and answers which prompted the opposition reaction.

"A Penticton man says he doubts that the department of rehabilitation and social improvement really helps people in need. For the reply, in his office at Victoria the minister, the Hon. Phil Gaglardi."

"Yes, it sure does, and here's how. This month, 3,800 men and women who are blind or totally and permanently disabled received incomes under the Blind and Disabled Pensions and Allowances Act. Last month social assistance was paid to 16,000 deserted or widowed mothers with children. Today, through its foster homes and special services, the department is caring for almost 7,000 children. Children who have been abandoned, abused, orphaned or for a number of reasons cannot remain safely in their own homes. When we stop to add it all up do you know that almost 200,000 citizens of our province will receive some direct benefit or allowance this month from your department of rehabilitation and social improvement."

POLLUTION

Another question concerned pollution. What, a letter from Castlegar asked, was the public works department doing in the field of pollution control?

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant replied:

"First of all we have, we lead in the construction of all-electric public buildings and we are also changing over to gas in our heating plants and have done this in a number. At the present time we have no coal burning plants left in our institutions anywhere in the province and we have also installed efficient treatment plants at Haney and Alco to treat sewage and furthermore we have led for several years in the disposal of garbage by burning it and using the resulting heat to generate steam heat for the different buildings and other offices."

"Thank you, Mr. Minister," Ray Orchard, announcer on the recorded broadcasts and a public employee, the provincial secretary department's administrative officer respon-

Singing the Praises Of the Swinging Game

A reader who describes himself as "fiftyish," having noted the occasional references here to the game, asks if I'd recommend the taking up of golf and I have replied, at truly incredible length, as follows:

Yes, sir, I would. I believe this to be the best of all participant sports and there are some 12,000 Victorians, according to the educated guess of our resident golf writer, who would doubtless agree. It is a game that offers challenges and rewards physically, cerebrally, psychologically and, if you play your cards right, financially. Stephen Potter, master of the art of one-up-manship, has said that "life is golf on a smaller scale" and, come to think of it, it is.

Age or gender matter not a whit, whatever a whit may be. Anyone who has marvelled at the sight of the tall, erect figure of C. Arthur Thompson striking the ball down the fairways of Uplands, two months away from his one hundred and third birthday, still in love with the game after 69 years of playing it, will get the message. "Fiftyish," therefore is irrelevant.

Since it is a game in which physical strength or stamina are far less important than co-ordination, rhythm and concentration almost anyone, in theory, may become a competent golfer by the simple application of intelligence and perseverance. I was once told by one of my heroes, Mr. Sam Snead, now 59 and playing some of the finest golf in his long career, that any man or woman who can dance can learn to play with a respectable score. I believe it.

Lessons are important for the beginner to establish the fundamentals of the grip, the stance, the stroke, the position of the feet, the pivot, the rotation of the hips and shoulders, the flexing of the knees and all that stuff, but I am one of those who hold that over-instruction may be more of a handicap than none at all.

Henry Longhurst, far and away the greatest writer and commentator on the game, shares this view. "I often suspect," he has written, "that little is to be learned by people like myself from instructional books on golf by people like Palmer and Nicklaus, for the simple reason that they cannot possibly know, fortunately for them, what it feels like to be me. They therefore recommend me to get myself into positions in which high-speed photography shows them to get themselves, little knowing that if I did so I should be taken straight to the infirmary."

While some instruction is advisable, preferably with a patient professional, it must always be remembered that golf is a simple game, that the stroke is far less complicated than the sum of its parts. There are really just two things to keep in mind.

One is that golf is a swinging game. You do not hit or strike a golf ball. You swing through the ball with a sweeping, fluid motion. Certain pros, indeed, provide their students with kitchen brooms before allowing them to touch a club.

The second thing to remember is to look at the ball and this, really, is the most difficult thing to learn and to maintain. If one swings through the ball and looks at it very intently and studiously one will always get good results, presuming, of course, that nothing has gone wrong meanwhile with one's grip, the stance, the stroke, the position of the feet, the pivot, the rotation of the hips and shoulders and the rest."

At the recent Bob Hope Classic in the California desert, where two newcomers, Lanny Wadkins and Jerry Heard, impressed me as the coming stars, each ventured a remark that every novice should keep in mind.

Heard, having muffed an approach shot, turned to his caddy and asked, "Why do we make such a simple game so complicated?" Wadkins, chatting with some of us in the press tent, was asked to define his approach to the game and replied: "You have to learn the basics of it—then you just whomp it."

Concentration, needless to say, is essential, particularly on the greens. A memorable P. G. Wodehouse character, Mitchell Holmes, is remembered as a man "who missed short putts because of the uproar of the butterflies in the adjoining meadows." Another instance Wodehouse cited was of a golfer who missed a putt on the sixth green at Deal by the seaside "and, raising his hands above his head, cried, 'How can anyone be expected to putt with all this bloody traffic going up and down the Channel?'"

Though club players are now going to comic extremes in acquiring the hardware of the game, no great outlay is needed for the beginner's equipment.

In a golfing tour that my wife and I made through England and Scotland, including the playing of the four links at St. Andrews, we set out with only five clubs apiece, contained in curious, collapsible canvas quivers. These were entirely adequate and the fact that we returned with a total of 25 clubs, including four putters, was caused only by the mystic persuasive powers of Scottish professionals, particularly evident when North Americans come into their shops. One might guard against this by staying away from Scotland, but no real golfer ever would.

Quite apart from the fact that golf is excellent for the health in painlessly providing exercise and fresh air and is played in surroundings that are good for the soul—the most beautiful views in Victoria are from the sixth tee at Gorge Vale and the seventh at Oak Bay—it offers purely psychological delights that often transform the beginner from a casual devotee to a religious fanatic.

For one thing, it is a game in which the player is essentially in competition with himself. In other sports the ineptitude of an opponent may provide an illusion of skill. In golf a man is on his own and any resulting elation or torment is of his own doing. It may, in fact, be the only sport in which a man may feel strong revulsion or adoration for himself.

Because the game can never be mastered—that would entail playing 18 consecutive holes each in two-under-par figures—it never palls and even the greatest of the professionals, stepping to the first tee, are always prepared for the surprise of their life.

So join us, "Fiftyish," and when you've broken 100 for the first time we'll have a game. You're just the kind of fellow we're always eager to join for—say—two-bits a hole.

Pedal Power

Aged from six to 72, about 500 enthusiasts mounted bikes and pedalled to raise money for the Victorian Days Sunday.

At least 24 cyclists, however, stuck it out for the maximum 100 miles, one of the fastest finishing times being John Luton's three hours and 50 minutes.

Officials hope to raise between $2,000 and $3,000 from the event but complete figures won't be available until all pledges are in.

The young Parfett sisters of 1928 Beach capitalized on the thirsty drivers by setting up a soft drink stand on their section of the route.

Macaulay Diversion Chosen

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

An engineering report made public today recommends diversion of sewage from Clover Point and McMicking Point outfalls to new facilities at Macaulay Point in Esquimalt.

A price tag of $9.33 million was put on the diversion by James F. MacLaren Ltd., Ker, Priestman, Keenan and Associates Ltd. and Associated Engineering Services Ltd. in their report to the Capital Regional District.

Clover Point, in the Fairfield district, is the main sewer outfall for Victoria city while McMicking Point, just east of McNeil (Shoal) Bay, is the main outfall for Oak Bay. Both discharge a few feet into the sea with resulting pollution of adjacent shoreline waters.

The old outfall at Macaulay Point was replaced in 1971 by a new 6,100-foot pipe discharging sewage into 200-feet deep water.

The report recommends a new 10,000-foot outfall be built parallel with the 1971 outfall to handle the diversion. The 6,100-foot pipe would then become a bypass.

Sewage would be pumped in a 42-inch diameter pipe from the two outfalls under Beach Drive, Fairfield Road, Bushby Road and Dallas Road, crossing under the Inner Harbor between Shoal Point and just north of the Imperial Oil dock in Esquimalt.

The old outfalls at Clover Point and McMicking Point would not entirely disappear.

Regional district engineer Bill Gerry explained a weir would be built so that when there is an influx of storm water, it could be directed into the old outfalls which would become storm water overflow outfalls.

'Optimum Point'

The report to the regional district, which is responsible for main sewer line and outfall reconstruction in the area, said Macaulay Point represents the "optimum point" for an outfall and eventual location of a treatment plant.

It was chosen over a Trial Island site for handling the Clover-McMicking outfalls.

The regional board, which decided on the study last September, gave two alternatives — diversion to Macaulay Point or diversion to a new site at Trial Island.

Other alternatives, such as enlarging Clover Point, and building a treatment plant, would require clearing of 70 houses or using Ross Bay Cemetery or Beacon Hill Park, which was not found to be acceptable.

Macaulay Point is allowed to discharge sewage without treatment while studies are made on water quality but 10 acres have been set aside if a treatment plant is ruled necessary by the Pollution Control Branch.

The report said the initial phase of construction does not need inclusion of sewage treatment facilities on the basis of current understandings of receiving water quality.

However, in view of potential future needs for treatment, the report said it is "imperative" that decisions now being made adequately provide for futre installation.

In tables of costs, the report put the diversion price at $26.8 million if treatment is added now, or $20.2 million if treatment was not added until after 1980.

The report recommends that the environmental monitoring program at Macaulay Point be continued as well as programs to determine points of storm water entry to the sewer system and to work towards elimination of this.

Benefits from spending money for a rebuilt sewage discharge system "result primarily from the improvement of public health indices of water quality to levels within safe limits on public bathing beaches along the south coast, and the improvement of aesthetic conditions at the existing points of discharge at Clover Point and McMicking Point."

The report will be considered at a meeting of the regional disrrict's executive committee Thursday and will probably go before the regional board at its May 24 meeting.

Jaycees Seek Federal Help To Finish Emily Carr Home

Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce has offered to give up title to the Emily Carr home in order to assure federal funds for its completion as a national historic site.

In a letter to the historic sites branch of the department of Indian affairs and northern development, the Emily Carr Foundation said that under the existing arrangement "the Emily Carr Home will never be completed, or open to the public."

Foundation chairman Andrew Blaney said the Junior Chamber refuses to "desecrate" by removing part of the front garden of the famed artist's old home to provide space to park four cars as required by the Victoria board of variance.

Without parking, the home cannot be opened to the public.

If it would have the effect of releasing federal funds for the purchase of adjoining property, to satisfy parking requirements, the club will give title to the federal authorities.

Meanwhile, the Junior Chamber will spend no more on the project, other than to use $15,000 provided by the historic sites branch for maintenance.

Its letter to Peter H. Bennett, assistant director of the branch in Ottawa, states in part:

"It seems incredible that because your department was not fully organized when we entered the partnership back in 1967, that we find the foundation exempt from gaining necessary funds to finish off a national historic site."

The letter, written by Brian Small who is the foundation's investigation committee chairman, pointed out that in other parts of Canada "millions of dollars are being expended to build and restore historic sites without any funds from groups such as the Junior Chamber of Commerce."

Since it launched the Carr project as a Canadian centennial undertaking in 1967, Jaycees have spent $80,000 on the house. The federal government has granted $25,000 and the local and provincial governments have made no cash contributions.

Copies of the letter went to the prime minister, the minister of Indian affairs and northern development, MPs David Groos and David Anderson, Mayor Peter Pollen, B.C. Trade Minister Waldo Skillings and Public Works Minister W. N. CHant.

Public Views Sought

Greater Victoria parents and taxpayers get a chance to register complaints — or compliments — with the people who run their school system Tuesday night.

Trustees and administration officials of School District 61 (Greater Victoria) will be at Mount View high school, 3814 Carey Road, from 8 p.m., listening to what the public thinks of the way the schools are being run.

It is hoped the atmosphere will be informal, lending itself to conversations between trustees and individuals.

OAK BAY BUDGET DUE

Oak Bay council goes into its final budget-paring session tonight with the municipality's taxpayers still facing a possible five-mill increase in the general tax rate.

Mayor Frances Elford said today she hopes that council will set the budget before getting down to regular council business.

After the last session, council had whittled the estimated increase from 8.65 mills to five, the biggest item yet to be decided being $258,700 for surface drain extensions.

The mayor said the question will be whether to go for some short-term borrowing (with no referendum needed) in order to keep the budget down or decide on long-term borrowing for a capital budget.

"This item is just one year of a several-year program," she explained, "council might go for a capital budget, with a referendum say in December, including any other major capital projects."

She says an addition to the municipal hall, cut out of this year's budget, is badly needed and might be one of the items that could be financed on a long-term borrowing program.

She said tonight's decision will be one of policy and politics with "two schools of thought".

She said that Ald. Douglas Watts has, in the past, been opposed to long-term borrowing because of the high interest rates.

"I'm inclined to favor it, however," she said "because I think it unfair to put the whole burden on this year's taxpayers when the benefits are spread over the property owners of the next 20 or 30 years."

Mrs. Elford said the council is watching other municipalities in an effort to keep any tax increase in line.

"We are comparing with other municipalities, particularly Saanich, which has a tax increase of 2.5 mills.

"This increase does not include sewer costs and many Saanich residents will have a hefty increase on top of the 2.5."

Environment Focused

Environment Day was marked in Victoria today by the opening of a large Environment Canada exhibit in the Hillside Shopping Mall.

To be on view for three weeks, the display will include a 10-by-16-foot model of the Straits of Georgia, showing underwater features, land formations and major industrial installations.

The Canadian forestry service will present a fire film from the Pacific Forest Research Centre and the Canadian wildlife service has arranged an aviary containing various migratory birds, including swans and geese.

Atmospheric Environment has a weather station on display and the fisheries service has arranged two large models of spawning channels and fish hatcheries.

Of interest to boaters will be a display on chart-making, provided by the hydrographic services.

The lands services' contribution is a 35-mm. slide presentation on the wise use of land.

Several Greater Victoria schools also took part in recognition of Environment Day. Students of Macaulay elementary school helped clean up Fleming Beach in Esquimalt and picked up litter from streets and boulevards in the area.

South Park elementary students became involved with Project Recycle and cleaned up debris in neighboring parks.

Fairburn elementary students will hold their Environment Day Wednesday when they will go to Gyro Park at Cadboro Bay to clean up.

Ask the Times

Q. Recently we watched a movie on Channel 8 that ran between 8 and 10:30 p.m. and it was well worth the four stars given for it. But it was quite ruined by the 49 commercials at intervals. Can you tell me if this is necessary and why so many? A.N.B.

A. It's not necessary, but it's legally permissable, under Canadian Radio and Television Commission regulations. Radio and television stations can have a maximum of 250 minutes of ads a day, or a little more than four hours, between 6 a.m. and midnight, and, if they wish, they could run them continuously. The maximum for a week is 1,500 minutes, which is 6 times 250 minutes.

NOTHING'S TOO SMALL to escape the attention of curious boys like Brian and James Fraser who took part in the nature tour Sunday sponsored by the Thetis Lake Sanctuary Association. Expert guides led the expedition to study wildlife and plants at the park.
